EGGE MEETS FIRE

estions of Antagonistic Senators Answered by Farm Board Chairman.

RAFTED FOR HIS JOB

d the Witness Says Committee Won't Offend by Sending Him Home.

LLS PROGRAM OF RELIEF

e Queries by Wheeler and Brookhart Sometimes Become Personal.

WASHINGTON BUREAU
THE KANSAS CITY STAR
610 ALBEE BUILDING

(By a Member of The Star's Staff.)

ASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—A man o turned down a salary of $100,000 year to serve his government in administration of the new farm ef bill stood up courageously to- under the sarcastic fire of an agonistic senate group.

I am not a volunteer, but was afted for this job," Alexander ge, chairman of the federal farm rd, told the senate agriculture mmittee. "You can't hurt my feel- s by sending me home."

he statement came after virtually ry policy of the board, and infer- ally its motives, had been at- ked by members of the committee resenting the Democratic-insur- t coalition.

Not His First Experience.

r. Legge asserted he claimed no dit for anything that had been e by the board. For any mistakes night have made, however, he was ling to assume full responsibility.

I have been dealing with the farm- for thirty years," he asserted, "in ost every state and almost every nty in this country. I do not be- e the farmer wants charity. He ot seeking a hand-out."

hen Senator Wheeler of Montana, nocrat, demanded to know why the rd had not set up a wheat ad- ry committee, preliminary to pro- ng a stabilization corporation, Mr. ge relied:

I am using the little intelligence ave in that direction."

urns Question to Wheeler.

heeler pressed his demand, in- ing the board had delayed too g already, and Legge replied:

Do you believe you could pick out roup of farmers in your state in short time and trust them to ndle 100 million dollars?"

he farm board chairman on the ond day of his examination by the ate committee underwent his most ere grilling. At times a few of the ators almost became personal in sharp questions. But Legge held temper, and refused to be drawn o long discussion on the agricul- al sophistries of surplus control ad- ates on the committee.

Aided by the Democrats from the ton states, the die-hard supporters the ol dequalization fee, and more ently the export debenture plan of irect government subsidy, insisted ge make known the program of board to enter the wheat and ton markets and buy up the sur- s to stimulate prices. The chair- n said no stabilization corporations been organized, but indicated t, when sufficiently strong co- rative farm groups had been as- nbled, stabilization corporations obably would be organized to ndle wheat, cotton, possibly pork other farm products having an portable surplus.

Demand Buying of Surplus.

The progressive demand that the m board organize stabilization cor- rations and be given government nds to buy up surplus crops first pped out in the questions of Sena- Brookhart of Iowa in the discus- n of the wheat situation.

"If the surplus wheat was bought and held, that would be all the ances needed by the wheat farm- s?" he was asked.

"You can raise the price in this y," Legge replied, "but how long n you maintain it?"

"As long as you buy up the surplus," ookhart replied.

Legge wanted to know at what price heat should be stabilized if there ould be a bumper crop.

Into Harvester Profits.

The committee delved into the prof- of the International Harvester, m the presidency of which Legge igned to accept the chairmanship the farm board. He read a state- nt to show the stock was worth ore than three times what it was in 20. An attempt was made to show at while the farmers have been in depression the farm machinery mpany has prospered.

Legge emphatically stated Interna- nal farm machinery manufactured the company's foreign plants did t sell for less abroad than it did in e United States. Brookhart in di- cting this line of questioning sought show the International was selling heap machinery to foreign farmers compete with American agriculture. Senator Wheeler of Montana bore own hard on Legge about the pur- rted loan made by the farm board the Sun Maid Raisin Corporation Delaware, a holding company for e California co-operative, which ad been refinanced through Dillon, ead & Co. Legge said no money ad been advanced, that the board erely had agreed to maintain the lvency of the concern by guaran- eing about 4 million dollars of its

LEWIS STONE ASKS DIVORCE.

Wife Lacks "Consideration for Feelings," Screen Actor Says.

(By the Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—The Times today said Lewis Stone, screen star, had filed a divorce suit against his wife, Florence Oakley, and would appear in superior court here for hearing Monday.

The fact Stone had instituted divorce proceedings against his wife, known in private life as Florence Pryor Stone, remained a secret until yesterday, when it was learned he filed the action July 13 under the name of Shepard Stone. When Stone and Miss Oakley were married in 1920 he used his middle name, Shepard, on his marriage license to escape publicity.

The newspaper said Stone asked for a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty, charging his wife "lacked consideration" for his "feelings and sensibilities," was uncongenial in his presence and was subject to fits of anger which interfered with his work and caused him anguish.

HONEYMOON IN OLD HAUNTS.

John and Florence Spend Day Visiting Places of Bridegroom's Boyhood

PLYMOUTH, VT., Sept. 25.—Amid the autumnal splendor of the Vermont hills, John Coolidge and his bride continued their honeymoon today.

The newlyweds found isolation in the modest story-and-a-half white farmhouse where the son of the former President spent many happy summer days of childhood, where his father took the oath of office six years ago and where his grandfather always lived.

White-haired Miss Aurora Pierce, housekeeper at the Coolidge homestead for more than thirty-five years, had ready one of her famous breakfasts—whole-grained cereal and heavy cream, bacon and eggs, doughnuts and coffee.

Walks to John's once favorite boyhood haunts, a visit to the little cemetery where his brother, Calvin, is buried, and a motor run over the countryside were on the itinerary of the happy couple.

YEARLING STEERS, $16.50.

Kansas Cattle Establish a New Top for the Year for the Weight.

Selling more than $1 above the best cattle here in recent weeks, a load of choice fed Texas steers from a Kansas feedlot established a new top for the year for yearlings at $16.50 a hundred pounds at the Kansas City stockyards today, to equal the top for the year for any weight cattle. Twenty head averaged 890 pounds each.

They were Matador brand Herefords, brought up from Texas last November as calves, and drylot fed by Dan Casement at Manhattan, Kas., since that time. They were cutouts from a herd now being fed by Mr. Casement for the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City, November 16 to 23.

The cattle were purchased by the Cudahy Packing Company. John Clay & Co. made the sale.

MAUNA LOA STILL RUMBLES.

Activity at Volcano Is Similar to That of 1907 Flow.

HONOLULU, Sept. 25.—With quakes continuing almost incessantly the last three days, and with a stronger intensity today in the North Kona district, residents of that section momentarily expected a lava outbreak on Mauna Loa or Mount Hualalai.

Dr. T. A. Jaggar, volcanologist, said the activity was apparently centering at Mauna Loa, slightly west of the summit, but tremors were reported from all parts of the island of Hawaii.

Old-time residents said the activity was similar to that preceding the big lava flow of January, 1907.

TOO MUCH FOR FOUR QUARTS.

A Man Stops $600 Check and Evelyn Nesbit Gets in Bad.

(By the Associated Press.)

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 25.—Evelyn Nesbit testified in court that a $600 check she had indorsed was returned to the bank. Counsel for Miss Charlotte Calegarde argued she was unwilling to pay $600 for four quarts of champagne in Miss Nesbit's club and stopped payment on the check. Now the grand jury is to look into the matter.

THE RADIO WIZARD IS BETTER

Back on the Job Tonight, He Says From the Hospital.

Bernays Johnson, the human lightning rod who buckled under a strong bolt of electricity at the radio show last night, or at least appeared to, was tingling with relief today. He is much better, one of the three physicians who rushed to the rescue at the Convention hall stage said today. He plans to be back on the job tonight.

O. K. ON NEW ENGINEER CHIEF

The Senate Military Committee Approves General Brown.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—A favorable report on the nomination of Brig. Gen. Lytle Brown as chief of army engineers, with the rank of major general, was voted today by the senate military committee.

Gas Kills Four While They Sleep.

EVELETH, MINN., Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—Four persons were asphyxiated and a fifth was made ill by gas escaping from a lighting plant in a summer cottage near here last night. The dead are Frank Laurich, 57, a salesman; Mrs. Johanna Laurich, 56, his wife; Mary, 23, their daughter, and Robert Frank Bradach, 2-year-old grandson of the Laurichs. Frank Laurich, 24, was overcome by the gas, but is expected to recover.

A Curtiss Unit to Lawrence, Kas.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

LAWRENCE, KAS., Sept. 25.—A branch school of the Curtiss Flying Service of Kansas City will be opened at the Lawrence Airport soon, it was announced here yesterday by Capt. W. S. Dawson, manager, who came to Lawrence today as speaker at the regular Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

FLORIDA AWAITS A STORM

WARNED OF HURRICANE, EAST COAST PREPARES FOR DAMAGE.

The Disturbance Probably Will Strike North of Miami Late Today or Early Tomorrow Morning.

Bulletin.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The weather bureau, in a second storm warning, today said the tropical disturbance had reached hurricane proportions and probably would strike Southeast Florida near or north of Miami late today or early tomorrow morning.

(By the Associated Press.)

NASSAU, BAHAMAS, Sept. 25.—(by radio)—At noon today the official barometer at Nassau had slumped to 29.34. The wind, now out of the southwest, indicating passage of the storm center north of Nassau, was blowing at fifty miles an hour.

MIAMI, FLA., Sept. 25.—The specter of another hurricane hovered over the Florida east coast today and terror was sent into the hearts of residents in whose memory the 1928 catastrophe is still vivid.

Residents of the potential storm area arose tremulously with the first streak of dawn today. Most of them spent an uncomfortable night with the doors and windows of their homes nailed down.

PREPARE FOR DAMAGE.

Warned sufficiently of the approach of the hurricane, towns in the danger zones were making extraordinary precautions for safety. At strategic points supplies of food, kerosene, clothing and medicinal supplies were held in readiness.

The storm was last reported in latitude 27, longitude 76, moving in a northwesterly direction at a rate of ten miles an hour. The weather bureau said the storm was likely of near hurricane proportions at the center.

The weather bureau officials believed the storm, continuing its present path, might strike the east Florida coast between West Palm Beach and Daytona Beach.

The storm, at its present rate, is not expected to touch the Florida coast until late in the day. Meantime, only slight indications of the tropical disturbance were reported by Florida cities. Muggy weather and light winds prevailed in a number of places.

THE BAROMETER DROPS.

Slight drops in barometer readings were reported all along the east Florida coast, although dawn broke with no other indications of the approaching storm.

Normal weather prevailed at all the west coast towns.

At Key West the barometer was reported as normal at 29.94.

Miami, having weathered the great hurricane of 1926 and knowing how to meet these blows, calmly went about its job of removing its multihued awnings or making them fast. Buildings along Flagler street and in the business district with large show windows were boarded up. The organization to meet the 25 to 38-mile gale expected to hit here as a byproduct of the main storm, formed two years ago, went about its work with expedition. American Legion posts and service clubs called out their relief workers to be ready in such an emergency as sent scores of workers to Palm Beach last fall.

IT'S HURRICANE WEATHER.

Shortly before noon today Richard Gray, government meteorologist here, said:

"It will be advisable to pull up or remove awnings in this district, but other precautions are unnecessary. Winds here will reach between twenty-five and thirty-eight miles an hour."

It was sultry here today, with fleecy clouds overhanging the city, with slight breezes and the mugginess that precede a hurricane.

Palm Beach and West Palm Beach also prepared for the approach of the storm, and all possible preparations are being made to combat the fury of the wind.

FLEE LAKE OKEECHOBEE.

Scores of residents of Lake Okeechobee and surrounding towns are swarming into West Palm Beach, the gateway to the Everglades. Survivors of the terrific hurricane of last year, they are fleeing the territory which bore the brunt of the previous storm.

It was the backing up of the waters of Lake Okeechobee, due to the high winds, which caused so many deaths in the last storm.

Under present conditions, with the new Okeechobee canals functioning, the water in the huge lake is at such a low level that another flood such as occurred in 1928 is remote. Before the canals were built, the surface of the water was often almost within an inch or two of the lake's bank, rendering the countryside susceptible to flood.

LITTLE HOPE FOR SHIP'S CREW.

Distress Call From a Freighter Is Received by Radio.

(By the Associated Press.)

MIAMI, FLA., Sept. 25.—The steamer Domira, believed to be a freighter, is aground off Abaco Island in the Bahamas with little chance of saving its crew, unless a breeches buoy can be rigged to land, a distress call received by Tropical Radio from the Domira said today.

SAY BORIS HAS WON ILEANA.

It Is Reported Princess Has Accepted the Bulgarian King.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 25.—Official confirmation was lacking today for the report that King Boris of Bulgaria has formally proposed to Princess Ileana, daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania.

The report intimates the royal suitor has been accepted. Announcement of the betrothal may be made shortly.

WITHOUT A SOCIETY STIR

MACDONALD PROGRAM DISPOSES OF SCRAMBLE TO ENTERTAIN.

After His Arrival in Washington October 4, Prime Minister and Daughter Will Attend Only Official Functions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The program for the entertainment of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on his visit to Washington, made public by the state department, definitely disposed today of any possibility of a scramble by the capital's society matrons to entertain him.

Beginning with his arrival here at 4 o'clock Friday, October 4, the prime minister will be feted only at official functions, and incidentally, Miss Ishbel, his daughter and constant companion, will be acccorded the highest honors.

The MacDonalds will be White House guests from 2:30 o'clock Saturday, October 5, until 10 o'clock the morning of the following Tuesday. Then they will be guests of Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, and Lady Isabella until Thursday morning, when the MacDonald party entrains for Philadelphia at 9:30 o'clock.

President and Mrs. Hoover will entertain the MacDonald party at a state dinner at the White House Monday night, October 7. Although the state department's announcement does not give a seating list of the guests, it was said Miss Ishbel will go in on President Hoover's arm, and MacDonald will be with Mrs. Hoover.

Second place will go to Sir Esme Howard and Lady Isabella, in all probability. Mrs. E. E. Gann, sister and hostess to Vice-President Curtis, will be in Topeka, Kas., during the entire visit, it is understood here, and this caused a sigh of relief to go up in official circles.

The MacDonald party, arriving in New York October 4, will leave the Pennsylvania station at 11 o'clock and will reach Washington at 4. They will be met by a military escort, comprising a squadron of the 3d cavalry from Ft. Myer, and a band.

Secretary Stimson will go to New York to greet the distinguished guest and Sir Esme Howard will accompany him.

It was observed that Saturday afternoon and Sunday have been left "open," suggesting the possibility President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald may retire to the isolation of the Rapidan River fishing camp over the week-end.

STILL SEEKS SUGGESTIONS.

McElroy Gets Many Ideas for Names for Road to Airport.

Suggestions for names for the new road at the Municipal Airport, asked for yesterday by H. F. McElroy, city manager, were plentiful in today's first mail. Some of the suggestions:

Fred M. Merrill, 3670 Jefferson street—The Milky Way.
John B. McLendon, 3440 College avenue—Kaw-Mo road.
Dan Carr, secretary of the Uptown Business and Improvement Association—Doniphan drive, in memory of General Doniphan, who led troops to Mexico and who is buried at Liberty.
Mrs. George T. Moore, 3525 Walnut street—Chanute road, in memory of Octave Chanute, noted early day civil engineer in Kansas City.

Judge McElroy looked them over and said he still was open to suggestions.

HOLD TWO BOYS IN SHOOTING.

Two Men and Woman Are Wounded Near Hutchinson.

(By the Associated Press.)

HUTCHINSON, KAS., Sept. 25.—Donald Schaff, 16, and Darrell Manche, 11, were arrested last night, accused of wounding two men and a woman with buckshot.

John Smith, 60, was blinded by shots fired from ambush and his son, Ray Smith, had sixteen pellets in his face. Mrs. Smith was shot in the head.

The youths, who had been shooting for quail on the Smith farm, fired for revenge when ordered off, police said.

STILL CAUSES A $725 FIRE.

Three East Eleventh Street Homes Are Damaged by Flames.

A still, not in operation, at 3114 East Eleventh street, caught fire early today and caused damage estimated at $725 to the building it occupied. Homes at 3112 East Eleventh street and 3116 East Eleventh street were damaged slightly.

Police found the 65-gallon still and eighteen empty barrels, but could not find the owner. No arrests were made. B. T. Voltz was the occupant of 3114 East Eleventh street.

CORRECT DRESS OR JAIL.

Chinese Official Will See That Girls Wear Oriental Clothing.

(By the Associated Press.)

CHANGSHA, CHINA, Sept. 25.—Girls whose sleeves and skirts are too short are to be put in jail. Chow An-han, commissioner of public safety, intends to see to it personally that all women of the city dress after the fashion of their ancestors. Those who insist on introducing occidental fashions will be kept in special detention quarters until they see the error of their ways.

CLOUDS ARE ON THE WAY.

Unsettled and Cooler Weather Is Forecast by R. L. Anderson.

Partly cloudy, somewhat unsettled weather tomorrow will succeed the warm, sunlit autumn haziness of today, R. L. Anderson, assistant weather forecaster, said. Tomorrow night will be some cooler than tonight.

TRAIN KILLS FIVE IN IOWA.

All Persons in Machine Die in Crash Near Woodbine.

(By the Associated Press.)

WOODBINE, IA., Sept. 25.—Five persons were killed late last night when the Chicago & Northwestern limited, Columbine, struck a sedan on the crossing east of town.

The dead:

Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Burress.
Mr. and Mrs. Claude Burress, their son and daughter-in-law.
Kenneth Burress, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollo Burress, all of near Woodbine.

LINDBERGH ON WAY HOME.

Flight Back to the U. S. Begins Early Today at Paramaribo.

(By the Associated Press.)

PARAMARIBO, DUTCH GUIANA, Sept. 25.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who blazed a new air mail and passenger trail from Miami, Fla., to this city, set out for home today, taking off for Port of Spain, Trinidad, at 5:45 o'clock.

Fifty minutes later the plane was passing over the mouth of the Saramacea River at an altitude of 750 feet.

A CITY JOB TO MISS HICKS.

"Cas" Welch's Telephone Appointee Goes to Assessor's Office.

Miss Rose Hicks finally has landed a job at the city hall. She has been employed under John J. Manning, city assessor, and she owes her backing in obtaining the job to Casimir J. Welch, Democratic boss of Fifteenth street.

Miss Hicks, it will be remembered, was placed on the switchboard at the city hall April 30, when Mrs. Edna Howell, employed on the city hall switchboard twelve years, was asked by Edward F. McGrath, secretary to Matthew S. Murray, director of public works, to resign. She refused, but was asked to leave.

McGrath telephoned Welch, who sent Miss Hicks to the switchboard. Miss Hicks lost the place September 2, when Miss Florence Maier was appointed after she had passed a high test in an examination four months before.

STARTS A BORGER PROBE.

Governor Sends General Wolters to Decide on Martial Law.

(By the Associated Press.)

BORGER, TEX., Sept. 25.—Brig. Gen. Jacob Wolters of Houston arrived here today to investigate and report to Governor Moody whether he believed martial law should be declared in this oil field town.

Special Investigator Clem Calhoun and Ranger Capt. Tom Hickman met the general in Amarillo and escorted him to Borger. They went into conference immediately on their arrival.

General Wolters said he probably would not make a recommendation to the governor by telephone, but would go to Austin and deliver his recommendation in person. Preliminary conversations, he said, had given him no indication as to what recommendation he would make.

RETIRES AS 'HOO-HOO' CHIEF.

M. M. Riner to Surrender Presidency of Lumbermen's Order.

M. M. Riner, who for a year has been president of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, an international order of lumbermen, will deliver his retiring address before that organization tomorrow at the annual convention at Amarillo, Tex.

Mr. Riner is president of the Riner Lumber Company, R. A. Long building, and has been a resident of Kansas City for many years. He lives at the Lucerne hotel.

The convention opening at Amarillo today is similar to that held by the order in Kansas City in September, 1927. The convention draws lumbermen from most countries where lumber is produced. It is world-wide and for the last year its activities have centered in Kansas City, with Mr. Riner as its head.

SAY REVOLT IS BROKEN.

General Chang Is Reported Defeated by the Nationalists.

(By the Associated Press.)

HANKOW, CHINA, Sept. 25.—Nationalist government authorities here tonight said the revolt of General Chang Fak-wei, leader of the famous Cantonese "Ironsides" division, had been broken. Chang's soldiers were said to be surrounded at Lichow, on the borders of Hunan and Hupeh, after a serious defeat with "heavy casualties."

NO. 63 TO BE OPEN SOON.

Pouring of Concrete Between Columbia and Moberly Is Completed.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

COLUMBIA, MO., Sept. 25.—The pouring of concrete on highway No. 63 between Columbia and Moberly was completed yesterday and the highway will probably be opened to traffic within the next two weeks. The project completed today was the widening of a 9-foot highway between Hinton, in Boone County, and the Boone-Randolph county line. An additional 9-foot strip of concrete and a 1-foot strip of asphalt between the two have been put down.

PANTAGES JURY ASKS AID.

A Rereading of Testimony Is Requested of Court.

(By the Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—Deliberations of the jury in the second degree murder trial of Mrs. Lois Pantages were delayed temporarily after they were resumed at 9 o'clock today. The seven men and five women jurors sent out a request that part of the trial testimony be reread to them, which they were informed could not be granted until court convened.

A Sheriff Dies From Wounds.

BONNE TERRE, MO., Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—William E. London, sheriff of St. Francois County, died in a hospital here today of gunshot wounds he suffered Sunday night when he was shot by Charles Kassabaum, a demented farmer residing eight miles south of Farmington. London was wounded in the face and chest.

THE VIGILANT SAILS IN CITY GETS GLIMPSE OF DIRIGIBLE ON WAY TO AIR MEET.

The Blimp Arrives Here Ahead of Schedule to Be Guest of Honor in the Program at Fairfax.

Sailing smoothly through the sky, the Goodyear-Zeppelin dirigible Vigilant passed over Kansas City at 1:08 o'clock this afternoon on the way to Fairfax Airport as today's guest of honor at the International Air Circus and Pilots' Reunion.

After circling the airport twice the dirigible descended. Ropes were thrown to a crew and the bag was lowered to the ground, but not attached to the mooring mast. After gas had been sent into the envelope, four passengers were taken aboard and a short flight over the city was made.

IN AHEAD OF SCHEDULE.

The arrival was considerably ahead of the time set by airport officials. Reports were the blimp would moor to its portable anchorage at the airport about 3:30 o'clock, but a faster trip than was expected was made.

The Vigilant's arrival was in sharp contrast with the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin, which appeared suddenly out of the haze. The Vigilant is only 128 feet long and thirty-seven feet in diameter.

So unexpected was the dirigible's arrival that many persons who hoped to follow its flight across the city were disappointed. However, other opportunities will come, as several short flights over the city are scheduled before the blimp returns to St. Louis tomorrow for the international balloon races.

MOORING MAST IS READY.

A ground crew of ten prepared for the arrival, with a portable mooring mast ready to anchor the gas bag at the airport. It will rest on the west side of the airport, where it can be inspected by attendants at the circus.

The dirigible left St. Louis at 7:30 o'clock today, averaging fifty miles an hour in the voyage here. In places the air was choppy, but Pilot V. L. Smith had no difficulty keeping his course. With him were W. P. Carey, assistant pilot, and James Royal, mechanician.

Another aerial "treat" awaits the spectators, when the entrants in the City of Mexico-Kansas City Air Derby arrive tomorrow, if the present schedule is maintained and mishaps are avoided by Col. Arthur C. Goebel and the Mexican fliers.

Maj. Luke Christopher, referee of the circus, will step out of position today long enough to settle an argument with Vern Roberts as to the speed of two small cabin planes which have been competing this week. Roberts and R. T. Quimby have been flying the planes against each other since the circus opened, with uniform success for Roberts. Christopher maintains neither flier turns the pylons properly and that he can take Quimby's plane, an exact duplicate of the other, and defeat Roberts in a 25-mile race.

I. M. McConaghey, pilot of the exceedingly fast Travel Air monoplane, again will put his ship through its paces today with the other stunters. The machine's performance, aside from being the fastest thing ever seen here, is remarkable in the stunting exhibitions which its pilot puts it through. While Lund's spectacular performances have been in his outside loops, McConaghey climbs his little monoplane straight upward for some 2,500 feet, putting it through two barrel rolls at the top and then resuming horizontal flight with plenty of speed left for control.

Mrs. May Haizlip, who was a participant in the women's air derby from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland, landed at Fairfax Airport today on the way to visit relatives in Tulsa. Mrs. Haizlip was flying the American Eagle airplane she used in the derby and in which she is expected to return here tomorrow to participate in the special flying races at the circus to be arranged for women pilots.

Five planes from the sixteenth observation squadron, Ft. Riley, Kas., under command of Lieut. M. C. Robinson, landed today at Fairfax preparatory to entertaining the crowds at the air show this afternoon with a series of aerial acrobatics in formation. Accompanying Lieutenant Robinson were Lieuts. R. R. Walker, E. H. Beebe, M. I. Carter and D. R. Johnson.

THE AIR DERBY ON AGAIN.

Four Mexicans and Art Goebel Take Off on Second Lap.

(By the Associated Press.)

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Sept. 25.—Capt. Feliciano Flores took off for Dallas about noon today. The other entrants in the City of Mexico-Kansas City air race remained here for luncheon.

(By the Associated Press.)

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Sept. 25.—Art Goebel and the Mexican entrants in the City of Mexico-Kansas City air race landed at Winburn Field here at 11:23 o'clock today.

The second leg of the derby got under way from Brownsville at 8:10 o'clock today with the departure of Capt. Felicano Flores. Lieut. Carlos Ribirosa followed the captain an hour later. He was followed by Capt. Luis Verdeja, Col. Roberto Fierro and Col. Arthur C. Goebel.

Lieut. Col. Fernando Proal, who apparently became lost after leaving Tampico on the City of Mexico-Brownsville leg of the flight, had not been heard from.

Rex Purcell, on the way to the Mexican capital to enter the race, abandoned his plans here today and will fly with the racers to Kansas City. A pilot ship carrying four race officials also accompanied the fliers out of Brownsville.

According to present plans, the derbyists will spend the night in Wewoka, Ok.

Drink Pickwick Coffee. It has real inspiration. At your grocer's.—Adv.

Air and Radio Shows Are Better Than Ever Today.

Better than ever, the radio and aviation shows continue their performances tonight and through the week.

At Fairfax Airport the Goodyear dirigible arrived this afternoon. In addition the regular program of races, stunts, parachute jumps and daredeviltry will be run off.

At Convention hall the radio show is open until 10 o'clock tonight—music, a radio panorama, miracles of modern electricity.

IN ONE DAY, 58 DIVORCES

THE CIRCUIT COURT HERE GOES THROUGH DEFAULT DOCKET.

Eight Judges Participate in the Hearings, With Each Courtroom Crowded With Participants and Witnesses.

The heaviest default divorce docket to be disposed of in a single day for many years was tried by eight circuit judges today when divorce decrees were granted in fifty-eight cases.

The various courtrooms were occupied all during the forenoon with persons seeking to have the marital bonds severed, their witnesses and attorneys.

The circuit clerk's office was kept busy figuring the court costs in each case, which under the rules of the court must be pand by the person obtaining a divorce befoıe the decree is entered of record. These divorces were granted:

EXTRADITION FOR BANKER.

Missouri Expects to Return W. H. Ellett to Chillicothe.

JEFFERSON C— BUREAU
THE KANSAS CITY STAR

(By a Member of The Star's Staff.)

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 25.—Governor Caulfield today instituted extradition proceedings for the return from Florida of William H. Ellett, president of the Peoples Trust Company of Chillicothe, wanted for trial in the Livingston County circuit court on five charges of embezzlement. Extradition was sought by Joseph J. Shy, prosecuting attorney of Livingston County.

Ellett, who is charged with embezzling a total of $1,554, is believed to be in hiding in Bronson, Fla., Shy said.

Four First Places Are Taken in Mid-Kansas Horse Show.

(By the Associated Press.)

SALINA, KAS., Sept. 25.—Mrs. Loula Long Combs took four firsts in the opening events of the horse show of the Mid-Kansas Free Fair last night.

Mrs. Combs entered only harness horses and drove before an estimated crowd of 4,000. Competition for Mrs. Combs was furnished largely by the Jo-Mar stables of Salina, owned by Nathan L. Jones.

The Clyde S. Miller stables, Waterloo, Ia., won two firsts in saddle classes. Nathan Jones took his only first in the 5-gaited gelding class with Bit o' Sunshine.

CHECK FLOOD OF SELLING

Scores of Leading Issues Are Swept Down $5 to $20 a Share Before Rescue.

SOME FINISH WITH A GAIN

A Handful Rushed Up $5 to $20 Above the Finals of Yesterday.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Powerful support was thrown into the stock market in the last hour of trading today, checking a flood of liquidation which had swept down prices of scores of leading issues on the New York Stock Exchange from $5 to more than $20 a share.

Losses were generally cut in half by the close of the market, and a handful of stocks rushed up $5 to $20 above yesterday's final quotations.

Blame Call Money Rise.

While some of the bankers regarded the decline as a correction of the market's weakened technical position, many brokers blamed the selling on the advance from 8 to 10 per cent in call money rates, reports of an increase in the Bank of England discount rate tomorrow with the likelihood that such action will result in a withdrawal of foreign funds lent on call in New York, and reported recessions in steel and automobile output in the last few weeks.

Whereas most margin accounts were in strong shape a few weeks ago, the steady decline of the past fortnight, which has carried many of the leading stocks down $25 to $75 a share below the year's high levels, has forced the liquidation of some of these holdings. Meanwhile, hundreds of "stop loss" orders placed by cautious traders and investors have been touched off by the withdrawal of pool and banking support.

Hear the Usual Rumors.

As in all sharp declines, Wall street was flooded with rumors that large individual operators "were in trouble," but no confirmation of these reports was available, and they were not taken seriously.

The sharpest breaks came in the high priced issues. Commercial Solvents, which sold at $700 a share a few days ago, dropped nearly $25 a share below last night's final price and finished $5 lower. Johns-Manville fell $15 a share and finished with a loss of only $3.

Big Break in Steel.

United States Steel common, which ran up to $241.75 yesterday and then slumped $10 below that level, slipped back still farther to $226.50 a share today. Among the many other issues to sell down $5 a share, or more, were American Water Works, International Telephone, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, United States Industrial Alcohol, Bethlehem Steel, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Atchison, Delaware & Hudson, Pere Marquette and Union Pacific. Most of these issues regained virtually all their losses in the late trading.

The tape had fallen nearly twenty minutes behind the market.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS MERGE.

Adams Express to Absorb Two Others and Split Up Stock.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Directors of the Adams Express Company today announced a plan to split up the stock on the basis of ten new shares for each of the present shares, and to acquire the Railway and Express Company and the Haygart Corporation. This constitutes a merger of three investment trusts, as Adams Express has been strictly an investing company since it went out of the express business, as has Railway and Express, which was formerly the American Railway Express Company. Haygart Corporation is an investment trust formed by Hayden, Stone & Co. and Hallgarten & Co.

WILKINS TO VISIT BYRD.

A Second Antarctic Expedition Will Be Started Saturday.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins announced today that he would sail Saturday on his second Hearst-Wilkins expedition into the Antarctic.

He said he expected to visit the camp of Com. Richard E. Byrd at the Bay of Whales and penetrate much farther into the "Great White South" than on his trail-blazing expedition last winter.

Accompanying him, he said, would be Parker Cramer of Clarion, Pa., and Al Cheeseman of Winnipeg, Manitoba, pilots, and Orvil Porter, mechanician.

AIR CIRCUS FUND SHORT

OF 30,000 PERSONS SUNDAY, NET PROCEEDS ONLY $7,300.

Arthur Hardgrave Is Investigating With Detectives—Fault Believed to Be the Thousands of Free Tickets Issued.

Sunday's crowd at the International Air Circus at Fairfax Airport, variously estimated at from 30,000 to 40,000 persons, netted only $7,300.

As a result of this discrepancy, Arthur Hardgrave, head of the citizens' committee which took the management of the circus over shortly before it opened Saturday, has been conducting an investigation, aided by operatives of a private detective agency.

The amount received from Sunday's gathering indicates a paid attendance of 14,600, including those who paid an additional 50 cents for seats in the grandstand. From the Monday crowd slightly more than $1,000 was turned in. That crowd was estimated at from 3,000 to 4,000 persons.

TOO MANY PASSES OUT.

In commenting on the affair today, Mr. Hardgrave said:

"We at first believed there must have been some exceedingly underhanded work somewhere, but it seems now that while some trivial incidents of that kind have occurred, the fault lies mainly in the widespread distribution of passes to the circus. We have found cases wherein concerns received blocks of 200 to 300 free tickets."

No check has been made at any time throughout the affair which would indicate the number of free admittances to the airport while the circus has been in progress. There never has been anything to show how many were admitted to the field free any day of the meet.

Presumably the city has been flooded with passes. Thousands of these were given out before the appointment of Roy Godsey as chairman of the credentials committee.

WAS GIVEN 6,000 FREE TICKETS.

Records of the passes Mr. Godsey distributed were examined today in his office. These figures disclosed he had been given 6,000 passes when he agreed to assume chairmanship of the credentials committee.

Of the number given him, nearly 3,000 still are held in his office. The others, the records disclose, have been distributed to manufacturers at the airport, to employees of every establishment on the field and to the many students of flying schools at Fairfax. In addition others have gone to road workers and persons connected with the affair.

The feasibility of canceling all passes was being considered today by Mr. Hardgrave and his associates. Investigations have disclosed that more than 5,000 passes were given out before the credentials committee was formed and the chairmanship turned over to Mr. Godsey.

Shortly before the date set for the start of the air circus it was apparent the show would not live up to the national advertising which had been sent throughout the country. This advertising featured the large amounts obtained here for awards throughout the 9-day event.

HAD ONLY ABOUT $6,000.

The promoter of the circus, Larry Roberts, brought here from St. Louis by the Air Corps Reserve Officers' Association of Kansas City, started into the last week before the opening of the show with only about $6,000 obtained of the advertised prize money of $30,000. Throughout his work of promoting the circus, however, Roberts worked in cooperation with several members of the air corps reserve who devoted their time to the affair.

It was when it became apparent the show would become a financial failure that Mr. Hardgrave was prevailed upon to head a citizens' committee to take charge. Mr. Hardgrave and other citizens and concerns subscribed the necessary funds to obtain the amount of prize money as advertised.

"The whole layout of the show at Fairfax is almost impossible and no regular showman would attempt to open a show under such conditions and get any money," one of the officials said today.

THE MONEY A MYSTERY.

"With a mile or so of canvas sidewall without any guards, with the sidewall not even carried as far as the exhibition tent, with four or five openings into the permanent buildings on the field and cars supposed to be connected with those establishments going in and out, with several thousand season passes in the hands of people who could use them and pass them around to their friends several times a day, it is a mystery to me as to just how they took in as much money as they did."

The seven men selling subscriptions to an air publication at Fairfax Airport who were arrested yesterday by Kansas City, Kansas, detectives were released today by William McMullan, chief of police, who said he was satisfied the men had been carrying on a legitimate business under a contract between them and airport officials. Those released were: Samuel Grossman, Samuel Sokol, Henry Roder, Irvin Mosias, Samuel Wishnoff, Charles Segal and Murray Polans.

Members of the air corps reserve were stationed at ticket booths this afternoon. While nothing incriminating has been found against any ticket seller, the air corps members will be able to obtain a satisfactory check on the tickets sold. Passes are to be taken up in wholesale lots, it was said today.

SATISFYING THE COLLEGE APPETITE

They must have lunches and snacks between meals, and almost any occasion calls for food. A college cafe is offered for sale under "Business Opportunities" today. It adjoins the campus and is known from coast to coast. Refer to the ad for other information.

NOW BUY A PLANE

The air circus at Fairfax is promoting interest in aviation and all branches of flying. There are many who would like to own their own planes when they have become licensed pilots. A plan is offered whereby one may buy a plane on the club plan and be taught to fly. Other particulars are given in the "Aviation" column.

bonds to prevent foreclosure. Wheeler asserted that as a result of this announcement the price of the bonds, which he said were held by private investors and not by the farmers, advanced in two days from 48 to 93.

Wheeler Has a Thrust.

"Is farm relief going to help the farmers or Dillon-Read?" Wheeler inquired.

"What do you think a similar announcement by the board on wheat and cotton would have done?" Senator Heflin asked.

Legge believed it might have been a temporary aid.

In discussing the present depression in wheat prices, which Legge blames largely to the lack of storage facilities in this country, the chairman pointed out the visible supply in this country now is about 100 million bushels over last year. Thereupon Senator Frazier of North Dakota caustically upbraided the board for its wheat policy.

"The board has done nothing to take this 100 million bushels of wheat off of the market," he said. "Spring wheat growers in the Northwest have lost from 25 to 40 cents a bushel because the farm board has taken no action. The farmers of my country have lost confidence in the farm board because of it."

Legge agreed that the duty of the board was to obtain the best price for the farmers.

World Supply Is Less.

Senator Wheeler asserted that, although the visible wheat supply in this county was up, there were 610 million bushels less of the world supply than last year.

"So why does the American farmer receive less for his wheat?" he asked.

Legge explained the world wheat market was not normal today; that the foreign buyers were inactive and mills abroad were operating on short stocks—some with not over a three weeks' supply ahead.

"Money that should be lent in this country to take care of wheat," Legge concluded, "is being sent to Wall street for speculation on the stock market."

"MEANEST THIEF" LEAVES ONLY GRIEF TO MRS. ALICE ARNOLD.

Amaryllis Plant Disappears From Porch After Twenty Years of Tender Care, as the Only Memory of a Daughter.

For the last thirteen years, Mrs. Alice Arnold, now past 70 years old, has lived in a little house at 1214 East Tenth street. Two daughters and her husband have died, leaving her alone.

She has had no fear of thieves; her little home contained no luxuries to lure them. Her dearest treasure was an Amaryllis plant her youngest daughter gave her twenty years ago, shortly before she died. Mrs. Arnold has tended it carefully, keeping it out on the porch in the sunshine in the summer time, and having it taken in in the winter. Each Christmas it has bloomed, with sometimes as many as twenty large pink blossoms on the sturdy stalks. Neighbors would come in to exclaim and admire.

Last Sunday she did not go out to her porch until late afternoon. When she glanced at the familiar corner the plant was gone. A large, dusty footprint was on the step. No one but a man could have lifted the big pot from its place.

Mrs. Arnold is at a loss to explain the theft. The plant was not blooming and was not "doing well" this summer. A stranger would scarcely have glanced at it. But to her—well, she cannot speak of it dry-eyed.

"You see, it meant my daughter to me," she explained.

She will pay a reasonable reward for its return.

REUBEN A. SHEPARD DIES.

The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Freeman chapel, Forty-second street and Baltimore avenue. Dr. S. Willis McKelvey will officiate. Burial will be in Mt. Moriah cemetery.

MOVE TO HALT STATION

AN INJUNCTION IS ASKED AGAINST THE PARK BOARD.

South Central Group Seeks to Stop Service Place Erection by Enjoining Cutting of the Curb.

Steps to enjoin the erection of a combination gasoline and service station by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company at the northeast corner of Linwood boulevard and Troost avenue were taken this afternoon by the South Central Business Association.

An application for an injunction against the board of park commissioners, prohibiting it from issuing a permit for cutting the curbs for entrance to the proposed station, was filed in the circuit court.

The action is friendly, in so far as it relates to the park board, and is intended to take from it the responsibility for granting or denying the permit.

THE JUDGE NOT IN COURT.

Under ordinary procedure the application would go before Judge Darius A. Brown of the assignment division. Judge Brown was not in court when it was filed, hence no temporary injunction was granted. But it was believed by the attorneys the application itself would act as a stay to the park board.

A hearing before the park board on the Firestone company's application for a curb-cutting permit was set for 2:30 o'cloc. It was believed the court would reach the application for an injunction before the park board had time to pass on the permit.

Attorneys said today that legally, even without the granting of an injunction, the city's hands were tied and a building permit could not be granted to the Firestone company.

A PERMIT IS ORDERED.

Following the failure of H. F. McElroy's efforts to negotiate a settlement between the owner of the ground and the Firestone company, whereby the project would be abandoned, he ordered the superintendent of buildings to issue the permit for which application had been made. The city manager was advised there was no legal method of withholding the permit.

Last Saturday attorneys for the South Central Business Association appealed from the theoretical ruling of the superintendent of buildings by serving notice on city officials they desired a review by the board of zoning appeals. They held the zoning law fixed certain "minimum requirements" covering the use of land and that the board had discretionary power to vary them.

LEGALLY HELD UP THE PERMIT.

They served notice they desired such variation as would prohibit such uses of the Linwood-Troost corner as the Firestone Company proposed. That action, they contended, legally held up the building permit.

Aside from legal steps, the South Central Business Association is carrying its opposition to the filling station directly before Harvey S. Firestone. In a letter sent to Mr. Firestone at Akron, O., today, the association urged his organization to reconsider its proposal. It called attention to the fact 300 business men and property owners, immediate neighbors of the proposed plant, had voted unanimously against admitting it to that section. Also it warned him property owners, who felt their property values were at stake, would fight the matter through the courts.

BAPTISTS ACCEPT A FIGHT.

Liquor Propagandists the Subject of Report Adopted Today.

Kansas City Baptists today placed themselves on record as fighting anti-prohibition propaganda and the illicit sale of narcotics, when the fourth annual convention of the Kansas City Baptist Association at the Calvary Baptist church, Thirty-ninth street and Baltimore avenue, adopted the temperance report submitted by the Rev. Albert J. Dahlby, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle Baptist church.

The association is composed of thirty-seven Baptist churches of Greater Kansas City, with a total membership of 14,000. Dr. S. E. Ewing, superintendent of city missions at St. Louis, addressed the convention this morning on "Home Missions."

The "Associational" sermon today was delivered by Dr. O. R. Mangum, pastor of the Wornall Road Baptist church.

The feature of tonight's session will be an address on Russia by Dr. W. O. Lewis, European representative of the American Baptist foreign missionary society, who has just returned from an extended tour through Russia.

'PROHIBITION IS FOR ALL'

EMPLOYER AS WELL AS EMPLOYEE SHOULD OBEY, DORAN SAYS.

In a Message to the W. C. T. U. He Stresses the Encouraging Notes Found in Observance of the Dry Law.

(By the Associated Press.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 25.—Dr. James M. Doran, federal commissioner of prohibition, today attacked as "inconsistent" business leaders who regard liquor drinking an evil for their employees, but who feel the law should not interfere with their own drinking.

In an address prepared for delivery before the fifty-fifth annual convention here of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Dr. Doran said it was encouraging to note that among those prominent in business "there is a growing conviction that they have individual responsibility as leaders and the laws should be respected and observed in good faith" by all alike.

"It is my conviction, and that conviction is based on all the data I can assemble, that our national prohibition policy is sound and will be maintained."

He said he knew of no economist who, having studied the problem, did not believe the government's policy has "brought tremendous economic advance." He likewise stated he recalled no prominent social worker who had failed to note the benefit prohibition had caused "in the social lives of the people and who also has not noted the good accomplished by the prohibition laws is in direct proportion to the degree of enforcement and observance in the particular community."

Stating that disagreements as to methods and procedure always would arise, he said "advances in prohibition law enforcement must be made by people who are friendly to the law and its purposes and who will deal constructively with the details of its administration."

The obligation of state and federal government is "equally binding," Dr. Doran said. "The federal government must give its attention to major matters of the character germane to the operation of the central government machinery," he explained, "and the states must more and more take care of the localized violations."

J. John Gillis Is Grand Knight of Marquette Council.

These officers of the Marquette council of Knights of Columbus were elected last night at a meeting at the Hotel Baltimore:

J. John Gillis, grand knight; Joseph W. Spoor, deputy grand knight; Charles V. Owens, chancellor; S. A. Scheier, warden; J. F. O'Neill, recording secretary; J. H. Grimes, treasurer; Charles N. Keating, advocate; Harry Senno and Thomas M. Mellody, outside guards, and William Reiser, inside guard.

Salina Ex-Minister Found Dead.

SALINA, KAS., Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—The body of the Rev. L. A. Branson, 61, retired Methodist minister, apparently a victim of apoplexy, was found today in a cornfield after an all-night search.

PERJURY CHARGE IN ALIBI.

Street Car Motorman in Trouble Over Testimony in Shooting.

Charges of perjury were filed today against E. D. Sexton, 2506 East Twenty-third street, by Joseph E. Gorman, assistant county prosecutor. A warrant was issued for Sexton's arrest.

Sexton was an alibi witness Saturday in the court of Judge A. Stanford Lyon for Clyde Smith, who was acquitted by a jury of a charge of assault with intent to kill in the shooting of R. R. Elson, patrolman, March 14, 1928.

Sexton, a street car motorman, testified he was with Smith the afternoon and night of the shooting and accounted for their time until after the shooting. Smith was acquitted. In his testimony, Sexton said he was on duty March 13 and off duty March 14 and 15. Mr. Gorman checked the records of the street railways and they showed, he said, that Sexton was off duty March 13 and worked March 14 and 15, hence could not have spent the time he testified he spent with Smith March 14.

Smith still is in the county jail facing a charge of assaulting Joseph Marshall, a patrolman who was with Elson. The officers were shot when they sought to question occupants of a car in Penn Valley Park.

A BANDIT GETS 25 YEARS.

Tom Swartz Admits Two Hold-Ups—Trial on Third.

Tom Swartz, 35-year-old Kansas City bandit, was sentenced today to twenty-five years in prison after a plea of guilty to two hold-up charges before Judge Ben Terte. He was returned to jail without bond, pending trial September 30 on a third charge.

Swartz escaped from jail here November 8 last year when he slugged a turnkey at police headquarters. He was captured in Detroit and returned here last week.

He pleaded guilty today to holding up George A. Patton, 5235 East Sixth street, from whom he obtained $114.26, and Horace J. Goodwin, 5109 East Twelfth street, from whom he obtained $26.88. Both hold-ups were last October.

Judge Terte sentenced him to ten years' imprisonment on the first charge and fifteen years on the second, to be served consecutively.

Swartz refused to plead on a third charge filed by Page, that of the hold-up of the Ransom Coal and Grain Company November 28, 1928, in which $1,500 was obtained. Trial on this charge was set by Judge Terte for September 30.

SUE JOHN HAGAN ON A BOND.

Federal Authorities Would Collect on Surety Posted for an Appeal.

A suit against John G. Hagan, former head of the notorious Midwest Detective Agency and a principal figure in the Florence Barton murder case here, to collect a $7,500 property bond was filed today in the federal court here by W. L. Vandeventer, United States district attorney.

The bond was posted by Hagan recently pending a hearing on an appeal following his sentence of a year and a day in the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth on charges of transporting a stolen motor car from one state to another. He was convicted in 1923 at Topeka. Joseph W. Stockdale, whose address has not been learned by federal authorities, signed the bond for Hagan.

After posting the appeal bond Hagan disappeared, but was arrested later in Chicago. His whereabouts now have not been determined.

A DUTY TO AID IN GROWTH.

Leonard D'Ooge Tells C. of C. the City Is Entering a New Era.

Leonard D'Ooge, district manager of the Bolyn Corporation of Chicago, an advertising agency, spoke today at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon in the Kansas City Athletic Club building on the advantages of organized efforts.

"Kansas City is on the verge of a new ear of development," Mr. D'Ooge said, "and it is the duty of members of the Chamber of Commerce to aid in the development of industries in Kansas City.

"The Chamber of Commerce is a leading factor in the growth of a city and should be recognized as such," Mr. D'Ooge concluded.

TRIPPERS MEET DETOURS

THE DELAY, HOWEVER, AMOUNTS TO LITTLE AND THEY PRESS ON.

Good Will Party Finds a Cordial Welcome Throughout Nebraska With a Hearty Greeting by Omaha Business Men.

(By a Member of The Star's Staff.)

OMAHA, NEB., Sept. 25.—Nebraska's paving program for U. S. highway No. 75, especially about forty miles from Union to Omaha, delayed the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce Good-Will trade trippers about fifteen minutes in arriving at Plattsmouth, the first stop of the second day. Most of the time, however, was made up before reaching Omaha, despite additional detours.

At Plattsmouth the trippers were handed guest cards and were greeted cordially by Mayor John P. Sattler and the business men, to say nothing of the more than 1,000 lively school children, who had been told they would not be marked "tardy" if their visits with the trippers delayed their arrival at their classes.

A delegation of six Omaha city and chamber of commerce officials met the trippers eighteen miles out and escorted them to the courthouse grounds, where a brief speaking program took place. The delegation included Thomas Changstrom, banker; L. O. Kelly of the Bemis Bag Company; John Ek, secretary of the membership bureau of the chamber of commerce; Ward Mayer, secretary of the junior division of the chamber, and Frank F. Fogarty of the publicity bureau of the chamber.

John Hopkins, city commissioner and acting mayor, spoke in welcome to the trippers, acting for Mayor James C. (Cowboy Jim) Dahlman, for twenty-one years the city's chief executive. Col. Ruby D. Garrett responded for Kansas City.

So far the trippers have found the Nebraskans as cordial in their welcome as were the citizens in cities much closer to Kansas City. Before leaving Nebraska City this morning the trippers visited Arbor Lodge, founded by J. Sterling Morton, originator of Arbor day, and saw many of the magnificent trees on the estate, which were planted on those early Arbor days. Nebraska City is proud of its heritage of pioneer days and its citizens delight in regaling the traveler with stories of those early times. Many of the Kansas City trippers were quartered last night in the Pioneer hotel there, a building that is modern despite the fact it was built in 1865, when freight was being hauled across the prairies by wagon. The others found rooms in a newer structure, the Grand hotel, built in 1872.

C. OF C. INTO SCHOOL BONDS.

Public Funds Committee Will Consider the Issue Friday.

The proposed school bonds to be voted on October 19 will be considered by the public funds committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting at 4 o'clock Friday.

M. L. Orear, chairman, called the meeting today. The committee will determine whether the chamber shall approve the bond issue and make its report to the directors. The directors probably will follow the recommendation of the committee.

OUR PATROLMEN WORK HARD.

Survey Shows Longer Beats Are Walked Here Than Elsewhere.

Kansas City patrolmen cover longer beats than patrolmen in ten cities of similar size, according to a 40-page report to be submitted to the police commissioners here today by Wallace Cameron, secretary to Chief John L. Miles.

The report covers the information obtained in a survey made in the last six days at the request of the commissioners. Detail work was done by Lieut. M. G. Sucrow.

The report largely is a comparison of the men and equipment of the Kansas City police department with the police departments of ten cities of approximately the same size. It shows the police department here is smaller than in other cities of the same size.

The commissioners recently filed a mandamus suit in the supreme court against the city, asking for more money to operate the police department. The supreme court has appointed a commissioner to hear the case and Mr. Cameron believes the report is to be presented to the commissioner as evidence.

IN A WELFARE CONFERENCE.

Officials of Institutions Take Up Problems.

Directors and superintendents from virtually all of the charity, welfare and health institutions of Kansas City are attending a problems institute today at the Girls hotel, 1805 Jefferson street, under the auspices of the Council of Social Agencies.

CARMEN BAR THE "REDS"

PRESIDENT IS AUTHORIZED TO EXPEL ANY COMMUNIST MEMBERS.

Resolution Adopted Today Is Firm and Came With Very Little Opposition—Take Up Technical Matters.

Communists and all persons of communistic leaning were barred from the membership rolls of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America by resolution today. The same resolution authorized the president to expel from the organization any person having such affiliation.

The resolution was among those offered late yesterday to the general sessions in progress here for the last week. When the resolution was reached today it brought on considerable discussion, but no decided opposition.

Speakers favoring the anti-communistic declaration asserted that everything in the purpose of the brotherhood was contrary to communistic teachings; that communism was intended to disrupt and destroy all organization and control. They asserted communism was opposed to arbitration and negotiation and could not be accepted by any law-abiding labor organization such as the brotherhood.

Put in that light, what little opposition that had flared was extinguished and the resolution was adopted. With its adoption there is no place in the brotherhood for anyone who belongs to any communistic organization or harbors any communistic beliefs.

The use of the spray paint gun was condemned by resolution and the Brotherhood took a definite stand against the use of the paint spray on the outside of cars in an inclosure and against its use at any time or under any circumstances on the inside of a car.

The resolution asserted the spray gun filled the air with particles of paint and oil which were injurious to the health of workmen.

Blanket insurance for the carmen was approved, providing that before the general officers could sign up for blanket insurance the proposal must be submitted to a vote of the membership.

The hour set by resolution for the nomination and election of general officers was 10 o'clock tomorrow.

BALL GAME CHECK TO FUND.

Aid for Firemen's Families Is Increased by $1,411.

A check for $1,411 is ready for the firemen's widows' fund, sending the total to about $16,500.

The check is from ticket sales to the courthouse-city hall ball game September 11. Charles W. Regan, city clerk, and Thomas Fitzgerald, representing the courthouse team, have completed collection of the proceeds and the check will be turned over to the trustees of the fund.

A BUS LINE FIGHT GROWS.

Application for Third Kansas Cross-State Service Is Filed.

TOPEKA BUREAU
THE KANSAS CITY STAR
(By a Member of The Star's Staff.)

TOPEKA, Sept. 25.—Another cross-state bus line, which would parallel the Rock Island's Colorado line, is seeking authority to begin operations in Kansas. Huey R. Green of Moline is the representative for the Pony Express stage lines, which has filed the application with the public service commission.

The route of the new stage line goes out of Kansas City, Mo., on Southwest boulevard and follows Kansas highway 10 from Kansas City, Kansas, to Lawrence, thence on U. S. 40 from Lawrence to Manhattan, thence U. S. 40-N to Clay Center and to Goodland, and then over to St. Francis, leaving the state on the new routing of U. S. 36 to Colorado.

The Union Pacific railroad is proposing to start a new bus line across Kansas, starting at Kansas City and following its own line across the state. The Greyhound-Pickwick stage lines have a similar route across Kansas.

The Pony Express application is to be heard October 7 and the Union Pacific application is set for October 14.

There is a big fight being waged in Kansas just now between the railroads and the stage lines.

Big Ship Loan to Dollar Line.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—The shipping board today approved a loan under the 1928 Jones-White act to the Dollar Steamship Line, Inc., of $10,565,000 for the construction of two 20-knot combination passenger and cargo liners for its round-the-world service.

OLD WHARF SITE AGAIN

ADVANTAGES OF MUNICIPAL DOCK ARE SENT TO SECRETARY GOOD.

Maps Intended to Prove Equal Traffic Interchange Facilities Are Forwarded to Substantiate Claim by W. H. Negbaur.

Maps and sketches intended to prove that the old municipal wharf site at the foot of Main street possesses all the traffic interchange facilities claimed for the Woodswether site and the Liberty-Mulberry site, accompanied a letter sent to James W. Good, secretary of war, by Walter H. Negbaur, president of the Business District League.

The communication was in reply to a letter from Secretary Good, asking Mr. Negbaur to assemble information concerning relative switching charges involved in the several sites.

"The engineers have made a report to me," Secretary Good wrote, "from which it would appear that we may confidently expect an annual charge for dredging the channel if the terminal is located on the Missouri-Kansas line, as planned; that if the terminal is located at or near Mulberry street, the annual charge will be very substantially reduced; and if located far enough downstream, dredging would not be necessary except in rare cases. If located at a point downstream where no dredging would be expected, switching charges are necessary."

GOOD REGRETS DELAY.

Secretary Good regretted the delay in fixing the dock site, but added:

"It is much better to delay the determination now than to make a costly mistake at this time in the location of the terminal."

Mr. Negbaur takes up the Santa Fe street rail connection on which so much stress has been laid in connection with both the Woodswether and Liberty-Mulberry site, and asserts it is equally available to the Main street site.

"There is now a connection at this point under the Intercity viaduct," Mr. Negbaur wrote, "for the Missouri Pacific railroad and which could be made available for connection to the wharf track. The connecting track may also, if desired, be extended from the foot of Broadway to Santa Fe street.

"The connection referred to makes connection at Santa Fe street with all of the railroad facilities contemplated in the plan for the Missouri-Kansas line location, thereby making available any and all switching facilities that could be had at either the Missouri-Kansas or Mulberry sites."

Mr. Negbaur's letter contained no comparative figures on switching charges as among the various sites proposed.

BELOIT, KAS., Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—Three hundred ministers and church leaders are attending the Kansas conference of the Church of United Brethren in Christ, which began in Beloit yesterday.

R. A. RIDGWAY TO NEW POST.

Former Federal Life Manager to National Protective Concern.

Robert A. Ridgway, for the last fifteen years Kansas City division manager of the Federal Life Insurance Company, has resigned, to take effect September 30. Hereafter Mr. Ridgway will devote his time to the National Protective Insurance Association, which was established here three years ago by Mr. Ridgway as president and Ross J. Ream as secretary-treasurer. The National Protective Insurance Association, with offices in the Scarritt building, specializes in an accident policy which it offer at "1 cent a day."

The new division manager of the Federal Life Insurance Company will be William E. Schilling, who now is agency instructor for the Midland Life Insurance Company.

Chicago Detective Dies in Raid.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—One detective was killed and another wounded today and a Negro, suspected to be one of a band of kidnapers, was shot to death in a police raid on a flat in the South Side Negro section. The squad had gone there in search of four Negroes who had abducted Charles Kirkman, Negro, from his home while he was at breakfast today.

NEW PUBLIC GOLF COURSE.

Wyandotte Country Club Is Opened by Receiver.

The golf course of the Wyandotte Country Club was opened to the public as a fee course today by order of Judge W. H. McCamish of the third division of the district court. The club is in charge of Donald Little, receiver, appointed by Judge McCamish.

The fee will be 50 cents each day in the week, including Sunday, Mr. Little said. It is a 9-hole course.

The club is a mile west of Bethel on the Quindaro Boulevard road, west of Kansas City, Kansas. The course was being opened to the public, Mr. Little explained, as a means of revenue to pay off debts of the club.

STAR WANT ADS GET RESULTS.

This sounds unbelievable—but Lloyds Casualty Co. will insure it

Tests at the Mellon Institute placed us in possession of a remarkable scientific secret ... the formula for a solution—Konate—that permeates rugs, clothing, upholstered furniture, and immunizes them from moth damage for 3 years.

Because there have been so many failures in this field we were fearful that the public would not believe that in Konate we had the successful mothproofing solution. So, back of our statement we are placing an insurance certificate on Lloyds Casualty Co.

Never again need you fuss with moth balls, tar bags, etc. It is easy for you to benefit from this guaranteed mothproofing process. Just telephone Harrison 7146, ask for Miss Earhart. Our bonded operators come into your home and Konate all or as many articles as you desire. Konate is stainless and leaves no odor. This done we list each article treated and issue you a Lloyds Casualty Co. certificate insuring them against moth damage for 3 years. The process is inexpensive ... the results are astounding. THE LEARNED BROWN-SEQUARD AND HIS MEDICAL TOMFOOLERY

A "Forty Years Ago" Item Recalls the Fraud Perpetrated by a Distinguished Scientist—His Visit Here Caused a Stir.

The town is "all agog," so to speak, over Dr. Brown-Sequard's wonderful new elixir. It's a splendid rejuvenator and recent tests at the City hospital, in that and other lines, showed good results. Some of the "old boys" here are feeling rather gay over the remarkable discovery—From "In Kansas City Forty Years Ago."

KANSAS CITY witnessed, with mixed interest and amusement, the great medical fad, or delusion, that swept over the country forty years ago, Dr. Brown-Sequard's famous elixir. It was guaranteed, when properly used, to make the old young again, rejuvenating tottering and doddering old men and "making them over," or well again.

It was a great scheme while it lasted, a beautiful dream. Senile folk hailed the discovery with paeans of joy. The elixir was along the modern line—monkey glands, goat glands, sheep glands and frog glands—we now hear so much about.

Decrepit men and women, of ample wealth, were willing to pay almost any price to make them twenty or thirty years younger, or restore them to normal health. There were lots of "Daddy" Brownings in those golden days and they laid siege to Dr. Brown-Sequard, offering him almost fabulous fees to take their cases immediately. No Argonaut seekers of the golden fleece worked harder, and, incidentally, it was a golden fleece for this smooth Parisian doctor, born in 1818 in the British island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. He was described as a French-American neurologist, his father having been born in Philadelphia. His mother was a French woman of the name of Sequard. The son acquired the degree of M. D. in Paris in 1842 and, later, spent much time in England and this country investigating and lecturing.

His Contributions to Science.

His contributions to our knowledge of blood and animal heat, as well as that of the spinal cord and the nervous system, were of the highest importance. Dr. Brown-Sequard was the first to demonstrate that the decussation of the sensory conductors is in the spinal cord itself.

From 1864 to 1868 he was professor of physiology and pathology of the nervous system in Harvard college. In 1869 he was appointed professor of experiments and comparative physiology in Paris. He was the founder and editor of the Journal de Physiologie there and, later, established the Archives de la Physiologie. In 1873-78 he practiced his profession in New York and, with Dr. E. C. Sequin, published Archives of Scientific and Practical Medicine. In 1878 he succeeded Claude Bernard as professor of experimental medicine at the College de France, Paris. He delivered public lectures there and also in this country, when he returned here later.

Not a Mere Charlatan.

These details are given to show his splendid background. He was no mere charlatan. There wasn't the least sign of a medical quack or empiricist in his make-up. The American public, as well as most of his profession, placed full confidence in him when, in 1889, at the mature age of 71, he blazoned forth the news of his great discovery, that, after a series of experiments on himself, he found that the right way of prolonging and invigorating human life was the use of a hypodermic injection of a fluid in which sheep glands had been macerated. And forthwith it was called the Brown-Sequard Elixir, destined to arrest the advance of age.

Dr. Brown-Sequard's hotel was besieged by callers. "Don't crowd there. Form in line and turn to the right." It was a gullible age and they swallowed almost everything, including 1 million dollars of stock in Keely's famous Philadelphia "perpetual motion" fake.

Dr. Brown-Sequard's lecture tour brought him to Kansas City for one day. Mayor Davenport proudly remarked that he "didn't need any of the Brown-Sequard dope," and evidently he certainly didn't. Alderman Faxon, head of a wholesale drug house, said he was willing to carry it in stock. Later, the City hospital authorities announced they had made a successful gland experiment, but it was never proven.

Elixir Became the Rage.

People began to study the exact meaning of "elixir." In pharmacy, elixirs are aromatic, sweetish, spirituous preparations, containing small quantities of active medicinal drugs—some are bitter vegetable substances in spirits of wine. Pages of definitions, with many big words, may be found in the encylopedias. Although all the rage forty years ago, elixirs now are not so good, at least from the medical viewpoint. Many learned doctors even scouted and assailed the use of them in 1889, saying it was only a passing fad. And now they'll tell you they mostly are used as vehicles and have little power save that of the alcohol which they contain, or did before prohibition days. Elixir aromaticum and elixir phosphate are two sanctioned in a former "Revision of the United States Pharmacopeia."

"Gland" is a broad medical term applied to a secretory organ. There are pituitary glands and the larger ones, liver, kidney, pancreas, spleen, etc. Glands are divided into two great classes: true secreting glands and ductless glands.

Couldn't Stand the Jests.

Leading newspapers, magazines, scientists and physicians began poking fun at the Brown-Sequard elixir, although not impeaching the integrity or sincerity of Dr. Brown-Sequard himself. The noted elixir became a standing jest of the few "colyumists" then and playful references to it often cropped out in various vaudeville skits. Some able preachers satirized it.

All this cut him to the quick, for he was a sensitive man and, soon after, he suddenly dropped the whole business and went back to Paris. He never used the term elixir. He said he expected to live to be 100, but he fooled himself by dying on April 1, 1894, five years later. Although the distinguished doctor died a disappointed old man, his funeral there was a large one, marked with high honors.

And now, a generation later, the same old "Restoration of Youth" bobs up. Well, we are living in a wonderful age and anything seems possible. The radio has opened wide the doors.

THREE MILLION CHICAGOANS PAY TRIBUTE TO RACKETEERS

Threats, Terrorism and Murder Are Potent "Arguments"—and More Than Ninety Lines of Business Enterprise Supinely Submit to Organized Criminal Extortion.

Racketeering, a system of criminal exploitation based on extortion, controlled by hoodlums and decorated with ice cold murder, has arisen in the last five or six years to seize the ordinary Chicagoan by the pocketbook if not the throat.

Very few persons in Chicago or out of it realize that the ordinary citizen is paying literal tribute to racketeers. This tribute is levied in many ways. The ordinary citizen pays it, like as not, whenever he has a suit pressed and every time he gets a haircut; he may pay it in the plumbing in his house and the garaging of his car; the very garbage behind his back door may perhaps mean spoils for someone.

A RACKET may be defined as any scheme of exploitation by which criminal conspirators live upon the industry of others, maintaining their hold by intimidation, terrorism, or political favoritism. The word "racket" has come to be loosely synonymous, on the one hand, with any scheme for making easy money, whether illegal or not; on the other, as a blanket definition of organized crime.

All gangsters, without discrimination, have come to be called racketeers. Beer and alcohol running or, for that matter, bank robbery and white slavery, are rackets from this point of view. But in this article, says John Gunther in Harper's Magazine, I confine myself to the less known activities of business racketeers.

How the Racket Works.

What does a racketeer do? How does a racket work?

Suppose I happen to be a hoodlum, and suppose I want some easy money. I have friends among crooked labor leaders and perhaps among politicians. I am in a position to hire thugs and gunmen. I form an organization and I choose a field. Suppose I choose pretzels as a field. I then "invite" the pretzel dealers in Chicago to "join" me. From each of them I demand, say, $100 per month. For this sum my men will "protect" them from competition, since they must raise their prices to pay my $100.

If any pretzel man refuses to join me I bomb him. I slug his drivers. I cut off his supply. Meantime I delimit the pretzel market among my dealers and make anyone who wants to enter the pretzel business pay me handsomely first. I extend my pretzel monopoly in one direction to the big wholesalers (since I control the dealers), and in another direction to the small shopkeepers (since I control the jobbers). And from all of them I exact tribute.

The price of pretzels meantime goes up. Simply because I say so, the pretzel people pay a levy to me, and the consumer pays the levy. This is the essence of racketeering—simple extortion based on simple threat.

"Racket" and "Racketeer."

The word "racket" originated in Chicago six or seven years ago. In the neighborhood of Twelfth and Halsted streets, in the district of "alky" peddlers, thugs and hoodlums, a group of satellites grew up, hanging on the outskirts of the great "mobs"—the O'Banion "mob," the Genna "mob," the Capone "mob." These satellites were not often actual killers. They were parasites. With gangster protection they went into "business."

At first the word describing them was "racketer." In newspaper stories of 1923 and 1924 the word grew to "racketeer." Probably it first referred to the hullabaloo in the "joints" where gangsters assembled. "How's the racket?" became "What's your racket?"

Rackets are, of course, old as the hills. This decade holds no monopoly on extortion. But extortion has rarely reached such a point of development as distinguishes the Chicago rackets today. It would be difficult to trace the exact cause of this efflorescence. Prohibition was certainly one cause. Traffic in beer and whisky enormously increased the amount of easy money in circulation among hoodlums. Gangsters became elaborate spendthrifts. Silver caskets decorated funerals. Politics bought into gangs. Meantime the booze traffic increased the number of professional criminals at large, and their power, ruthlessness and immunity to law.

So the rackets began out of criminality begot by alcohol and easy money. The success of racketeering was immense. It existed through contempt of law and, as success increased, contempt increased, to give way to more success.

Gangsters saw that there was almost as much money in coats and suits as there was in alcohol; gangsters "muscled in" to various rackets. Politicians saw the enormous sums being made and took their share of this citizens' tribute.

Exploiting Labor Unions.

Since racketeering is based on business, it came into early contact with labor. Racketeering sucked into labor, living like a leech on its own wound. The argument of the racketeer to the business man was simple: "Look here. We'll stabilize prices. Today you get $1 a bundle for your (for example) laundry. We'll organize the laundry business and raise the price to $1.50. We'll eliminate competition. Meantime you pay us $20 per month." And if 1,000 laundry men joined the "association" the racket was worth, at the outset, $20,000 per month. If anyone withstood the racket, arson was his lot, or bombs.

Now, in most businesses associations already existed, namely, labor unions; so it saved a good deal of trouble to the racketeer to organize his racket directly through the union. The American Federation of Labor has, of course, fought racketeering bitterly; not 2 per cent of legitimate union men are racketeers. But the A. F. of L. is an enormously widespread organization, and racketeers did get control of some unions by criminal subversion of unscrupulous labor leaders.

There are ninety-one rackets in Chicago today, according to the state's attorney's office, all but twenty-five of them active. Some few are "dormant," it being a characteristic of rackets that they lie low periodically; often when a racket "disappears" the leader has simply shifted his activity to another racket. So the number is alway variable.

But it is a fair guess that sixty-odd rackets are in fairly active operation. The cost of these sixty to the people of Chicago is estimated by the Employers' Association of Chicago, an anti-racketeer organization, at 136 million dollars per year, or approximately $45 for every man, woman and child in the city. This is direct cost. It is a levy, a tribute—no less. The indirect cost may be as much again.

Six Hundred Gangsters Rule City.

The cost is not pre-eminently financial. The racketeer's method of action is so direct, and his operation so purely extralegal, that its inevitable concomitant is demoralization. Either because of callousness, timidity, or stupidity, a group of almost 3 million citizens is being led by the nose by perhaps 600 gangsters—and the fact that the gangsters know that the citizen knows this adds considerably to their power.

Let us trace a very simple instance of personal racketeering, and note the sense of utter demoralization in every detail in the story which should answer the question often asked, "Why does the victim submit? Why don't the racketeers get punished? Why doesn't somebody do something about it?"

Simon P. Angelo has a little jewelry shop on Orleans street. In his window are a few old watches, brought perhaps from Europe; next to them are brassy alarm clocks and paper racks of trinkets. Angelo sits behind the counter, peering through his lens at the intricate and beautiful mechanism of watches; his wife sells the trinkets or gossips at the front door.

The shop is in the Italian quarter on the near North Side. Angelo is no millionaire, but he has a pretty little business, enough to send his children to school, and his family to Citro's for dinner once a month or so; and Angelo has worked all his life to develop this business.

"Muscling In."

A big fellow with a bluish jaw and slanting eyes comes into the shop one morning.

"Gimme twenty-five bucks—quick."

"What for?"

"Defense fund," the stranger replies briefly.

Angelo knows. He protests, but he pays.

A month passes, and the stranger comes in again. This time he asks for $50. Angelo protests, but he has to pay. He does not know who the stranger is. He does not know who the murderer is for whose defense he is "contributing," or if, indeed, there is a murderer, or a defense fund. He knows only one thing—he must pay.

Several months pass and the stranger, or perhaps another stranger, slips quickly into the shop again. He looks around, growls, and takes off his coat. Angelo stares at him. Angelo's wife comes running. They can do nothing. The stranger hangs up his coat and sits down behind the counter.

"I'm in," he says.

And henceforward half of Angelo's profits go to him.

This is the simplest form of "muscling in" racket. Crudely stated, it expresses the first stage of every racket; perhaps a trifle dramatized, it denotes the essential psychological relation, based on extortion plus threat, between racketeer and racketee.

Without Recourse.

What could Angelo have done?

If he refused payment of any of the "collections" his windows might have been smashed or his shop bombed. A cheap powder bomb costs only $50. The first bomb would have been a light one, a sort of valentine. If Angelo still refused payment the next bomb might be heavier. And so on until he paid.

Suppose Angelo had said: "I will go to the state's attorney's office and ask protection."

He might have gone to the state's attorney's office (in the old days) and he might have got protection—provided Angelo's enemy hadn't happened to be rather a good friend of someone in the old state's attorney's office.

Suppose Angelo had said: "I will report you to the police."

This is, of course, laughable. If he got to the police station he might just possibly find some officer who was was not a friend of his enemy; but the chances are much better that Angelo would know the penalty for "squealing" far too well to risk the trip.

All racketeers, in other words, are literally gods of the machine—and their victims are fatalists, necessarily.

Rackets, in general, are of two kinds, the simple simon-pure racket and the collusive agreement racket. The simple racket is an individual enterprise in which a single extortionist gets control of a limited business. The collusive racket is one based on agreement with crooked labor leaders or crooked politicians.

It is a long cry from the petty brigandage of a simon-pure racketeer in garbage or florist shops to the exalted operations of some of the building trades rackets—wherein architects have testified that they included in their specifications an item of 1 per cent of the total building costs for "graft"—but both are rackets.

HOOPEE IN THE VILLAGE

SUCCESSFUL PARTY CONSISTS OF WRECKING HOST'S HOUSE.

e Hollywood Magnates Who issed Their Fun When Young Play Like Rough Boys on Halloween.

By MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., Sept. 25.—The estion most often asked about this lage is: "Just how do they make oopee?"

The answer is: In various ways. t an extract from a letter de- ribing a village party and written a friend of mine gives some faint s of the playful spirit of movie- d in its moments of relaxation.

shall call the host "X," and if t doesn't remind you too much your algebra days you will prob- y be interested in this first-hand count of Hollywood whoopee.

The participant writes:

"When we first came over here y gave a party for us. It was at home of Mr. X and the entire was invited. X has a very fine me, furnished with exquisite taste, d his cellar is of the best. It was rdly the setting for a Hollywood rty.

"The evening was spent in dial- the 'phone upstairs so that the one downstairs would ring and would be called to the 'phone three es in every five minutes; in fight- and incidentally smashing things ; in pouring water from glasses, en pitchers, and finally buckets on yone who was not watching.

"You were safe nowhere in the m, because there are balconies d corners and always somebody s sneaking up and drenching you til everyone in the place was pping water and the carpets were of sight in the deluge.

"This was very hard on suits, and chap had made the mistake of aring a new suit, into the pockets which they smeared cheese and ar while he wasn't looking.

Doors were torn from hinges. ere were more fights. Through all s X was directing, getting the boys ether to sing around the piano, king everybody turn somersaults, ng dance routines and supervising water throwing.

"Finally all the lights in the house nt out. In the moonlight that e in through the great windows could see a shape moving under watery rug.

he lights were quickly turned on it was found to be Y under the -Y who runs one of the largest cerns in the industry. He said he playing ghost. Y then conceived idea of breaking all the windows, X, our host, put everyone out.

"The prize trick of the evening con- ed of taking six very fine bottles of mpagne and putting vinegar in m. It cost X more than $200 to e his home repaired afterward. He been very careful since then om he invites there."

f you think that Halloween pranks passed out with childhood, you've never visited the village.

When the last sentence is passed on drama for the world's edification and entertainment, the genties who make it revert to small boys.

The only explanation lies in the fact that these men were not making college whoopee when others of their generation were so engaged. The freshman and sophomore feuds, the hazing, the rushes, all the zestful and destructive and silly outlawry of the youth in school, is enjoyed by youths who get to school.

The majority of makers of this motion picture industry were working during those years when others were making collegiate whoopee in the halls of alma mater.

As a result, men with bank accounts which they cannot really believe ride about in fabulously expensive cars, rob the rainbow for their ludicrously extravagant sartorial effects, and buy anything and everything their eyes light on.

They have homes in Beverly and at the beach. And then, sated with everything else, they resort to the type of fun typical of adolescents the world over—the type of ebullience on the part of youth which gives parents gray hairs and furrowed brows.

And this is what makes Hollywood the quaintest, the most outlandish village in the world.

Apartment of H. B. Baker Will Be Atop New York Building.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Hugh B. Baker, president of the National City Company, has contracted for the thirteenth, fourteenth and penthouse floors of the building to be erected at 834 Fifth avenue and will build there two of the largest apartment homes in the world. Mr. Baker is building one for himself and the other is to be constructed for an associate whose name has not been made public.

The largest apartment home in the world now is said to be that of E. F. Hutton, head of the Wall street house of E. F. Hutton & Co., who has three floors, with sixty-three rooms, at 1107 Fifth avenue.

One of the features of the Baker apartment will be a great hall of feudal proportions, sixty-eight feet in length. It was said the cost of this space was more than ½ million dollars and that more than 1 million dollars would be spent in building and decorating it.

"Good Eating Promotes Good Health"

Mr. Harry Joyce of Portland, Oregon, once said: "Fruits of labor and enjoyment of life depend upon the physical condition of the human race. Good eating promotes health, and the preparation and service of food in the home and in the public eating places which insures health is by far the greatest factor in the development and safety of the community."

It has also been said by Mayor Horace Porter of Riverside, California, that "One can better economize on clothing and shelter and on other things in the world than on his food. Cheap food, poor food, would be the most wretched of all economizing. Our food being our life, we must have the best, the most wholesome, the most healthful."

Think this over, you men and women who patronize public eating places. If you were to go into the kitchens of the restaurants of this country and see the food and the way it is prepared you would never eat in many of them again. Why take such chances when there are good eating places in every community? Eat where you are welcome to inspect the kitchen at any time and see how things are being done.

We are very proud of our kitchens and solicit your inspection and comparison of our food at all times.

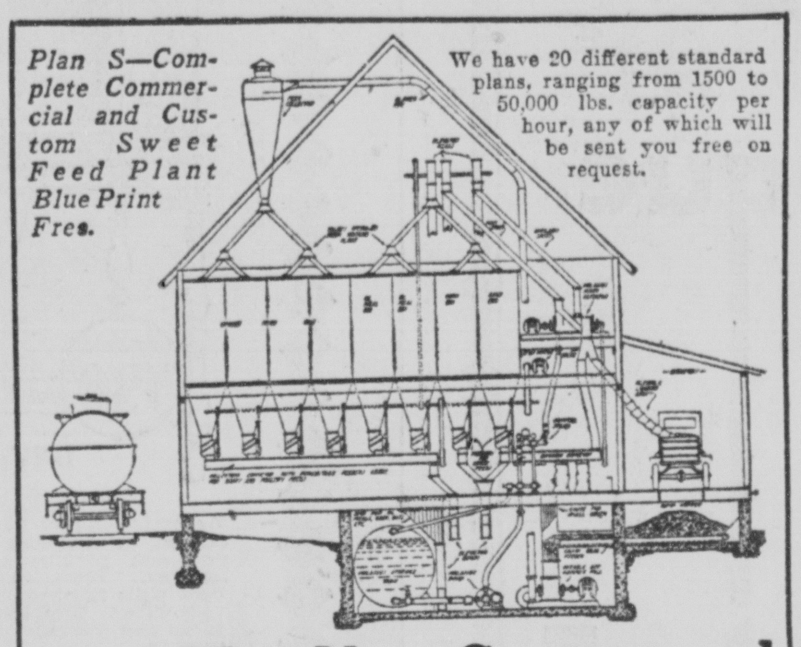
Plan S—Complete Commercial and Custom Sweet Feed Plant Blue Print Free.

We have 20 different standard plans, ranging from 1500 to 50,000 lbs. capacity per hour, any of which will be sent you free on request.



Own This New Custom and Commercial Sweet Feed Mill

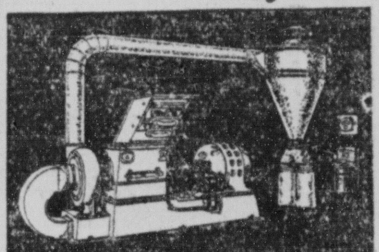
You can now own and control, without fear of competition, the sweet feed and mixed poultry feed business in your community.

This is a necessary business which can and should be conducted in every community where live stock and poultry are fed. It is a big money-making business with products in demand right now by your community—a business in which you can engage—one that is simple and easily understood.

Without any experience you can make the same kind of sweet mixed and poultry feeds that are now shipped into your community at such a large profit. You can make sweet feeds far cheaper than the big mills. We will furnish you with all the formulas for making them and show you exactly how easily it is done.

For the first time in history you can do a custom sweet feed business. You can make sweet feeds out of your customers' grains at the same time you grind them. Just think of the advantage of making sweet feed for your customers out of their home-grown grains, hays, etc.

Two Great Inventions Make the Miracle System Possible



Motor Drive Miracle Ace Hammer Mill

Miracle Ace Hammer Mill

The Miracle Ace Hammer Mill is one, and on account of its cast en bloc rotor and heavy 2½-pound tee head corrugated steel hammers, and our heavy box mill frame and box base construction, preventing vibration, is the most efficient kind of mill for grinding snap corn, ear corn, oats, cotton-seed hulls, sorghum, kaffir, hay or any other kind of feed.

These improvements enable this mill to operate with half the power of other mills, which means that much more profit. The Miracle Ace Hammer Mill is built in seven sizes and in both belt and direct motor drive.

The Miracle Cold Molasses Process

Is the new patented and wonderful thing that has made it possible for every community to have a modern and up-to-date SWEET FEED PLANT. This new process is simple, easily understood, for putting molasses on feeds without heating—no skill is necessary. Operating today in 44 states.

Your Profits on Commercial Milling

You can make far larger profits making commercial sweet feeds than the big mills, because:
1st—You can save the heavy freights in and out that they are paying.
3d—You can make sweet feeds cheaper.
4th—You can make better sweet feed.

Your Profits on Custom Milling

With an average sized Miracle Ace Hammer Mill you can grind 2000 pounds of feed in 20 minutes, and for which you get 15c per hundred, or $3.00; then if your customer wants, say, 25% molasses on this feed, you will make $5.00 on this sale; then this 2500 pounds of feed is to be mixed together, for which you will get 10c per hundred, or $2.50, making a total of $10.50 profit for your 20 minutes' work—and it is all done at the same time.

With a large size plant, operating most of the day, it is possible to make a profit of $150 per day. No other legitimate business within reach of the average man can offer such profits as this new sweet feed business.

The Miracle Cold Molasses Process is the greatest invention and the most forward step ever made in feed making. It now enables every community to have its own sweet feed plant.

Needed in Every Community

There is nothing in community life that is needed so much as a community feed mill. It will add thousands of dollars to the wealth of the community in the saving of high milling costs and freight rates.

With the Miracle Ace Hammer Mill and the Miracle Cold Molasses Process you can duplicate any mixed feed sold in your community. There is no mystery about it. No business is easier to learn—no other business offers such large returns to the man of moderate capital.

This is your opportunity to be at the head of a business which you will be proud to own and which will be a credit to your town and county.

SPEAKING THE PUBLIC MIND

Has Seen No Liquor in Kansas.

Topeka—To The Star: I heartily indorse The Star's editorial, "Kansas—There She Stands," in which there was emphasized the falsity of views attempting to show this state is wet. I think Mr. House merely tries to be "different," and the only way to be different in Kansas is to be against prohibition.

I was born in Kansas and have lived most of my life near the state capital. For twenty-one years I have lived within two blocks of the state house. In 1880 and 1881 I helped in getting over the prohibition legislation. I saw Governor St. John sign the bill and gave the pen he used to the president of the W. C. T. U.

I have not seen a drunken man in all these years. Of course, there have been drunken people, but not where I was. I think Governor Reed is doing fine work and every loyal citizen should come to his aid as he moves to enforce the prohibition law.

MRS. FRED J. HILL.

The East Gets Into Farm Relief.

Hoboken, N. J.—To The Star: Eastern politicians profess belief in farmers' co-operative selling associations and direct selling. But Newark, N. J., closed the farmers' parking place, where one could buy fresh produce from wagons; sold the land, and built a monumental market with every modern convenience, including more uniformed ushers than customers, and sky-high stall rentals that few can pay.

This annual deficit, of course, is Newark's contribution to the aid of farmers and not to provide soft berths for political workers. New York City closed her farmer markets and recently dedicated a 17-million-dollar Bronx market.

C. SOUTHARD HULBERT.

Rough Going at the City End of a Highway.

Lees Summit, Mo.—To The Star: Your timely editorial on highways entering Kansas City has been read with much interest. Most of us who use U. S. highway No. 50 leading into Kansas City would be much benefited by a widening of that roadway, eliminating the hazard at the Frisco underpass and the Toonerville trolley.

While the entrance of the highway into the city is unsatisfactory, its route through a good part of the city is abominable. Missing the Swope Park street car tracks is the first incentive to a series of unfavorable moments. You feel that your car will need new springs immediately. You then travel on Swope parkway, which is rougher than any heavily used county road, meet delay at Prospect, where cars are parked in such a manner as to leave only a single roadway, and encounter more rough pavement until finally the crossing of the Marlborough street car line gives you another jolt. Only when you reach Forty-eighth street and the Paseo, after two miles of most disagreeable driving, do you come to a pavement which compares with the state highway.

Kansas City should be interested in maintaining this highway through the city in such condition it not only will give tourists a good impression but will make those of us who frequently come to town feel that our trade really is appreciated.

W. A. JOHNSON.

Other Cities Are on Their Toes.

To The Star: Kansas City is on the big map, even though a Boston clerk insisted on spelling Kansas with a C. Outside interests and capital are looking for opportunities to throw billions into development and are forcing Kansas City's hand; for they recognize this city's geographical and business possibilities as never before and are forcing us out of our past lethargy and small-town, self-satisfied notions; compelling us to get up and get somewhere in the "big ring."

In swinging around the eastern circle of big cities the traveler almost is staggered at the scale of bigness and performance. Money is no object. It is carpe diem, seize the day, the opportunity. It is up to Kansas City to seize her day, for opportunity in these times waits for no city. Progress can be made here only as it is made elsewhere, by consolidation of civic interest, co-operative action, by pushing to the rear and keeping there all small town stuff.

The public trend throughout the country is to compel political government to make cities better and more attractive as places to live in. And the group here that will heed this trend and play up Kansas City first in its policies, platforms and performances is the group that will win popular favor in the end.

JOSEPH MEINRATH.

A Kansas City Exhibition Building.

To The Star: I noticed in The Star the picture of the new St. Louis exhibition building. Could we not have the same here in Kansas City? There is wealth here, plenty of it. Why not interest our philanthropists and public minded men of means to make such a worthy contribution to the city. Kansas City should not be backward. Just now it stands at the brink of true greatness. Make it a real, live, up-to-date center.

A BOOSTER.

Defining the Junior College Spirit.

To The Star: It has been said that Junior college has no school spirit. This is incorrect. There is a school spirit among the students, although it is of a kind that does not attract much attention. There is a kind of school spirit that does not express itself in yelling at athletic contests, a kind that does not concern itself entirely with extracurricular activities. Of this type of spirit Junior college has a good share.

It is the kind of school spirit that causes the memory of happy days to linger in after years. It is a spirit which, like genuine affection, does not demand perfection in its object. It is a quiet, unostentatious spirit, which can never be fully expressed by any amount of shouting.

MANUEL SPACK.

Stumped!

The concert at the village hall was a great success, and no turn was more popular than the conjurer from town.

For his assistant he chose a man of the "country bumpkin" type, of whom he made great fun. But the countryman got his own back when it came to producing rabbits.

"I am now," announced the conjurer, "going to produce a rabbit from this gentleman's inside jacket pocket."

The other grinned broadly.

"That'll be a miracle," he said; "I've got a ferret in there."

THE NEW SIZE CURRENCY GROWS IN FAVOR AS OLD DISAPPEARS

Bankers and Others Who Handle Large Volume of Money Generally Find the Smaller Bills Easier to Handle and Fear No Wave of Counterfeiting.

KANSAS CITY bank tellers, paying cashiers, theater cashiers and others who handle a large volume of money pprove the new small size currency. fter two months most of them be- eve the reduction in size has made andling of currency easier and more onvenient.

Few agree with the statements of ouis A. Hill, former director of the ederal bureau of printing and en- raving, who recently denounced the ew paper money as "the poorest, heapest and most dangerous issue United States currency in history."

Mrs. Gordon Koch, one of the five ollection tellers of the Kansas City ower and Light Company, says she njoys handling the new currency. rs. Koch says practically every cus- omer is pleased to receive a small ll instead of a large one when hange is made.

Mrs. Martha Corum, a cashier at e Forum Cafeteria, 1220 Grand ave- ue, is another who prefers to handle e small size currency, and finds ost customers feel the same way.

Beulah Hall Sims, Newman theater ashier, has found the small size cur- ency easier to handle when she is ushed by a line of impatient theater- oers. She says customers often ex- ress a preference for small bills.

Officials of Kansas City banking stitutions do not believe the new urrency is more easily counterfeited d do not find it more difficult to andle. None have found it neces- ry to install new money drawers or ther equipment because of the maller size. A few, however, agree th Mr. Hill that the quality of per used may be inferior although e new currency has not been in use sufficient length of time to enable em to pass judgment on the quality the paper stock, they say.

Hill's denouncement of the new rrency was in a letter to the sen- e committee on banking and cur- ncy. He predicted a flood of coun- rfeit money would pour into the easury because of coarse die work d that because of inferior paper e bills would fade easily in the laun- ring process to which currency is riodically subjected.

Officials of the National Cash Reg- er Company have announced that no change will be made in the money drawers or equipment manufactured by them, according to F. L. Cusick, office manager of the local distributing plant, 1520 Grand avenue.

Mr. Cusick believes the use of large size checks in the money drawers makes a reduction in size of compartments improbable. He believes the new currency is more convenient to handle and can see no cause for alarm in the quality of paper or the die work.

Miss Evalon Wilson, Midland theater cashier, sees no advantage in the reduotion in size of bills and says it is confusing to handle the two sizes. She believes, however, that the small size will be more convenient after the large bills are all out of circulation.

At the Mainstreet theater, Miss Thelma McLean and Miss Hazel Wright have found currency hard to handle since the new bills came into circulation. Both believe the reduction in size will be an advantage as soon as the large bills are out of circulation.

Miss Idris Kent, paying cashier at the Jones Store Company, describes an advantage she has found in the new currency. Miss Kent handles a large volume of money and finds it easier to grasp a bundle of small bills with one hand. She does not believe the new currency can be more easily counterfeited, although in her opinion the paper is of lower grade.

Officials of the Federal Reserve Bank find the new bills are handled more efficiently by counting machines than the old. M. W. E. Park, assistant cahier, believes the quality of paper is equal if not superior to that used formerly, and that counterfeit currency will be more readily detected because of the simplification of designs.

George C. Kopp, vice-president of the City Bank, says tellers find the new currency slightly difficult to handle due to the two sizes being mixed together. The change has not necessitated the installation of new money drawers or any other form of equipment in the City Bank.

K. A. Robertson, cashier of the Gate City National Bank, sees no reason why the new currency will be more easily counterfeited. He believes the die work on the new money is equally fine and complicated. Although the use of both sizes now makes handling more difficult, Mr. Robertson says this objection is only temporary. He believes the new currency is becoming popular.

Dorman O'Leary, assistant treasurer of the Fidelity Savings Trust Company, believes counterfeiting the new currency would be more difficult than the old due to the smaller number of designs. Fewer designs make it possible for those who handle money to become familiar with designs and will thus enable them to detect more readily counterfeit bills.

THE CITY SPENDS LESS

AND COLLECTIONS ARE GREATER, YET OUTLOOK IS NOT SO GOOD.

Refund of Interest on Judgment Bonds, Special Registration and Election Costs Cut Into Balance.

The city is spending less and collecting more than it did last year, yet the Public Service Institute, in its bulletin, asserts the administration's financial outlook is not as favorable as conditions indicate.

The expenditures for the first four months of this fiscal year were $204,805 less than last year.

The total receipts for the year are estimated at approximately $28,000 more than last year.

"But," explains the bulletin, "in the expenditures for the first four months of last year were expenditures amounting to $116,382 for interest on judgment bonds and for special registration and bond election costs, which were later refunded out of interest and bond funds. The effective reduction, therefore, in the expenditures of the first four months of this year over last is only $88,423."

The Public Service Institute also calls attention to the coming city campaign, as minimizing the seeming improvement in the financial situation this year over last year.

"The increased expenditures which seem always to attend a political campaign occurred during the first part of last year and are included in the comparison. This year the political pressure for increased expenditures will be heaviest during the latter part of the year, when there will be the greatest necessity for reducing expenses."

Percentage expenditures, the bulletin points out, are in advance this year of last year.

"Last year," it reads, "62.5 per cent of the total expenditures were made in the last eight months, during which rather drastic efforts to keep down expenditures were made, including salary cuts of approximately 15 per cent for nearly all employees. With only 64 per cent of the total available revenue remaining to be expended the rest of this year in the face of a political campaign the task of living within revenues does not promise to be any more pleasant than it was last year."

Rasputin's Daughter May Dance.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—Rasputin's daughter will dance in Hungary after all. Marie Gregorioyna, whose father was the notorious monk of the czar's court, was refused permission ten days ago to appear in a theater here, but on appeal to the ministry of the interior, the ban was lifted.

IT'S HIS GREATEST REWARD.

General Summerall Say War Mothers' Emblem 'Climaxes a Long Life.'

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 25.—In addition to the distinguished service cross and various other awards conferred for his World War service, Gen. Charles P. Summerall today has an emblem the presentation of which he asserted last night to be "the climax of a long life."

It is the emblem of the American War Mothers, presented to the chief of staff of the army at a session of the convention, which opened yesterday.

The presentation was made by Mrs. H. H. McCluer of Kansas City, formerly national president, at the conclusion of the general's address. In accepting the emblem, he said: "There is no richer reward; no one ever received or appreciated a reward more than I do this emblem of respect from the mothers of the men whom I commanded in battle."

Mrs. Hoover to a Scout Benefit.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover arrived here today to attend an art benefit for the National Council of Girl Scouts. She came from Washington on an early train.

Why Suffer Stomach Ills

When ZINSEP is guaranteed to relieve you?

ZINSEP Compound is a stomach and intestinal remedy and nothing else, which fact accounts for its remarkable success in producing results where other remedies (so-called "cure-alls") fail.

Soda, magnesia, stomach pills and tablets offer only meager and fleeting results, at best! It is physically impossible for either of them to contain the medicinal values necessary to relief that ZINSEP possesses. ZINSEP tends to correct the condition responsible for the trouble, providing more than mere temporary ease.

Relieves sour, gassy stomach, indigestion, bloating, bad breath, sick headache, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, heartburn, etc.

If your stomach is deranged in any way, don't continue to suffer. Come in today and get a bottle of ZINSEP. Your money back if it fails to help you.

WAR BUILDINGS A PUZZLE

THE TEMPORARY QUARTERS ARE CAPITAL'S WORST UGLIES.

The First of Four Groups of Structures Has Been Removed and in Another Three Years the Tract May Be Beautified.

WASHINGTON BUREAU
THE KANSAS CITY STAR
610 ALBEE BUILDING

(By a Member of The Star's Staff.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Twelve years after the close of the World War finds the government valiantly striving to rid the city of its worst uglies—the temporary war buildings on and facing the mall, the capital's central parkway scheme extending from the Capitol to the Potomac River.

The first of the four groups of these temporary buildings, in which now are housed about 11,000 government employees, was removed last year when work was started on the new internal revenue building. But the first extensive demolition of these plaster and lath structures has begun with the razing of the government hotel buildings between Union station and the Capitol. The tract is to be beautified and a trafficway built connecting the station with Pennsylvania avenue.

A 3-YEAR JOB.

In another three years Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, director of public buildings and parks, hopes to have virtually all the temporary war buildings torn down, with the exception of the semipermanent navy and munitions buildings. But this will not be accomplished without considerable maneuvering.

There are so many boards and commissions in Washington looking for additional office space that as soon as any becomes available others are quick to move in. The Southern Railway building, acquired by the government as a part of the triangle group of new buildings facing Pennsylvania avenue, no sooner was vacated this summer than the federal farm board and other government officers began moving in.

So it is with the temporary war buildings, which will be torn down whenever the employees can be moved out. The plan of Colonel Grant is to fill the temporary buildings as fast as vacated with the extra employees hired for the taking of the 1930 census.

NEW REVENUE BUILDING SOON.

With the completion of the new internal revenue building next summer, many of the temporary buildings will become vacated, and may be razed if some other government department does not rush in and seize them for its extra employees. And in three years the mammoth new commerce department building will be finished, releasing another large block of the temporary war buildings so they may be torn down.

The government is now twenty years behind its building program, according to estimates of the capital park and planning commission. There are 8,640 federal employees in rented buildings, scattered throughout the city.

The planning commission not only is giving its aid in the carrying out of the 50-million-dollar government building program now well under way, but is endeavoring, among other things, to develop the mall along the plans of Pierre L'Enfant as revised to meet present needs. The ridding the environs of the mall of the unsightly temporary war buildings has been one of its big problems.

In addition to the cost of actual buildings, Colonel Grant estimates 35 million dollars will be expended to acquire property on the mall originally set aside for government purposes in the laying out of Washington, and land required for later needs. About 25 million dollars already has been set aside for land now under process of condemnation.

Under the Crampton bill pending before congress, 16 million dollars additional is sought, to be repaid in yearly sums from District of Columbia funds, to provide a city-wide park and playground plan. The planning commission also proposes to beautify and develop in the adjacent regions of Virginia and Maryland.

In a motor car trip over the city today Colonel Grant explained to the correspondent of The Star the extent of the program which has for its purpose the making Washington "the most beautiful capital in the world." From Union Square in front of the Capitol to the Lincoln memorial on the Potomac River is to be a continuous system of parks and boulevards, flanked by groups of federal and municipal buildings.

At the far end of the mall development is the memorial bridge over the Potomac River connecting Arlington cemetery, now under construction. This beautiful arch bridge of monumental design will cost with approaches about 14 million dollars, and should be completed in another two years.

A STOCK PROMOTER INDICTED

Andrew C. Chapman Is Charged With Using the Mails to Defraud.

Andrew C. Chapman, 30 years old, who has been operating a business known as Joseph A. Cain & Co., with offices at 101 Scarritt building, was indicted secretly by a federal grand jury September 18 at St. Joseph, it became known today.

The indictment charges Chapman with using the mails in a scheme to defraud. He operated Joseph A. Cain & Co. as an industrial financing concern for supplying capital stock to firms desiring financial support. The indictment alleges he advertised he could market securities and stocks for a commission.

Chapman is alleged to have promised his clients a 90-day guarantee when he sold stock. When he received an inquiry to market stock, it is alleged, he told the inquirers he desired to interview them personally and requested expenses for him to go to them. When the expense money was received, Chapman is alleged to have pocketed the money and failed to keep the appointment.

The business transactions of Chapman reached the federal bureau of investigations. The indictment followed. He was arrested here May 20. Federal authorities say he had been in the stock business about twelve years.

WRESTLER TRAINS FOR COMING MATCH ON MUSIC AND MELODY

The Versatile Karl Sarpolis Also Expects to Utilize Knowledge of Surgery and Break the Monotony of Schedules With an Operation on a Prize Fighter's Ears.

REMEMBER the country minister who both preached and sold fire insurance, "laid out" his friends when they passed on, traded horses successfully, kept a garden and did a little carpenter work in slack times?

Well, he had nothing on Karl Sarpolis, wrestler, in point of versatility.

Karl, you will recall, wrestled the burly Joe Malcewicz to a tie a couple of weeks ago and felt so sure he could finish the job at a second session that they meet again next Monday night at Convention hall.

And is Karl training for the match? Certainly he is. Yesterday he sang on the radio and electric program at Convention hall, today he plays a violin in Harry Kaufman's orchestra, tomorrow he expects to sing over WDAF and Saturday is to perform a delicate operation restoring to normalcy the cauliflower ears of Max Schwartz, otherwise known as Charles Pierson, prize fighter.

With Malcewicz plenty able to read English it really is a shame to disclose Sarpolis's training routine, but Sarpolis was open and aboveboard about it, and probably the low-down would get to Malcewicz through some channel anyway.

Seriously, Sarpolis is somehow just a little different from the usual run of wrestlers. Not in size and heft—he is 6 feet 1¾ inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. But he bears the unmistakable marks of a university man. And he is one.

Karl is 32 years old. He is the youngest of six brothers, all living. He was born in the mining district of Pennsylvania. Every member of the family was musically inclined. It was cultivated among them. One brother now is a member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Others ran to medicine. One brother is a surgeon in Pennsylvania State hospital.

The wrestler of the family graduated with a B. S. degree from Chicago university in 1924. Then he graduated with an M. D. from Loyola university in Chicago in 1926 and spent three months as an interne.

But there was something missing in the medical game that Sarpolis found only in wrestling, which he had followed as an amateur since 1921. He quit the hospital and his interest in medicine and surgery has just about flickered out. He doubts whether he will follow it even when the wrestling game is finished for him.

Possibly he won't have to follow it. Since he became a professional wrestler he has been matched twenty-six times and has lost one bout. He believes he is a "comer" in wrestling circles, and that with about ten years of reasonable success he can retire and do as he pleases the remainder of his life.

He can sing, he can play numerous instruments, he has managed and directed road shows and he can cut off a leg, if he cares to. But none of these things appeals to him as a life work.

The operation on Charles Pierson or Max Schwartz now. That's merely a friendly turn by one athlete to another. Schwartz didn't worry about his badly mauled ears until recently when a relative in the East died and left him a comfortable fortune. Right away he looked in the mirror, envisioned himself in evening dress and for the first time saw his ears. He'd like to have them fixed up and Sarpolis is willing to do it for him.

This Sarpolis boy won four letters in athletics at Chicago university, three for wrestling and one for football. And notwithstanding his training program for this week he looks like he would give Malcewicz a battle.

A KANSAS CENSUS GAIN

THE POPULATION OF THE STATE REACHES 1,852,246.

An Increase of One-Half of 1 Per Cent Is Shown in Figures Taken by the County Enumerators.

(By the Associated Press.)

TOPEKA, Sept. 25.—The population of Kansas as of March 1 was reported today by Will J. French, state auditor, as 1,852,246, an increase of 9,651 over the figure for the corresponding date last year. The increase approximated one-half of 1 per cent.

Census figures, showing population of the state by counties, as taken by the county enumerators, were reported to the auditor by the county clerks. Figures for cities were not included.

NO CHANGE IN SUMNER.

Gains were reported in sixty-one counties and losses in forty-three. One county, Sumner, reported the same population on both dates.

Sedgwick County made the largest gain in the year, 7,453—more than two-thirds of the total state increase. Shawnee County made the second largest gain, 1,537, and Johnson the third, 1,500. Other counties in the group of ten making the largest gains, and their increases:

Miami, 1,109; Cherokee, 790; Atchison, 753; Wyandotte, 664; Saline, 645; Norton, 622, and Ford, 612.

SOME OF THE LOSING COUNTIES.

The largest loss reported in any county was 2,535 in Cowley. Crawford County reported the second largest loss, 2,032; Greenwood the third, 1,309; Morris the fourth, 869, and Coffey the fifth, 620.

Population of the 105 counties was reported as follows:

County.	1928.	1929.
Allen	21,774	21,479
Anderson	12,890	12,557
Atchison	25,814	26,567

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR BANKERS.

Kansas Citians Join Group on Way to Convention.

A special train carrying Missouri and Kansas delegates to the national convention of the American Bankers' Association, to be held September 30 to October 3 at San Francisco, left the union station at 9 o'clock today over the Rock Island.

About twenty-five bankers of Greater Kansas City left on the train to attend the convention. Among them were these:

F. B. Brady and H. Y. Lemon, vice-presidents of the Commerce Trust Company; A. G. Biggerstaff, manager of the Kansas City Clearing House Association; Lester W. Hall, president of the Fidelity National Bank and Trust Company; Thornton R. Cooke, president of the Columbia National Bank; George Young of the Drovers National Bank; C. L. Brokaw and J. O. Bjorkman of the Commercial National Bank, Kansas City, Kansas; C. W. Allendoerfer, vice-president of the First National Bank; A. H. Smith, cashier of the Fidelity National Bank and Trust Company, with Mrs. Smith; Miss Winifred Haines of the First National Bank; P. W. Goebel, president of the Liberty National Bank; Watt Webb, jr., of the Missouri Savings Bank and Trust Company, and D. A. Williams, president of the Linwood State Bank.

Mr. Brady formerly was president of the Missouri Bankers' Association.

The Oklahoma delegates to the San Francisco convention will join the Missouri and Kansas group at Tucumcari, N. M.

TO BE "MISS INDEPENDENCE."

Miss Mary Twyman Wins Bridge Ceremonial Contest Honor.

Miss Mary Twyman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert O. Twyman, 403 Zaun avenue, Independence, today was declared the winner of the honor of being "Miss Independence" for the ceremony at the dedication of the new Independence-Liberty bridge, October 11.

Miss Twyman, a senior in the William Chrisman high school at Independence, received a total of 4,186 votes. Miss Eleanor Werner finished second with 2,879 votes and Miss Maurine Latimer was third with 2,715 votes. Ten girls were in the contest and the voting was open to the public. The contest was conducted by a subcommittee under the general committee in charge of the bridge dedication.

Similar contests are being held in twenty-five other cities and towns to be served by the new bridge. The winners from each will meet in Independence Saturday, September 28, and will choose one of their number to be the queen of the celebration.

PRISON TRANSFER GOES ON.

125 More Convicts Are Received at Ft. Leavenworth.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., Sept. 25.—A special train bearing 125 federal convicts from Atlanta to Ft. Leavenworth reached here today and after a brief stop at the union station proceeded to its destination, where the prisoners were marched to the former U. S. disciplinary barracks.

Twenty-four guards accompanied the train from Atlanta.

Attached to the train at Kansas City was a Pennsylvania coach containing forty convicts. This coach was detached here and sent to the federal prison. The prisoners were from Indiana and Illinois.

With the arrival of the Atlanta consignment the new federal prison now has a population of 354, there having been 229 prisoners transferred Saturday from the federal prison. Three hundred seventy-five additional prisoners are to be sent from Atlanta.

ARRAIGN WHITE IN AIR DEATH

Pilot Pleads Not Guilty to Wichita Manslaughter Charge.

WICHITA, KAS., Sept. 25.—Bert White, representative of the Irving Airchute Company, Buffalo, N. Y., was arraigned in city court here today on a charge of fourth degree manslaughter in connection with the death September 14 of Miss Helen Williams, 18.

Miss Williams was killed when she leaped from an airplane at an airport here and a parachute provided by White for her "demonstration leap" failed to open fully.

White was manager of his company's team on a tour of the country demonstrating the company's product. He arrived here last night from San Antonio, Tex., after Wichita officials issued a "pick up" order for his arrest. White pleaded not guilty and was released on $2,000 bond. His preliminary hearing was set for October 11.

SO PARENTS WILL KNOW

THREE COURSES IN CHILD WELFARE NOW ARE OPEN.

Subjects That Will Give Mothers a Better Understanding of Their Children Are Offered at Teachers' College.

Kansas City is beginning an important experiment today, with the opening at Teachers' college of three courses in a new department of parenthood education. In the enrollment of a relatively small group of women there today may lie improved welfare for thousands of Kansas City children.

For a quarter of a century educators have been distressed over the fact that being a father or a mother—the most delicate and complicated task in the world—can be undertaken casually by anyone. And with their concern has grown a concerted movement for scientific education of parents.

THE EVIDENCES ARE SEEN.

Several evidences of it have been seen in Kansas City, in the children's bureau, the Kansas City Parental and Pre-Kindergarten school, the study circle groups of the Parent-Teacher associations and the organization of pre-school mothers by Mrs. E. R. Weeks, 3408 Harrison street, founder of the Parent-Teacher association in Missouri and a sponsor of the parental education movement from its beginnings.

Mothers who used to be skeptical and condemn as "folderol" the teachings in the new fields are being won over in increasing numbers, according to Mrs. Weeks. Some 1,500 of them last year attended the preschool mother classes, not including other groups organized at community house social centers.

A MOTHER WHO LEARNED.

A little girl whose mother had been attending the study circles four or five times offered a competent "testimonial" not long ago.

"Mother, you don't say 'don't' so much any more," she said one day. "You mean 'don't,' but you say it nicer."

The mothers are learning that if they exchange experiences about their children, under guidance of a trained leader, they learn much to help them break bad habits of their children and understand them better. A child's life is much sunnier if he has an understanding mother.

The courses opening today at the Kansas City Teachers' college, Eighth street and Woodland avenue, are child psychology, activities, materials and methods for the home education of the child and methods for leaders in parental education. The classes will meet Wednesday mornings, and are open to all interested.

THE COST IS $2 A COURSE.

A fee of $2 for each course enrollment will take care of the expense. Other courses probably will be offered as the department grows.

The Kansas City Council of Parents and Teachers has been urging the new work and has co-operated in sponsoring the plan with George Melcher, superintendent of schools, and G. W. Diemer, president of Teachers' college.

Mrs. Frank E. Dorsey, director of the education department for the council, is in charge of the parental education work for the various Parent-Teacher associations over the city. The plan is to have a definite, graded course for mothers' training, somewhat similar to that worked out by Mrs. Weeks in a 3-year course for pre-school mothers. The whole subject matter will be studied and organized, so that there will be a minimum of duplications and repetitions. Mrs. Weeks is to be chairman of the preschool department and later other chairmen will be appointed for the elementary and high school groups.

SEVERAL TO BE LEADERS.

Among those who enrolled for the Teachers' college courses today are several women who will act as leaders for the various study circles. They have been serving in this capacity before, but this year will be paid a small amount for their work, through a general fund now being obtained in the Parent-Teacher Association. The fund now amounts to $350. A requirement for appointment as leader will be enrollment in the courses now being offered, together with attendance at a weekly conference with Mrs. Weeks. Mrs. Weeks holds classes to train her pre-school leaders each Monday and Wednesday afternoon. The elementary school leaders will go to her home Thursday mornings.

"There is no more important work being undertaken now by the Parent-Teacher groups here," Mrs. A. P. Learned, president of the council, said today.

CAUGHT AFTER 11-YEAR HUNT.

American in New Zealand Is Held for Bank Fraud.

(By the Associated Press.)

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Sept. 25.—A. B. Croach, who is alleged to have obtained $150,000 from a bank in Temple, Tex., many years ago by forged bills of lading, has been arrested at Helensville, New Zealand, where he had been living the last eleven years.

It was alleged Croach first lived in Christchurch in 1917 under the name of Cameron. He then disappeared and was believed to have gone back to the United States. He then went to Helensville, where he has been living since 1918 under the name of John Grey and where he acquired considerable means as a land agent.

DEATHS IN GREATER KANSAS CITY.

Bruce of the home; a brother, Frank Homrighausen of Germany, and a grandson, James William Bruce of the home. Mrs. Klapmeyer had lived in Kansas City nineteen years.

The Death of Edward R. Hughes.

Edward R. Hughes, 53 years old, died suddenly of heart disease today at his home, 1721 South Noland street, south of Independence. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Belle Hughes of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hughes, 500 South Forest avenue, Independence, and three brothers, S. B. Hughes, St. Joseph, Mo.; J. W. Hughes, 2121 South Noland street, Independence, and V. P. Hughes, 919 North Noland street, Independence.

GOLDEN WEDDING CEREMONY.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Davis of Wolcott Wed Fifty Years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Davis, Wolcott, Kas., married fifty years, were participants last night in a golden wedding ceremony at the home of their son, J. C. Davis, 1819 West Forty-ninth street terrace. There were fifty guests, including five sons, all of whom live in Kansas City.

The sons are W. E. Davis, J. C. Davis, E. P. Davis, Allen K. Davis and Floyd C. Davis. The Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Reynolds stood with Mr. and Mrs. Davis while Dr. E. P. Ellyson read the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were married September 24, 1879, at Falls Bluff, Ill.

HELD IN KANSAS SLAYING.

Three Men Arrested After Death in Liquor Dispute.

(By the Associated Press.)

COFFEYVILLE, KAS., Sept. 25.—What officials said was a liquor selling dispute flamed into open warfare here last night, resulting in the death of C. A. Igou, 39, South Coffeyville, Ok., alleged bootlegger.

Igou was shot seven times and died in a Coffeyville hospital. Wallace Adkins, 30, Coffeyville, alleged car thief, said by police to be the slayer, is in a Nowata, Ok., hospital, four bullet wounds in his body. He has a slight chance for recovery.

The shooting occurred in front of the Igou home. Adkins is alleged to have driven to the house accompanied by four men, called Igou outside, and opened fire.

Police are holding Lewis "Cotton" Withers, 23; Clyde "Rusty" Holderman, and Paul Beard, 17, all of this vicinity. They, with Joe Lang, 22, also of Coffeyville, are said to have accompanied Adkins to the Igou home. Lang is being sought.

Beard is owner of the automobile alleged to have been used in the slaying. It was found today, its top pierced by four bullets.

Denies Mistrial in Peacox Case.

COURTHOUSE, WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 25.—A motion to declare a mistrial and dismiss the case against Earle Peacox, slayer of his young wife, Dolly, was denied by Justice Arthur S. Tompkins today.

ALMOST A CATASTROPHE

ENGINEER SAVES SANTA FE PASSENGER TRAIN FROM RIVER.

Miss Mildred Hunter, on Return Today, Tells of Experience With New Mexico Flood That Marooned Vacationists.

An exciting experience with the flood waters which have washed out several bridges, inundated many Mexican cottages and marooned scores of persons on high ground in the country surrounding Albuquerque, N. M., was related here today by Miss Mildred Hunter, 411 East Armour boulevard, who returned last night from a vacation trip to California.

While passengers slept on the Santa Fe train, eastbound, a washed-out bridge at Rio Puerco was discovered just in time to prevent the train and sixteen coaches from plunging into a swollen torrent. Several hundred travelers were delayed hours and finally were carried on the way crowded with the baggage into two "plug cars" sent from La Junta.

A SWIM CAUSED INCONVENIENCE.

Miss Hunter reflected today she would have escaped the experience if she had not enjoyed an ocean swim at Long Beach so much last Saturday afternoon she forgot to watch the clock and missed the California Limited she had planned to take back to Kansas City. She took a later train.

"When I woke up Monday morning, I noticed water was standing on the ground outside the window, and heard somebody in the berth next to me say, 'Well, anyway, we have two pears.' I poked my head out as the porter passed and was told the bridge in front of us had washed out and we were marooned, with no breakfast in sight.

"I dressed and hurried out on the high ground beside the tracks. The conductor came along then and told me the water had been a foot over them during the night and fortunately the engineer had slowed the train down to a crawl. He discovered the washout just in time. Some of us went to the edge of the river—in that country they cut deep grooves in the ground.

A STONE ABUTMENT GOES.

"I never saw anything like it. It wasn't hard to see how that boiling water had knocked out the bridge. We went down to a stone wall near the torrent and were looking at the suspended tracks when we heard a noise above the roar of the water and shouts of warning. We scrambled up the muddy bank in a hurry. The water was pulling the tracks further into the river and a stone abutment was ready to topple over. If it had, we would have gone with it.

"Everybody was grumbling about being hungry, and there were a good many children on the train. We knew busses had been sent for and we watched the highway bridge above the railroad washout pretty anxiously. It held out, and finally the busses came. They carried the mail over first, and the baggage, and then the passengers. It took three hours to transfer the whole cargo to the two funny little plug cars which had been sent down from La Junta to get us, and it was 4 o'clock in the afternoon before we rattled off, packed into those two cars like sardines."

DREDGE ON A HIGHWAY.

Rio Puerco is about thirty-four miles west of Albuquerque. A short distance beyond it, passengers looked out of the train window and saw a dredge scooping up mud and debris from the highway, which in some places was three feet deep, according to Miss Hunter. Passengers in a cross-country bus had spent the night in terror, with the water swirling about them. About fifty cars were stuck in the mud and water at one place.

The train arrived in Kansas City last night, twelve and a half hours late. There were few Kansas Citians on it, Miss Hunter said. With her was Mrs. David Arends of Englewood. Miss Hunter is secretary to E. J. Sweeney of the Sweeney Automobile and Aviation school. Today she read of dikes being washed away at San Marcial, some distance south of Albuquerque, but in the same flood area.

"Kansas City certainly looks good to me," she said.

THE TARIFF MUST SERVE THE CONSUMER, SIMMONS HOLDS

Rates Must Not Be Used to Insure High Profits to Manufacturers to the Detriment of the Public, the Democratic Veteran Says.

This article presents an interview on the tariff with Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking minority member of the senate committee on finance. It gives the Democratic viewpoint on the tariff measure. Recently the opposite viewpoint was presented by Senator Couzens of Michigan, Republican.

Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance (The Kansas City Star and other newspapers).

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, ranking minority member of the senate finance cimmittee, continuing his interview on the tariff, turned to the motor car situation.

The North Carolina Democratic senator also was asked to state his views on the proposed new sugar tariff and on the chemical schedule, and to give his opinion of the establishment of branch factories in foreign lands by American manufacturers.

Senator Simmons declined to be drawn into a controversy with Senator Couzens of Michigan, whose opposite views on the tariff were presented recently. But he holds decided views of his own on the tariff as applied to the sugar, motor car and chemical industries, views he readily agreed to discuss.

Meet a World Demand.

"Now, about this car situation," said the senator from North Carolina. "The manufacture of cars in the United States has become one of our greatest industries. We are supplying not only our own needs, but a large per cent of the demand from the world.

"The importation of cars into this country amounts to only a few thousand annually. We manufacture machines of the kind the average man of small or moderate means buys in this country probably cheaper than anywhere else in the world. Profits made by our American manufacturers have been enormous, resulting in a large crop of new multimillionaires.

"This result has not been produced through the tariff, but chiefly because the motor car became a necessity in the United States before it was much more than known in the balance of the world, and because the car and its parts are produced with a maximum of machinery and a minimum of labor.

Not a Tariff for Profits.

"If this industry were subjected to acute foreign competition it would be entitled to a tariff sufficient to measure the difference between the cost of production here and abroad. But it would not be entitled, even under those conditions, to a tariff for the purpose of establishing and maintaining excessive and unreasonable prices, with resultant inordinate profits."

"What will be the effect, in your opinion, of the additional tariff duties sought by the sugar producers of this country?" Senator Simmons was asked.

"My answer," he replied, "is that the imposition of these high duties on sugar not only would mean an unjust burden on the 120 million American consumers, but would not increase the wages paid in that industry, because, although it is one of our highest protected products, the wages are among the lowest of any of our larger industries. This is true both of the labor in the cane and beet fields. Neither will it result in expanding that industry in this country.

Fails to Aid Industry.

"In 1928, six years after the act of 1922 imposing a duty of $1.76 on Cuban sugar, the domestic production of sugar had decreased instead of increased, and in that time our importations of sugar from our inland possessions enormously increased and our importations from Cuba decreased. That is, the high duty imposed in the 1922 tariff has increased our importation of sugar from the islands, has reduced importation from Cuba and has not increased the domestic production."

He turned next to the chemical schedule.

"It is true," Senator Simmons agreed, "that we had virtually no domestic chemical industries before the war. The reason was twofold.

"This industry depends largely on modern invention and discovery. Especially is this true of the dyestuff industry. Germany possessed nearly all the patents connected with the more important chemical lines. The war enabled us to get those patents and we are now able to protect ourselves against the advantage Germany formerly enjoyed.

Points to High Prices.

"The dye industry in this country began in the war, and, very properly, it received unusual tariff protection and treatment. It is now firmly on its feet. The prices of chemical products in this country are excessively high.

"As I said before, it is not the office of the tariff, on any theory of protection, to safeguard and maintain unreasonable prices or profits. You say it is contended some imported cheap goods are mark-ups in some instances to as much as 1,000 per cent. My answer is that if the American producer's price is so high as to allow such an enormous mark-up, it is evident that either the domestic price is exorbitantly high or that there is no domestic production.

"A tariff intended to protect an American manufacturer or producer in maintaining prices that yield him profits from 25 to 50 to 75 and 100 per cent on his investment is not only a perversion of the principle of protection advocated by any party in this country, but it is a tyrannical exercise of the governmental power of imposing taxes.

Ruinous to Consumers.

"It is ruinous to the great mass of consumers and against sound public policy and the national welfare. It is a striking illustration of governmental interference with private business in the interest of a favored few at the expense of the multitude of consumers."

Senator Simmons said he was cognizant of the fact many big American industries are establishing plants in foreign countries.

"But what industries are doing it and why are they doing it?" he asked. "They are chiefly the highly protected industries in this country. I assume the policy on which they act in this regard is to confine their plants in this country to producing enough to supply the domestic demand and thereby enable them to keep up the domestic price by charging all the traffic will bear.

"I am quite sure that as a rule the plants they establish in foreign countries are not to supply the demand in this country for their products, but the foreign demand. That is a line of action which cuts against us in two ways. First, it curtails demand for American-made products in foreign markets; secondly, it reduces the volume of our production.

Must Aid Consumer.

"While of course the establishment of these branch factories in other countries by American manufacturers is to be regretted, yet it is the natural outcome of over-tariff-stimulated prices which obtain in many lines of industry in this country as compared with prices for the same products abroad."

Concluding the interview, Senator Simmons again emphasized the need of protecting the consumer.

"In imposing tariff taxes," he said, "we must not forget the consumer in an effort to help the manufacturer. The number of manufacturers in comparison with the number of consumers is very small. Even a limited knowledge of the effects of tariff ought to convince the impartial mind that in the levying of tariff duties the consumer is as much entitled to be protected against excessive prices and exorbitant profits as the manufacturer is entitled to be protected against destructive foreign competition."

HEAR OF SHEARER BOAST

A LETTER TELLS OF DEFEATING "BRITISH PROPAGANDISTS."

The Senate Committee Is Told Naval "Fixer" Under Fire Was Sent to Geneva to Resist Reduction in Fleets.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—A letter from William B. Shearer, observer for American shipbuilders at the 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference, saying "we have been able to defeat the British propaganda machine," today was read into the record of a senate committee investigating activities of the ship corporations and Shearer at the parley.

The communication was presented by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democrat, who said it had been addressed to Henry C. Hunter, counsel for the American shipbuilders.

Previously, Hunter had testified he had served as pay-off man for the ship companies in the Geneva assignment, for which Shearer, who has styled himself a big navy advocate, received $25,000. Hunter said he had undertaken this task as "merely a personal favor to the shipbuilders."

The witness also told of Shearer having been engaged by ship concerns to represent them in Washington in 1926 for the purpose of cooperating with the shipping board in the formulation of a merchant marine legislative program. Shearer, he said, received $7,500 for this work from the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation, the three firms which sent him to Geneva.

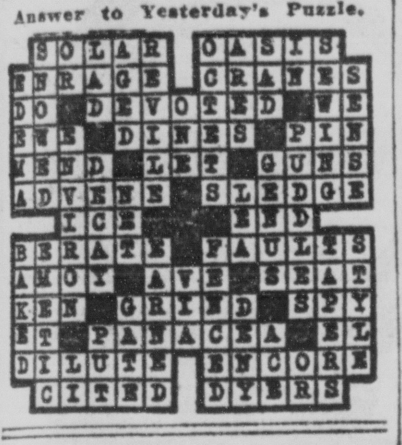
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle.



MODERN GIRL DODGES CRAMPING FOOTWEAR

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Women dislike conspicuous feet—conspicuous for size, I mean. Even with that qualifying clause I haven't said exactly what I have in mind. To be blunt about it, no woman is proud of big feet, she positively dislikes them, but she is increasingly sensible about her shoes and stockings.

Along comes the manager of a great hosiery company who says: "Despite the probable protest from the fair sex throughout the country, the feet of women in America are growing larger!"

Only a few years ago, he insists, women wore hosiery well divided in sizes between 8½ and 10. Now the smaller sizes are rapidly decreasing and the larger sizes are in increasing demand. "Size 9½ is the general average worn by women, but size 10 is coming more and more into demand."

I follow the statistician to this point, but part company when he says, "In another generation there will be little difference in the size of a woman's and a man's foot."

I don't believe it. This is merely another of the many dire predictions we have heard about what will happen to women. I have lived to see every one of these fall by the wayside.

Modern women have a different outlook on life than their mid-Victorian ancestors had. Western women have been emancipated just as have Chinese women. No longer will they bunch their toes and crowd their feet into tiny shoes. They are wearing shoes the size Nature requires for their pedal extremities. Of course, they need larger sizes in hosiery, not because they have bigger feet, but because they have bigger brains.

The feet aren't bigger—they simply spread out over the territory Nature intended. They won't be any bigger in the future, because with women's present sensible foot dressing they have reached, not larger sizes, but merely the sizes they should have worn all the time. Just as you see more of woman these days, you see more of her feet. It is the mode, nothing else.

NEW AIRSHIPS A SUCCESS.

Speed and Lift of British Dirigibles Exceed Expectations.

(By the Associated Press.)

London, Sept. 25.—Statements in a London newspaper that the giant British airships R-100 and R-101 now nearing completion would prove obsolete before they even left the sheds, brought a denial today from Com. Sir Charles Burney, head of the Airship Guarantee Company which is building the R-100.

Sir Charles confidently expected the R-100 to have a speed of at least eighty miles an hour and to lift sixty-two or sixty-three tons, whereas the contract called for seventy miles an hour and a lift of sixty tons.

"It is too early yet to make any announcement regarding the date of trials. We are proceeding with machinery trials, and hope soon to fix up the trials in the air.

Gene Gauntier, Movie Pioneer, Writes a Novel

GENE GAUNTIER, one-time Kansas City girl, actress, pioneer in the motion picture industry, author of "Blazing the Trail," a story of her work in pictures, now presents her first novel, "Cabbages and Harlequins," soon to be released by Coward-McCann.

Kansas City knows Miss Gauntier by her stage name and as Genevieve Liggett, one of two famous daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Liggett. They recall her stage career, her start as a child in stock, her rise in filmdom, her return to write dramatic reviews for a Kansas City newspaper. Last year, the manuscript for "Blazing the Trail" came out of Stockholm, where she is living with her sister, the Countess Wenner-Gren of the Royal Opera. Now comes the novel, a story of the American stage from the days of 1-night stands to Broadway.

GENE GAUNTIER AS SHE IS TODAY AND AS SHE APPEARED IN ONE OF HER EARLY MOVIE CHARACTERS.

A PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

What Gene Gauntier meant to Kansas City of the comparatively recent past can best be seen in a report of a personal appearance at the Illiad open air theater one sultry mid-July night of 1912. Out of the flickering picture came the star of shadowland, she who had "discovered" D. W. Griffith, the first Virgin Mary of the screen, the first movie star to be advertised.

She was the heroine of those who saw her that night. They had laughed with her and wept. She had taken them to Ireland, to Egypt, to the Holy Land. A reporter for The Times described the scene:

"Here she was in name and person—Gene Gauntier. The fact that she was of Kansas City origin lent zest to their welcome. But they would have felt the same longing to see her and to touch her hand and perhaps to hug her if she had been forced to admit Esopus, N. Y., as her birthplace."

PAGES FROM HER LIFE.

A summary of her novel will strike Miss Gauntier's friends as frankly autobiographical, in spirit at least. "Cabbages and Harlequins" is the story of Min, who grew up among cabbages in Brunswick, Mo., and married the harlequin, Lancelot Le Roy, star "heavy" of a stock company.

An inexperienced country girl, Min was transplanted to the theater of the '90s, where she became a buck and wing dancer and the mother of twins. Through all the years of hardships and eventual prosperity she remained Minnie Meyers of Brunswick, and it was with a sigh of relief that she cast off the pretentions of the Gay White Way to become a happy grandmother on her son's Wyoming ranch.

Miss Gauntier summarizes her own career:

"Entered motion pictures when they were very young and crude and shameful. Never was anything but leading woman—later first star to be advertised. Wrote every scenario in which I appeared and many in which I didn't. Five hundred in all, most of them 1-reelers.

MADE GRIFFITH A DIRECTOR.

"Was first woman to direct a picture—first woman studio manager for the old Biograph Company in 1908. Discovered D. W. Griffith and made him a director. Was in first company to leave New York to take pictures. Have made pictures in Ireland, England, Scotland, France, Germany, Italy, Algiers, Egypt, on the Mojave, the Sahara and Libyan deserts, and on the Atlantic, Adriatic and Mediterranean.

"In 1912 took the life of Christ—'From the Manger to the Cross'—on the identical locations as nearly as possible. It was the first great 5-reeler. I wrote the scenario, played the Virgin Mary and was codirector with Sidney Olcott. In 1912 formed the Gene Gauntier Feature Players, Inc., releasing through Warner Brothers. When they failed in 1915 we did likewise."

Then she returned to Kansas City and lived with her parents at 3000 Prospect avenue. Six years ago she went to Stockholm. Two books have come out of her retirement.

The Old Ladies Show Their Mettle

From the New York Times.

A few days ago it was reported that a woman of 90 had plunged into the surf and rescued a man who was in danger of drowning. The old lady must have turned a scornful eye on the bronzed lifeguards and brown-backed young women who were less alert and quick to act than she. People talk about the day of the young American woman, but some of the old ones are showing a combination of daring and cynicism which is supposed to characterize the younger generation.

A woman of 84 has just been married to a young man. The papers call her "the aged widow," and note that she had to be wheeled into the church in an invalid chair. They allow readers to draw their own conclusions about her hardy spirit, which obviously remains undaunted.

Out at Oklahoma City one of the best known airplane passengers is a woman of 76. She has been up often, and recently made the trip from her home town to Dallas by plane. When her friends ask her about her flying trips she replies in the best blase flapper manner that it is nothing. She gets no thrill of either fear or pleasure.

The current Broadway substitute for the old expression "That's your hard luck," is "That's your old age." These marrying, swimming, flying grandmothers probably reply to the envious comments of their young relatives, "Ah, my dears, that's your old age."

FORESAW MODERN TRAVEL.

Motor Car and Dirigible Visioned in Dumas's Writings.

Some premonitory glimpse, not only of the automobile, but also of the dirigible, may have been presented to the mind of Alexander Dumas (1892-70) when he penned this passage in "The Brigand:"

"For those who are carried onward by the hand of God, all the rules of motion are transposed, and when they have reached their goal it seems to them that they have made the journey, not on foot, not on horseback, not in a carriage, but in some fantastic machine, rolling through cities, villages and fields like a locomotive, emitting smoke and flame; or in a balloon sailing so rapidly through the air that plains, vilages and cities vanish like mere specks lost in space."

JUST IN TIME.

Irish Colleen of Kerry Same as In Story Books

Rosita Forbes in the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

IF there is one thing more impossible than another, it is to generalize about anything Irish; and the colleen is no exception to the rule.

In Kerry she is still to be found in story-book fashion, barefooted, with a black shawl over her head, and perhaps a baby wound conveniently in the fringed end of it.

Her eyes are gray, and if "God put them in with smutty fingers," as legend declares in order to account for the shadowed lids, she herself is responsible for the tragedy which haunts them.

Ireland is a gray, dim land, with an intensely personal appeal, tender, poignant and illogically sad. If it be true that its inhabitants "don't know what they want and won't be happy till they get it," it is equally true that every Irish boy and girl comes into the world with a grievance.

MAKES THEM HAPPY.

It is their alter ego and they wouldn't be happy without it. It gives them something to talk and think about, and the long-lashed Celtic eyes, peering out under the peak of the traditional shawl, or under the glad-eye hat, are heavy with a sense of frustration.

The pace of Southern Ireland is still, generally, that of the ass cart rather than the motor car. In the whitewashed, 2-room cabins the older generation, obstinate and forcible of speech, keep their savings in a stocking or a hole under the floor.

They talk of "the bad times;" retain implicit faith in "himself" (their landlord) even if they've bought him out; and insist that what was good enough for their fathers and grandfathers is good enough for them.

At the open doors of such dwellings barefoot children give place to reflective youth intent on politics, local boundaries and their own deep-seated wrongs—particularly the latter—and to slim girls with shocks of strong, curly hair, dark as their brooding thoughts, or splendidly red, who seem to have nothing more to do than to lean against the doorpost and meditate.

In the country districts motion pictures and libraries are few and far between, but education is having its usual upsetting effect. The chief export of Ireland is Irish boys and Irish girls, for, in the south, where factory chimneys are almost unknown, both sexes visualize prosperity in terms of industrial smoke.

OPPORTUNITY OUTSIDE.

Unfortunately for them, opportunity seems to lie outside their own country, and, while Ulster can find employment for all her youth in the flax-spinning and lace factories, in the breweries, tanneries and tobacco refineries of Belfast, the younger generation of the Free State emigrate to England and to America.

Hence the amazing contrasts that accentuate the changing character of village streets. In the same doorway two sisters may be watching the vagaries of local traffic, which wanders where it will, oblivious of any rule of the road, the drivers intent only on pulling the wrong rein at the wrong moment.

One may be bare-headed with long coils escaping from the bright, careless knot at the back of a shapely neck, a shawl draped round her shoulders, bare feet thrust into clogs.

The other, trim and shingled, may be wearing an effective 3-piece in the newest combination of colors, abbreviated in all directions, with sunburned, artificial silk hose and shoes which positively shout their foreign and not particularly workman-like origin.

Cinderella has stayed in the family cabin, while her sister has sought domestic service abroad, or a job in a "foreign" factory.

But the Irish family is far more firmly united than the average English one. The colleen who seeks her fortune on the other side of the Irish Channel is sure to come home for her holidays, and, with no apparent difficulty, she adapts herself to the pace of the ass-cart and the village street.

The only difference is that she reads as she balances on the quaint tray-like cart, on which everyone in Southern Ireland seems to be going—vaguely—somewhere else.

The gods of Erin endowed her daughters with the loveliest voices in the world, so that even when they are quarreling, or talking politics, their bitterness is changed to milk and honey.

SOME ARE MODERN.

The colleen we loved is in a stage of transition. The majority have discarded the outward trappings, even the characteristics, with which poets and playwrights have so long endowed her.

If the modern Irish woman believes in banshees and leprechauns, in fairy gold and the hundred saints of her country's calendar, she doesn't advertise the fact.

Deft, gentle, grave and slow of movement, she appeared in the small shops and offices of Southern Ireland a little resentful, too, as if, in giving up the old world, she had not yet made sure of the new.

But always her voice carried magic, whether, windblown and somber, she stood, bare-footed, against gray walls and gray clouds, talking of miracles, a new litter in the pigsty, or both together, pleasantly jumbled in the apparent confusion of Irish conversation; or whether, across a counter, she spoke with intimate knowledge and appreciation of the chances of Merz, Divo, and Kaye Don in the recent motor race.

Rain.

By Edgar A. Guest.

"Rain!" cried a frightened little child.
The thirsty earth looked up and smiled.

"Rain!" said a man who feared a cold.
The earth drank all that it could hold.

A woman slammed a window pane,
The brown earth reveled in the rain.

The humans put umbrellas up,
The lawns made many a bowl and cup.

"Rain," said the throngs in accents glum,
The earth rejoiced that it had come!

Don't You Believe She's Scarce.

From the Newark Advocate.

The clinging-vine type of girl is said to be scarce now, but she is frequently seen winding her tendrils around the motor car driver.

ISLANDS COME AND GO.

Submarine Upheavals in Sea Cause Sudden Changes.

All sorts of submarine upheavals disturb the ocean bed to the north of Cape Town. At Walvis Bay, chief port of the former German colony of Southwest Africa, millions of dead fish are flung onto the beach by these seaquakes, and at intervals of years solid mud islands rise out of the bay, only to vanish again after a few days.

Islands that come and go are usually volcanic and in the Pacific there are many of them. Falcon Island, near the Tongo group, was first sighted many years ago and placed on the Pacific charts. Down it went, to rise, steaming hot, at intervals. It came smoking up again a few months ago and a party of geologists visited it with some Tongan Islanders who planted their flag there.

It takes SUPER-POWER to create the Cathedral Tone of KELLOGG Radio

THE Super-Power era of radio is here! Kellogg has started it with 10 times the undistorted power output of sets of a year ago. But "power" now has a new significance. It's not for volume and distance alone . . . though these new Kellogg models have plenty of both. The new purpose of power is to produce more perfect TONE . . . the "Cathedral Tone" for which Kellogg is famous . . . to insure this beautiful tone even at big volumes . . . even from far distant stations . . . even under adverse conditions. You can never understand all that great power means until you hear this new Kellogg. Plan to hear it today.

Look for these Trade-Marks

INDEPENDENT

Ask the INDEPENDENT Man to show you the big Road Map and Atlas which now can be obtained by our customers for only 98c. A complete, up-to-date highway guide of the U. S. and Canada. Beautifully bound in leath-o-tex.

Maximum Mileage and Eager Power

SOME prefer a "regular" gasoline . . . others an "anti-knock" motor fuel.

But no matter which you like best, you are guaranteed satisfaction at INDEPENDENT pumps. Both INDEPENDENT Extra Dry Gasoline and INDEPENDENT ETHYL assure you full value in power and mileage.

INDEPENDENT Gasoline (regular) is an extra fine grade of gasoline made in our own refineries under careful laboratory control. It burns cleanly, delivers steady power, gives exceptionally good mileage.

INDEPENDENT ETHYL is this good grade of INDEPENDENT Gasoline plus ETHYL, the "anti-knock" fluid which has won nation-wide popularity. It "knocks out that knock" . . . increases power and compression . . makes any car run better.

Look for the big blue "I" in the red seal . . . the INDEPENDENT sign of service and quality.

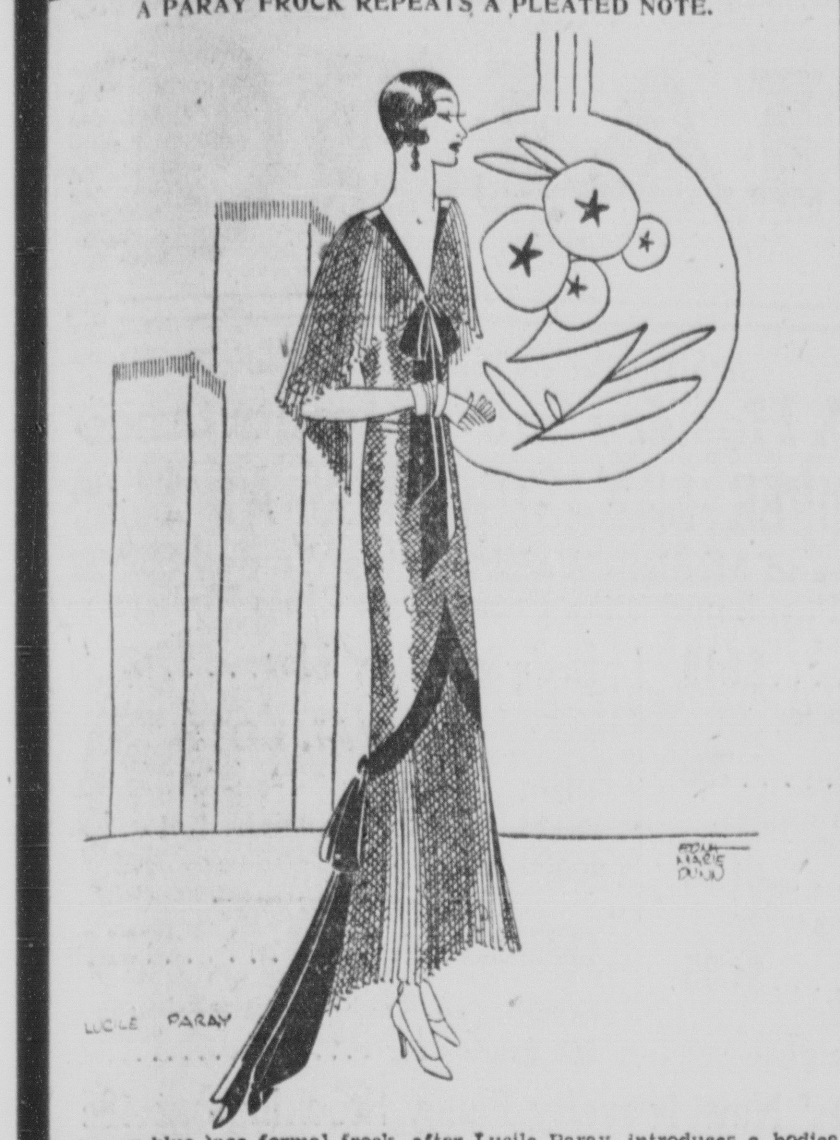
A PARAY FROCK REPEATS A PLEATED NOTE.



A navy blue lace formal frock, after Lucile Paray, introduces a bodice with a pleated cape that dips at the back and a skirt that repeats the pleated note in the deep flounce. Matching crepe is used to outline the cape and to head the flounce, the bow ends on the latter sweeping the floor.

WHAT HENRY FORD THINKS OF AMERICAN WOMEN

NO MAN has caught the imagination and admiration of the American people to a greater extent than has Henry Ford, a man great not only in millions but in human wisdom, kindness and simplicity. His opinion of the present status and possible future of women, in this machine age to which he has contributed so marvelously, is set forth in an article in the October issue of the Pictorial Review.

Pertinent quotations from the interview with Mr. Ford follow:

"American women have got to modernize their household, their husbands, their food, and themselves if they are going to live successfully today.

"The mechanical age means the comfortable age. Women will be released from the drudgery they won't put up with any longer. There will be electric power all over the country—away out in the lonely farmlands just as much as in cities. Indeed, industry won't concentrate in cities any more. It will spread out all over the country, and give men and women the chance to escape from the cluttered life of the cities to grass and trees and animals, and insure a more human and happy life for every one.

"If release from drudgery means bridge and gossip and endless sterile club-meetings, if women are released to spend their time in third-rate emotional day-dreams in moving picture theaters, doesn't that hurt us and our families, emotionally and spiritually? Are we emotionally restless and discontented, as the world says we are, because our work has been taken away from us? It seems to me the great problem of American women is to find out what they can put into this new-found leisure your mechanical age has given us, to give us a reason for living and a chance to grow.

MODERN WIFE HAS BIG JOB.

"The job of being a good wife in the modern world is big enough for the biggest woman. Training her children alone, think of the importance of that.

"Look at the time a wife could profitably spend on food alone. Food is the most important thing in health. And it is the most ignorantly handled by the women whose job it is to prepare food for their families. Food is the cause of much illness and of most dull or irritable mental conditions. The wrong preparation and selection of food menace the health of all of us, yet how many women have studied their families with reference to food, or food with reference to the needs of their families? When they do take an interest in the subject, it goes no farther than the reading of some book. Reading a book is not studying a family in reference to its food.

"Being a good cook does not consist in making pretty dishes. Being a good cook in the modern, healthful sense consists in studying out what is the right chemical combination of foods for each member of the family. It is so important and so difficult a job that husbands and wives together should work out the right diets for the family. They can arrive at what is best for their health only by trial and experiment with food combinations.

FORD DEFINES LOVE.

"What is love? It is a conglomeration of everything on earth. That's why it is the greatest thing on earth. It has more elements than anything else. That's why it is so lasting—it is everything expressed in the relation of two people toward each other.

"It is physical attraction, yet this has something deeper behind it, and that is love. It is the possessive instinct, yet that goes and love remains. It is youth, yet that goes and love remains. Love is more than a passion or a dream—it is a dynamic force. All its counterfeits pull their victims down, but love builds its possessors up, strengthens them, purifies them, makes them keener. Between a true man and a true woman it creates the perfect human personality and thought.

"Women talk of love, and think that love automatically brings happiness. That is a kind of selfishness. No one is happy unless he is doing something all the time. I mean doing something active physically. It doesn't do good to sit back and think about things and not act. You must set your thought in motion. Thought without activity and fruition encourages discontent and is a blind alley to the spirit.

"Women always want to know how they can be happy. There is only one way, and that is to have interesting ideas."

Requested Recipes

ICE box gingerbread is requested by Mrs. O. H. of Carrollton, Mo., who would "love to have this good recipe again." Happy to give it you, Mrs. O. H.

ICE BOX GINGERBREAD.

1 cup butter,
1 cup molasses,
1 cup white sugar,
½ cup raisins,
½ cup nuts,
1 cup sour milk,
4 cups flour,
4 eggs,
2 teaspoons soda,
2 teaspoons ginger,
¼ teaspoon cinnamon,
¼ teaspoon allspice.

Cream the butter and add the sugar gradually. Add the eggs one at a time, beating after each addition. Add the molasses. Beat well. Stir the soda into the sour milk and when it begins to foam stir into the mixture. Add the flour mixed and sifted with the spices. Put in a covered bowl and place in the ice box. It may be kept a month. Bake in a loaf. Slice and serve hot with hard sauce. Or bake in muffin tins and frost with uncooked icing.

To The Star: Will you please print a recipe for bread and butter pickles and one for honey cake also? I save and use so many of your excellent recipes.

MRS. P. I.

Kansas City, Kansas.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES.

8 quarts small cucumbers,
1 quart vinegar,
1 tablespoon mustard seed,
1 tablespoon celery seed,
¼ teaspoon powdered alum,
¼ teaspoon turmeric,
½ teaspoon pepper,
1 cup sugar.

Wash and slice the cucumbers into ¼-inch slices. Soak over night in a brine made by adding 1 tablespoon salt to each quart water. In the morning bring the vinegar to the boiling point and add the seasonings and alum. When well mixed, pour over the cucumbers, drained from the brine. Fill, hot, into sterilized jars. Seal.

HONEY CAKE.

1 cup butter,
2 cups honey,
2 eggs,
1 cup sour milk,
4 cups flour,
2 teaspoons soda,
1 teaspoon ginger,
1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream butter and honey well, add beaten eggs, sour milk, flour sifted with soda, spices and salt. Mix well and bake in layer tins. Have the oven hot (375 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit).

J. H. of Kansas City, Mo., wants to know a good recipe for the making of sauerkraut. This information concerning sauerkraut will be of aid:

SAUERKRAUT.

Four or 6-gallon stone jars are considered the best containers, unless large quantities are desired, in which case kegs or barrels may be used. Select only mature, sound heads of cabbage. After removing all decayed or dirty leaves quarter the heads and slice off the core portion.

In making sauerkraut the fermentation is carried out in a brine made from the juice of the cabbage which is drawn out by the salt. One pound of salt for every 40 pounds of cabbage makes the proper strength of brine to produce the best results. The salt may be distributed as the cabbage is packed in the jars or it may be mixed with the shredded cabbage before being packed. The distribution of 2 ounces of salt with every 5 pounds of cabbage is the best way to get an even distribution.

Pack the cabbage firmly, but not too tightly, in the jar or keg. When full, cover with a clean cloth and a board or plate. On the cover place a weight heavy enough to cause the brine to come up to the cover.

If the jar is kept at a temperature of about 86 degrees Fahrenheit, fermentation will start promptly. A scum soon forms on the surface of the brine. As this scum tends to destroy the acidity and may affect the cabbage it should be skimmed off from time to time. If kept at 86 degrees Fahrenheit fermentation should be complete in six to eight days.

After fermentation is complete, set the sauerkraut in a cool place. If the cabbage is fermented late in the fall, or if it can be stored in a very cool place, it may not be necessary to do more than keep the surface skimmed and protected from insects. But if one fears that these last conditions will not be carried out, pack the sauerkraut in glass jars, adding enough of the "kraut" brine, or a weak brine made by adding an ounce of salt to a quart of water, to completely fill the jars.

Today's Canning Suggestion.

Canned Cauliflower.

Wash and divide head into small pieces. Soak in salted water for one hour. Blanch three minutes, cold-dip and pack in jar. Add 1 teaspoon salt and cover with boiling water. Put on rubber and top and adjust lightly top bail or screw top on with thumb and little finger. Sterilize sixty minutes in a hot water bath. Remove, complete seal and cool. If a steam pressure outfit is used sterilize thirty minutes at five to ten pounds pressure.

THE TEA HOSTESS FLIES NOW.

English Airplane Companies Provide Passengers With Refreshment

English airplane passengers cannot be separated from their tea, even while making a hurried jaunt through the clouds on a business trip to Paris or while on a short run over to the Riviera resorts for a week-end. So commercial airplane companies have been forced to inaugurate the tea time function aboard their ships, including pretty hostesses and all the trimmings.

Drinking tea with the English is not a habit. It is an institution. When the London business man finds he has to rush to Manchester faster than the train can carry him, he seats himself in a plane and relaxes, sipping tea while en route. The business and professional men in America are learning the tonic value of tea, as well as about its invigorating and fatigue-relieving properties, but they are acquiring the knowledge in slower stages. When the American business man does acquire the habit of taking a pick-me-up cup of tea in the afternoon, he will wonder how he ever got along without it. In the meantime, the flying tea hostess, when she gets here, will show what can be done with a cup of tea in the air.

Alaskan Women Honor Pack Animals.

GRAPES IN THE BOTTLE

PUTTING UP UNFERMENTED JUICE IS A TASK IN MANY A KITCHEN.

Hot-Press and Cold-Press Methods Are Given in Detail So the Amateur Cannot Err by Either Method.

The clink of ice in a glass of royal purple grape juice—no fruit beverage has as many enthusiasts as does this refreshing drink made from the overflow of the vineyard. Grape juice is one of the few fruit products in which the proportions of sugar, acid and flavoring substances are so well balanced as to make the unmodified juice a palatable, delicious drink. It is, further, exceptional in that it undergoes no undesirable changes, such as loss of color or flavor, when pasteurized and kept in storage.

For all these reasons the preservation of grape juice is very simple, requiring little or no special equipment. Unfortunately the methods employed in making this juice are little known and as a result large quantities of grapes which might readily be worked up into unfermented grape juice are allowed to go to waste every year.

Grape juice does have a definite food value depending somewhat upon the quantity of sugar which is found in it. It also has certain values that are not measurable in terms of chemical composition or ability to supply heat and energy. Most important among these is its appeal to the capricious appetite of a convalescent or an invalid. It may also be used in the preparation of a wide variety of culinary products, including grape nectar, punches, ice creams, sherbets, lemonades, syllabus, gelatins and custards.

Two general methods are used in making unfermented grape juice; these are known as the hot-press method and the cold-press method. In the hot press method the crushed fruit is heated and the juice removed by pressing the fruit while hot; in the cold press method no heat is required while extracting the juice. By the cold press method clear, brilliant juices are obtained, while the use of the hot press method secures a somewhat larger yield of dark, more or less viscid juice. The first of these methods or the hot press method is preferable in homemade grape juice that is prepared from Concord grapes. The cold press method is more applicable to the muscadine variety.

Concord grapes must be subjected to the hot pressing in order to develop the full flavor of the juice, since much of the characteristic flavor of this type is obtained from the soft pulp which lines the inner surface of the skin, and it is necessary to employ heat to extract this fully.

In choosing fruit for making grape juice it is necessary to use only fruit which has fully ripened; that is, fruit that has developed its maximum sugar content, flavor, and color but which has not begun to dry up or decay. The grapes, moreover, should be clean and sound, and they should, if possible, be gathered in the cool hours of the morning. If this is impossible they may be cooled by being exposed in thin layers to the night air.

Grapes should be crushed with as little loss of time as possible after they are picked. While the best results may be obtained if the berries are stripped from the stems it is not imperative to do this. In home work on a small scale the grapes may be crushed by hand or with a potato masher after placing them in a deep vessel or cloth bag. Heat the grapes with constant stirring to 175 degrees Fahrenheit using a thermomenter for testing.

Hang the fruit up in a grain bag. Press to liberate the hot juice and then allow the juice to stand and settle until cold (6 to 12 hours). Strain through a clean doubled cheesecloth without disturbing the sediment.

Sweeten, acidify, or blend, if necessary and then filter through a flannel jelly bag. Fill the fruit jars to the neck and cover with glass tops. Place in a pasteurizer having a false bottom, with the tops of the jars two inches above the water level. Heat in a closed pasteurizer to 185 degrees Fahrenheit, seal the jars and remove them from the pasteurizer. Store in a cool, dark, dry closet until the juice is cleared by the crystallization and precipitation of argol (4 to 12 months).

Spanish Omelet (Serving Four).

2 slices bacon,
4 egg yolks,
½ teaspoon salt,
1 cup tomatoes,
2 tablespoons chopped onions,
1 tablespoon chopped green peppers,
4 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Cut the bacon in 1-inch pieces and place in a frying pan, heat slowly and when hot add the egg yolks (well beaten), salt, tomatoes, onions and green peppers. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Fold in the egg whites and cook slowly for five minutes. Turn over half and cook for two minutes over a very low fire. Garnish with parsley.

A Box of Candy for Her

Buy a box of candy with what you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste instead of dentifrices in the 50¢ class.

The saving averages about $3 per year per person, assuming you use a tube a month.

This modern dentifrice

Cleans teeth, then polishes them

FOUR years ago we were certain we had produced a dentifrice which would clean teeth quicker and give them exceptional whiteness and lustre.

The reception of Listerine Tooth Paste by the public proves us right.

Every day thousands are discarding old favorites for this remarkable new dentifrice that beautifies teeth so gently, so pleasantly, and so quickly.

Get a tube today and try it. Note how it takes away tooth deposits and discoloration, then gently polishes teeth until they gleam.

Note how it penetrates and cleanses tiny crevices between the teeth, thereby checking decay.

Note, too, that wonderful sense of invigoration that comes to mouth and gums after using it. The clean, healthy feeling you associate with Listerine itself.

And remember, that these benefits are costing you about half of what you ordinarily pay. Listerine Tooth Paste is 25¢ the large tube. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

SPORTING COMMENT

Pick-Ups Along the Line of Parade—Southworth Leads the Rochester Hitters—Fistic Patrons and Basket Ball Followers Will Approve of the New International Arena—The Rodriquez-Maroon Fight Looks Like Action Personified—Pat Flaherty Tells a Story.

By The Star's Sports Editor.

ALL IN THE DAY'S RUN: Frank Goodman tells of a play he saw in a ball game last Sunday....A batter struck out, but scored....It was a wild pitch Mickey Morrow went after for a third strike....Oh yes, he went after it intentionally....And was away for first base with all the fleetness in his legs ....The wild pitch-third strike, of course, eluded the catcher, who ran back after the ball. But he didn't get it....The ball, bounding high, fastened itself in the wire netting and by the time the catcher got it the strike-out batter was turning second ....Catcher Sullivan whipped the ball toward second, but it went into center field....Mickey Morrow was close to third....The center fielder, retrieving the ball, threw to third, but again the throw was wild and Morrow completed the circuit....Just one of the things that happen when the boys get to throwing the ball around.

OFFICIAL averages of the International League, including games of September 11, showed the Rochester club seventh in team batting, with an average of .283. However, only seven points separated the first place and the seventh place clubs, Buffalo leading the circuit in team hitting with an even .300 average.

Southworth, the Rochester leader, a left-handed batter, was the leading Rochester hitter at time these averages were listed. His batting percentage was .356. He is an outfielder. Worthington, an outfielder, was next with .324. Collins, first baseman, was hitting .318.

The same set of averages showed Littlejohn leading the Rochester pitchers with 14 victories and 7 defeats. He had been in 38 games. Herman Bell, formerly with Milwaukee, was second with 10 and 5. Lingrel, formerly with the Brews and the Blues, had won 10 and lost 6.

FISTIC patrons who visit the new International arena at Fifteenth and Troost tomorrow night, the Rodriquez-Maroon 10-round fight being the lure, will be agreeably surprised. It is quite a place.

This recently completed arena is a great hall for boxing shows and basket ball. There are seats for 3,000 and every seat will give its holder an excellent view of the ring or the playing floor. Kansas City has needed such a place. Heretofore there has been no suitable arena for the holding of fights that weren't up to the notch of Convention hall stuff.

So also with basket ball. In other years the K. C. A. C. team, when not playing in the hall, has had to jump about to various basket ball floors where the seating capacity was not up to requirements. The new International arena will fill the requirements of the promoters of the small time boxing shows, usually excellent entertainments, and the basket ball teams, in all but the major games, will find the new International arena court the best yet offered, especially from the viewpoint of accommodating a fair-sized crowd.

THE Rodriquez-Maroon fight in the new arena tomorrow night promises to be a corking fistic battle. Maroon has made friends by his manner of battling in his last three appearances here. Rodriquez will be out to fight his best here, he says. The bout should be action personified, a worthy fistic battle for the opening of Kansas City's newest fistic and basket ball arena.

PAT FLAHERTY, famous old left-hand pitcher of the Kansas City club, has been here looking over several players on the Blue roster and on visiting clubs. Pat is scouting for the champion Cubs.

Flaherty and Charley Moss used to play ball on the same club back in the Atlantic League some thirty years ago. So there's been a lot of chinning between Pat and the Blue groundkeeper the last few days.

A young pitcher on the visiting club passed near where Flaherty was sitting.

"Don't forget what I told you and be sure to write to me this winter," said Pat to the youngster.

"Did you tell him how to flip the ball to first base and make the batter strike at it?" I asked him, the reference being to an old story told on Flaherty. Blue customers of other years will remember how Flaherty used to flip the ball to first to catch a runner and taking the return throw flip it up to the batter all in the same motion.

A favorite Patsy Flaherty story is that one dark day in the closing inning he struck out a batter by flipping the ball to first. The batter thought the ball was coming to the plate and took a wild cut for a third strike.

"No, I didn't tell him that," said Pat. "I never tell that story to the youngsters. You see they wouldn't believe it."

Then Pat told of how Fred Tenney, old-time Boston manager, tried to get that quick flip to first and then to the batter put over with his pitching staff one spring.

"You take 'em out there and teach 'em that trick," said Tenney to Flaherty. That was in the spring of 1911.

So Flaherty had the hurling corps out one day, taking turns in flipping the ball over to first and then quickly up to the plate as the throw came back from the first baseman.

"And say," said Pat, "the pitchers couldn't lift their arms the next day. You see they hadn't been used to exercising the muscles required for that quick flipping. Tenney called that off. We didn't have any more of it."

A KNOCKOUT BY STRIBLING.

Johnny Gibbons Is the Victim in the Third Round.

(By the Associated Press.)

CAIRO, GA., Sept. 25.—W. L. (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., knocked out Johnny Gibbons of St. Paul in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Stribling had Gibbons on the canvas for the count of eight in the second.

NO SHADOWS ON FIELD

FOOTBALL AT NIGHT GAINING A WIDE FOLLOWING.

The First Game on This Section Will Be Played at the Haskell Stadium Friday, Indians Meeting Friends.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

LAWRENCE, KAS., Sept. 25.—With the field "green as a billiard table" and the moon like a "custard pie," two of Haskell Indian school's football opponents launched their night football programs last week with the greatest crowds ever to appear in their stadiums for an opening game.

After reading the accounts of the North Dakota university and Loyola university of New Orleans, curtain raisers, Haskell officials are more optimistic than ever in regard to the game with Friends university in the Haskell stadium Friday night.

The sports editor of the Times-Picayune, in describing Loyola's 18-0 victory over St. Edwards, said: "There was the brightness of a sunny day and not a shadow on the field. No matter where one sat there was no sun in his eyes. The lights were high enough to permit spectators to follow the ball along the curve of the highest punt.

"With the field green as a billiard table and the moon like a custard pie the floodlights poured out brilliance without glare," the account said.

Dr. Bert Kennedy, Lawrence dentist and former K. U. football coach, dissipated the idea night football was invented only four years ago by relating he played in a night football game in Madison Square Garden in 1902. Dr. Kennedy said among his opponents were Glenn (Pop) Warner, now coach at Leland Stanford, and the two former Carlisle Indians, Bemis and Hawley Pierce. The result was 5-0 in favor of Warner's Eleven.

ALTHOUGH it is defended by custom it seems foolish sometimes to raise the championship flag the season after the championship has been won. There will be much more interest in the ceremonies at Muehlebach Field Sunday than would be next season.

A good example of this was the flag-raising at Indianapolis this season. The crowd was small and not particularly enthused. True enough, the Indians of 1928 had captured the high honors but the fans were more concerned with the Indians of 1929 and they were not up among the leaders. The whole thing, we thought, was rather flat.

The athletes who had done the most to bring the title to Indianapolis were not there to share in the celebration. Sunday the fans can see the Blues who have made the victory possible and there will be an excuse for real enthusiasm.

Sometimes it isn't possible to have the pennant-raising the same year because the championship isn't decided in time but the Kansas City club was quick to see the possibilities this season. Rochester held its pennant-raising last Saturday. A few months ago the Red Wings also celebrated the winning of the 1928 title and a crowd of 17,000 turned out. But it so happened the team was in the lead again and its 1928 lineup was almost intact.

Fans can make Sunday's festivities very successful by turning out to honor the athletes who have waged such a splendid fight.

Boswell's Life of Tom Angley.

ALTHOUGH this is not generally known, Tom Angley is the discoverer of sleeping sickness. But he isn't sick.

He learned his baseball by playing football at Georgia Tech. He played guard and while often he slept through the game the opponents couldn't get around him.

Tom is a jolly fellow and is open for engagements to impersonate Santa Claus next Christmas.

He recently bought a new car and is trying to reduce so the car will run faster.

He is a batter.

IT is suggested that in conjunction with next Sunday's ceremonies at Muehlebach Field two races be held, one to decide the fastest player and the other to determine the slowest.

The speed merchants include George Gerken, Joey Kuhel and Fred Spurgeon. Bob Seeds and Gerken would provide a corking race but Seeds is home recuperating.

As entertaining as such a struggle would be it couldn't compare with a contest between John Peters, Tom Sheehan, George Murray and Tom Angley.

Probably we shouldn't include Murray because one day he was sent in as a runner for Peters. That broke the latter's heart.

MILLER HUGGINS IS DEAD

THE NEW YORK YANKEES LOSE THEIR FAMOUS MANAGER.

A Baseball Career of Twenty-Five Years Full of Fame for the "Big Little Man" Is Ended.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, died late today at St. Vincent's hospital. He was 49 years old.

In a baseball career that covered a quarter-century in the big leagues, the "big little man" of the Yankees, Miller Huggins, not only became the first pilot to win six pennants in eight years, but gained fame by developing the greatest of modern national league batsmen, Rogers Hornsby, and later by teaching a lesson to the greatest of all sluggers, Babe Ruth, by discipline and a $5,000 fine.

NEVER SOUGHT SPOTLIGHT.

Huggins never sought the spotlight. He was content to let Ruth and the rest of his stars monopolize it.

Born in Cincinnati on March 27, 1880, Huggins even as a boy manifested more than an ordinary interest in playing baseball and pondering its problems. In 1899 he began his career in the organized game by signing with Mansfield, O., in the old Inter-State League, but played only in a few games.

A GAME BATTLE AGAINST DEATH.

The little Yankee pilot fought a game but losing battle for his life from the time he was taken to the hospital last Friday, on the orders of Dr. Edward H. King.

He suffered an attack of influenza several weeks ago. An infection under his left eye also set in. Erysipelas developed rapidly at the time he was taken to the hospital and the infection spread.

Two blood transfusions were made Monday, when his condition took a turn for the worse, and two more later, but it was futile.

HUGGINS, THE FIGHTER.

In Quiet, Patient Way, He Doggedly Carried On.

BY WESTBROOK PEGGLER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Little Miller Huggins, the manager of the Yankee ball club, was so ill that the papers sent men to standing watches on the steps of the hospital, always a bad sign, but not infallible. While little Mr. Huggins had the strength to draw one breath, he would use it fighting to draw the next one, because he was a very persistent, stubborn, game little man. He seemed very much like Mr. Coolidge in some ways, for he came to be one of the big men of the baseball industry more by quiet, patient, almost negative methods of doing, than by uproarious executive manners. McGraw, now, has always been just the opposite. More like Roosevelt.

Considering his elapsed time as manager of the Yankees, Mr. Huggins had been one of the greatest baseball managers, judged strictly by results, that the industry has yet produced. He won six pennants for a firm that had never had a pennant in more than twenty years of trying before he took the job. He had been in office twelve seasons, so that gave him a manager's average of .500 in a game where the odds were theoretically 7 to 1 against him.

AS QUIET AS A COOLIDGE.

He did about as fine a job of keeping a still tongue in his head under provocative conditions as Mr. Coolidge did in the White House. That is, he would talk baseball freely enough, but when witty people flayed him with sarcasm, Huggins invariably hauled off and ignored them. His most difficult time ended when Capt. Til Houston, who used to own half of the baseball firm, sold out to his partner, Jake Ruppert, the brewer.

The captain didn't like Huggins. More properly, he got into a row with Ban Johnson, then the president of the American League, and, inasmuch as he is a big, thorough-going enemy, and Huggins was a Ban Johnson man, the captain's sentiments toward Ban went for Mr. Huggins, too.

The captain liked Babe Ruth and the Babe, who was then a very headstrong young man, played his influence with the captain against Huggins. Most baseball men in Huggins's position would have fallen to brooding about their authority and pride and would have called for a showdown. If Huggins had done that, then, Ruth and the captain would have won the showdown, because Ruth was slamming home runs all over the league, the turnstiles were being mobbed by his personal following, and even though Huggins was a winning manager, everybody realized that Jake and Til, the owners, had bought him a champion team.

HIS PLACE IN BACKGROUND.

Huggins, being so quiet and little and sickly and the ball players being so big and noisy, he gave a public impression of being the least important man on the staff. I seem to recall that one of the umpires, clearing the Yankee bench during a row one day, waved his arm at them and yelled, "Get out of there, all of you," and, pointing to Huggins, "take that bat boy with you."

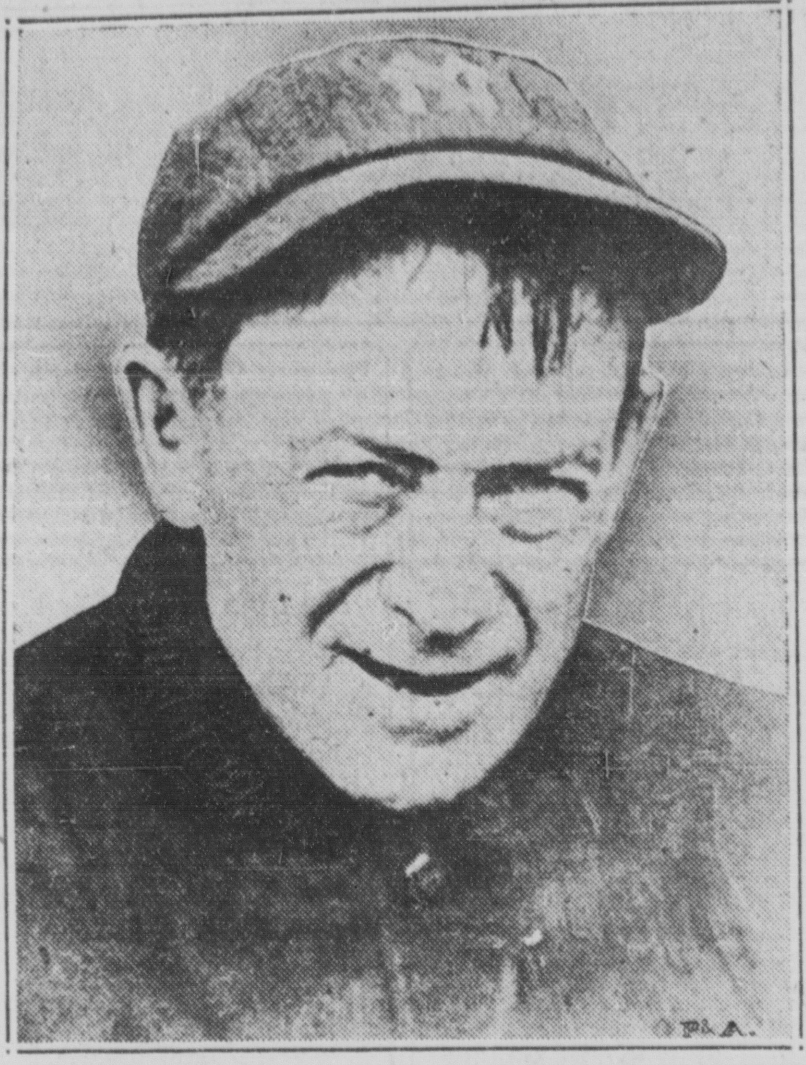
The Babe was very unruly for several seasons, and there were others on the team who, taking their cue from him, openly defied Mr. Huggins and drank beer at night. After Captain Huston sold out to Jake, Miller's life was less unpleasant, but still he didn't assert his authority for a long time. He waited and gradually the Babe's night prowling companions quieted down or bogged down and were traded out of the league. For replacement Mr. Huggins got well behaved boys, such as Earl Combs, Lou Gehrig and Tony Lazzeri.

SO RUTH HEADS FOR "FALL."

Still Ruth, crowding his luck, imposing on his reputation, and realizing that he had lost his drag when Huston sold out, continued to misbehave until there came that shocking episode in St. Louis when Miller at last, let him have it. He canned the Babe off the ball team, fined him $5,000 and sent him back to New York. The Babe, he was going to tell Jake just what was wrong with Huggins as a manager, but Jake made him apologize to Huggins before he would reinstate him. That stopped Ruth, and Mr. Huggins became the manager of the Yankee ball club beyond challenge or doubt.

He has always been an ailing man, now with teeth, now with digestive troubles, and yet he drove himself constantly with his nerves raw and jangling and he never seemed to enjoy success. Even when he was on top of the world in his business, he wore a pained, unhappy expression. He fought hard to win and seemed to think he had done nothing much when he did win.

MILLER HUGGINS, YANKEE LEADER, WHO DIED TODAY.



(By The Star's Leased Wire Service.)

LOU TALABER, former middleweight wrestling champion of the world, has been eating five meals a day and getting lots of sleep, with the result he now has grown into the light heavyweight class. In a letter to Gabe Kaufman, promoter of the mat show in Convention hall Monday night with Dr. Karl Sarpolis and Joe Malcewicz as principals, the speedy Chicagoan challenges all within the light heavyweight limit and especially Charlie Fischer, present middleweight champion, who also is engaging the heavier boys on the mat.

"Letting you know that I am in the best shape of my career, carrying around 173 pounds now like I used to handle 160," he wrote. "I am after all the light heavyweights, particularly Charlie Fischer, whom I understand you are using in Kansas City. I would like to meet little sawed-off Charlie and give him a few wrestling lessons. Would like to hear from you."

Talaber was a popular wrestler here several years ago. He lost his middleweight title to Fischer, the present holder, and failed to gain it back in two other matches. Promoter Kaufman said he would negotiate for a match between Fischer and Talaber as the semi-windup to the Sarpolis-Malcewicz match.

FIGHT FOR TITLE SHOT

MAROON-RODRIQUEZ PROMISED A CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT.

The International Arena Battle Tomorrow Night Seems Likely to Draw a Capacity House.

A bantamweight battle for the mythical championship of the West and the right to fight for the world's title is the attraction for the opening of the New International Arena, Fifteenth street and Troost avenue, tomorrow night that has created more discussion and betting than any other bout here.

The principals are Blas Rodriquez and Tommy Maroon, rival Kansas City bantamweights, whose managers have been tossing verbal broadsides at each other for many weeks. Rodriquez has been established as a slight favorite, but Maroon supporters, whipped into line by the Syrian youth's brilliant knockout record, are by no means discouraged. The record of eight knockouts in his last ten fights, all of which he won, is something Rodriquez cannot boast.

WINNER IN TITLE BOUT.

The winner in tomorrow night's battle has been promised a shot at Panama Al Brown, recognized in New York as the champion, by Diaz Tremotte, the City of Mexico promoter. The match first was offered to Rodriquez, but when Tremotte learned of the bout here and considered Maroon's fine record, he wired Nate Becker, promoter of tomorrow night's encounter, to sign the winner for the title bout.

Becker, however, has other plans which do not dovetail with those of Tremotte. It is Becker's ambition to stage a championship bout himself, and though the Missouri laws prohibit mixed matches between white boxers and Negroes, which precludes Brown's appearance here against any but a member of his own race, the New International Arena promter has been in communication with Bushy Graham, the national boxing commission world's champion, and has Graham's tentative approval of a proposal to meet tomorrow night's winner some time late next month.

EXPECT A CAPACITY HOUSE.

The demand for tickets indicated the entire capacity of the arena—3,500—will be needed to take care of the crowd.

Pete Goosins, manager of Maroon, today asked Becker to give him definite assurances the fight would be strictly in accord with the rules.

"There has been so much talk of fouls and other things, I don't know what to expect," Goosins said. "Maroon will beat Rodriquez unless there is something off color in the bout."

Becker assured Goosins the bout would be entirely clean. "There will be nothing questionable about it if we have to have the whole police force there," he said.

LIKES DE KUH-SNYDER BOUT

Humbert Fugazy Wires Congratulations on October 4 Bout Here.

Humbert Fugazy, who has captured the position of the late Tex Rickard as the leading fight promoter in the United States, today sent a telegram of congratulation to Johnny Bondon, Legion promoter here, upon signing Arthur DeKuh and Angus Snyder, heavyweight championship hopes, as the feature attraction on the American Legion fight show at Convention hall here Friday, October 4.

Fugazy learned of the match here when he tried to sign DeKuh for a match against Phil Scott, winner of the Campolo-Scott match at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Monday night, according to word received here from John O'Brien, DeKuh's manager. Fugazy's wire to Bondon:

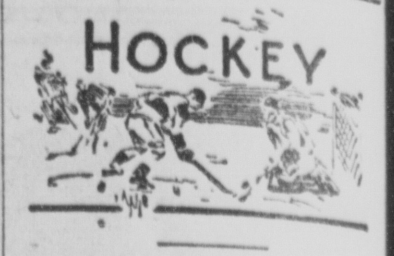
Johnny Bondon, promoter, Kansas City: Congratulate you on signing DeKuh and Snyder on your October 4 card. Ought to be a great show. Both fighters are extremely popular here, and fight would draw big in New York. Wanted the bout myself, but bear you no hard feelings for beating me to it.

HUMBERT FUGAZY.

The fight, which will be staged as the chief feature of the American Legion six states rally here the same date, will feature in DeKuh one of the hardest punchers in the heavyweight ranks. In thirty-five fights he has won twenty-six by knock-out. Snyder, too, has a fine knock-out record, having won nineteen of his twenty-six bouts by that route.

Tie for Prizes at Hillcrest.

Mrs. Lloyd Fraker and Mrs. Channing Folsom tied for first prize in a medal play in the Hillcrest woman's day program yesterday. They scored a pair of net 83s. The second prize was divided between Mrs. D. W. Snyder, Mrs. W. H. Burns and Mrs. E. S. Davis, each counting a net 85.



REPRESENTATIVES of clubs in the American Hockey Association will meet in their first fall meeting October 5 in St. Paul. Business matters and other details pertaining to routine will be discussed. There are no "burning" questions to be aired.

A special meeting for the framing of the 1929-1930 schedule will be held before the moguls convene in St. Paul, according to William F. Grant, Kansas City manager and chairman of the schedule committee. No date or place yet has been decided upon for the schedule session, but it likely will be in either Minneapolis or Duluth.

Recently in Kansas City, but now "lost" in the woods near Duluth, his home, "Bill" Grant is getting in some early duck shooting. He was in Tulsa most of the summer and passed through here recently on his way North. His mind perhaps befuddled with ducks, hockey players and eager to return home, Grant twice "told it to the judge."

Who Are These Macks

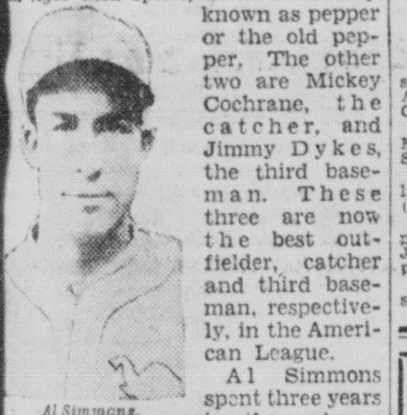
By Westbrook Pegler.

IN the matter of method and results, Al Szmanski, alias Al Simmons, a hitter with a general average of three-seventy-something, is like an artist who paints well pictures with his elbows. Mr. Szmanski bats all wrong, with his left foot planted away off somewhere, and any one who knows anything about the right way to stand at the plate will state that any one who bats that way just doesn't know how to bat.

"That's right, I'm wrong," Mr. Simmons agrees and goes right along, hitting with his foot in the bucket and busting the baseball with vigor and frequency.

SUPPLIES ONE-THIRD OF THAT OLD PEPPER.

There are three ball players on Connie's club who furnish most of the vigor and spirit, more commonly known as pepper or the old pepper. The other two are Mickey Cochrane, the catcher, and Jimmy Dykes, the third baseman. These three are now the best outfielder, catcher and third baseman, respectively, in the American League.



Al Simmons.

Al Simmons spent three years in the minor leagues' demonstrating that the wrong way of hitting was right, if successful, before Connie Mack, in the spring of 1924, allowed himself to be convinced of it. He has a young brother, Walter, a second baseman in a semi-pro league, who hits the same way, and it seems that this family trait comes down to the boys from the time when their recent ancestors, armed only with pick handles and spades, fought off the Cossacks in the streets of Warsaw. The Szmanskis had to be ready to run as they swung, which probably accounts for that foot in the bucket stance.

REWRITE MEN MADE IT SIMMONS.

Now that Al has overcome the prejudice, I suppose Walter will receive a more cordial hearing when tap day comes for him and he is pledged to some major league firm for a trial.

The Szmanskis live in Milwaukee and it was no fault of Al's that he renounced a Polish name, which is as honorable as any other, and came to be known as Al Simmons. When he was playing semi-professional ball on the outlying lots around Milwaukee as a boy, the club manager used to phone the box scores of their games to the papers. The lineup of Al's club was almost entirely composed of names like Szmanski, Cinkievisez, Malleveiscz and so forth, and the rewrite men on the receiving end simplified matters to save trouble. You could spend a whole night taking a Polish or Lithuanian lineup over the telephone and still get it wrong. These names accordingly became Simmons, Sink, Malkey, and so forth.

So when the Milwaukee club of the American Association nodded to Al and gave him a quick look in the spring of 1922, he was Al Simmons to them. At first glimpse he was not much and the Milwaukee club sent him away to Aberdeen of the Dakota League. There seems to have been something pointed about it. I think they were trying to put him in some place where his terrible style of hitting would outrage the feelings of the smallest number.

SO THEY TOOK ANOTHER LOOK.

But he hit a lot of home runs and doubles and ranged his field like a wild horse, so Milwaukee brought him back for a second look. In his first game he hit a home run and two doubles. Harry Davis of the A's was present, scouting Wid Mathews for Connie Mack, and he wanted to buy Simmons instead. But when Connie heard about Al's style of hitting he wanted Mathews more than ever. So Al spent most of 1923 in Shreveport. Milwaukee still didn't believe anything so wrong could be so right, but brought him back in the fall and he got an average of .400 for twenty-seven games. So Connie Mack decided to look him over, anyway.

"You are playing left field on this club; now make good for me," Mr. Mack said when Al showed up at the camp in 1924.

Now, after five years with the A's, at the age of 26 Al Simmons is rated above Babe Ruth in general value. But he still hits wrong—wronger and better than ever.

The Blues of Other Days

Being a History of Kansas City's 45 Years of Baseball

CHAPTER XI.

Swartzel Tells of the First Pennant Year.

AND then in 1890 the Kansas City Blues of the Western Association won the championship and baseball was the only topic that could be discussed here. In a previous chapter the success of the team that year has been told, but P. B. Swartzel, a pitcher that season, adds a few intimate details.

"The 1890 season proved eventful for the Blues," writes Mr. Swartzel from Glendale, Cal. "Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Milwaukee were all in the running and one or two games won or lost made things very exciting.

"When Minneapolis came to Kansas City to play its last series we were on top by just a few points and the Millers were second. Elmer Smith pitched the Saturday game and we won it. Captain Manning strung me for the Sunday game.

GROUND RULES NECESSARY.

"The crowd was enormous. Stands and the roofs even were jammed full while the playing field was so crowded 2-base hits were all that could be allowed. The game was very close, but we won out in the eighth and ninth innings."

Only four clubs composed the Western Association in 1891 and the pennant was awarded to Sioux City, but Kansas City and Denver both protested. The teams finished in this way:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Sioux City	63	56	.529
Kansas City	65	59	.524
Omaha	51	61	.455
Denver	55	62	.476

The giving of this championship to Sioux City met with a very indignant reception in Kansas City. President Speas of the Kansas City club "is warm under the collar and declares that the Blues can beat the Sioux for money, marbles or chalk," is the way the situation was described.

AN UNSATISFACTORY ENDING.

Finally two games were arranged between the Blues and Sioux City, Kansas City winning the first, 10 to 0, but losing the second, 6 to 8. And so the season ended in a most unsatisfactory manner. On that Blue team were Jimmy Manning, 2b; Dugan, cf; Pickett, 3b; Smith, lf; Stearns, ss; Hoover, rf; Pears, 1b; Gunson, c; Stein, p; Swartzel, p.

Then in 1892 the scene shifted again, this time to the Western League. A split season was attempted and Columbus won the first half. The Blues started like "whirlwinds" in the last half, but late in July Minneapolis dropped out and soon the others quit, so that on July 16 the league was dead.

The first half standings:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Columbus	40	18	.690
Milwaukee	29	19	.604
Omaha	27	23	.540
Toledo	23	22	.511
Kansas City	25	28	.472
Minneapolis	19	22	.463
Ft. Wayne	18	29	.383
Indianapolis	12	31	.279

The success of the Blues at the start of the second half inspired the poets. They sang:

Breathes there a crank with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
Whenever disposed to fume and fret,
"The Blues will get there yet, you bet!"

But unfortunately the league broke up too quickly. The Blues were leading, but they had only won two games and lost one. The players finished the season playing exhibition games, although a few of them got berths in the big leagues. E. M.

OINS REVOLT ON TARIFF

A FOLLETTE ATTACKS THE BILL PENDING IN THE SENATE.

nd Hoover's Statement Urging the Flexible Provision Comes in for Bitter Assault on the Floor.

A SENATOR SPEAKS ABOUT "PRESIDENTIAL INTRIGUE."

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Senator LaFollette said in the senate today "Intrigue and political influence of Presidents Harding and Coolidge had destroyed the usefulness of the tariff commission" and resulted in "tragic failure" of the flexible provisions of the tariff law.

"Harding's simple faith in the Ohio school of protection and Coolidge's New England view of the tariff," LaFollette asserted, "led to a packing of the commission with tariff lobbyists."

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—President Hoover's statement advocating retention in the tariff bill of the flexible provisions was attacked in the senate today by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, Republican, who, with other Republican independents, is expected to join with many Democrats in opposition to the principle.

Contending it was difficult to reason why the President had not broken his silence" on the tariff before, in view of his action in "throwing the great weight of his office against the debenture plan" during the debate on the farm bill, La Follette said Mr. Hoover had not spoken to indicate whether he approved the pending bill.

"He has not indicated whether the bill complies with his ambiguous statement in his message to the special session," the Wisconsin senator averred.

The Wisconsin senator said it was not difficult to understand why the executive desires to keep the "enormous power conferred upon him by the act of 1922." He added the people had seen the "continual absorption of power by the President until today the framers of the Constitution would not recognize that great document."

The flexible cause, La Follette said, constituted the "power of life or death over the institutions of business and agriculture in this country."

About Town

onesome" Gillis a Policeman Again—The Blues as Comedians on the Bench—Mrs. Leon Hinkle Captivates Diners at the Muehlebach—The Uncertainty of Religion—Charley Bush Loses a Golf Decision on the Greens, but Shows How It Might Have Been Won in Court—Goldfish and Gossip.

PETE "LONESOME" GILLIS, ex-motor car salesman, ex-soldier, ex-good fellow along South Grand avenue, is going back on the police force, and that is something else for Kansas City's lawbreakers to think about. He carries a physical displacement of about 250 pounds and we would hate to run afoul of him if he didn't like us.

The way Pete got his nickname of "Lonesome" always handed us a laugh. He went overseas with a lot of other Kansas City notables in the 137th ambulance company, th division, and, once in France, decided he wasn't getting enough mail from home.

"I'm the lonesomest man in the army. No one ever writes to me," he used to be printed in a newspaper here, and after that they took Gillis's mail to him in a truck.

"Lonesome" Gillis he'll always be known to his army pals. You can't keep a thing like that down.

We think some sort of an arrangement should be made whereby every true baseball fan in Kansas City could see at least one game a year from one of the press boxes on top of the grandstand. You hear all the chatter of the players on the field up there. You get a thousand bits of by-play that you are never near in the straight seats. In the average Sunday double-header you can count on two or three good laughs an inning or think yourself sadly cheated.

We watched the second game of Sunday's double-header from a seat between Ernest Mehl of The Star's staff and Harry Riconda, the Blues' "Walloping Wop," who at present is on the injured list. Mr. Riconda spent half the game shrieking imprecations at Tom Angley, whom he addressed as "You fat bum," and the other half exchanging pleasantries with "Red" Corriden, the Indianapolis coach, whom he dubbed affectionately "Rabbit Ears."

We thought we knew our baseball but as one Indianapolis batter strode to the plate we said, "Who's this hitter, Barnhart or Koenecke?"

"It's Monahan," replied Messrs. Mehl and Riconda, with but the briefest of glances.

That shut us up for the afternoon.

Have you been up to the Trianon room of the Hotel Muehlebach yet to hear Mrs. Leon Hinkle sing to the music of Ehrling Knutson and his Trianon Ensemble? It's really one of those things you should do.

Mrs. Hinkle is choosing the higher type of popular music for her selections, such as "The Desert Song," the popular operetta by that name; "Only a Rose," from "The Vagabond King," and like airs.

It is rare that one finds such a pretty voice and such a pretty face in the same singer. The orchestra, incidentally, is playing on a platform in the room proper now instead of in an alcove above it, and that adds to the effect.

A very cute little Barstow student stood in a group of girls outside a South Side church last Sunday morning and found herself harangued by a slightly eccentric old man who had perhaps let religion go slightly to his head and, as a result, thought it his duty to outline to the young people of the world the path of rectitude they should follow.

The girl stood her lecture as long as she could, but finally excused herself and went inside the lobby to laugh.

"What was he talking about?" a church usher demanded of her curiously.

"He asked me if I was saved," she replied.

"What did you tell him?" gravely.

"I said I had just started going to church here and I wasn't sure yet," with equal gravity.

Charley Bush, widely known Kansas City lawyer, was playing golf with some friends the other day. Reaching one of the greens, one of the men putted and his ball struck Mr. Bush's.

"Well, I guess I lose the hole," the man laughed.

"Why?" asked Mr. Bush.

"My ball hit yours and that cost me the hole. That's right, isn't it, caddy?" turning to the youth who was carrying his sticks.

"Yes, sir," the latter answered promptly.

"Now I'll show you how evidence is made in a law court," Mr. Bush said. "Caddy," turning to his own caddy, who hadn't seen the play, "I was putting on the green and my ball hit my opponent's. That doesn't cause me to lose the hole, does it?"

"No, sir," from his caddy, with the same promptness as the first boy's reply.

The caddy who spoke first was right, of course. We'd like to know the inside of the agreement Mr. Bush has with his own boy.

The goldfish in the ornamental pool in the lobby of the Liberty National Bank are an interesting sight—if, indeed, they are goldfish. They are gold as to color, all right, but wot tails they have—wot long, long tails.

There are an even dozen of them and a Nature lover stood perplexed before the pool yesterday morning, wondering audibly why all the fish were ganged together in the north quarter of the water.

"Perhaps it is because their food has just been dropped there," we hazarded gently.

He thought that was just wonderful and offered to buy a drink.

AT 78, JUDGE WILLARD P. HALL PLANS FOR FUTURE ON BENCH

The Advancing Years See No Diminishment in the Activity of the Eminent Jurist, Who Already Has Served a Normal Lifetime in the Law, to Him a Heritage.

JUDGE WILLARD P. HALL OF THE JACKSON COUNTY CIRCUIT BENCH, WHO AT 78 PLANS FOR FUTURE IN NOTABLE CAREER.

FIFTY-EIGHT years ago a young law student, fresh from his studies at Yale university and in his noted father's law office, hesitatingly entered the courtroom of the old courthouse in St. Joseph, where sessions of the supreme court were held in earlier days in Missouri, for examination as to his qualifications for admittance to the bar.

Today that young man, now Judge Willard P. Hall, judge of the Independence division of the Jackson County circuit court, after a normal lifetime of professional activity, still is pushing on. He does not even think of retirement at the expiration of his term in 1930. Although he celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary last week, he now is laying his plans to campaign for re-election.

Held in State-Wide Esteem.

City attorney of St. Joseph, prosecuting attorney of Buchanan County in the stirring days of the James gang, one of the three original members of the Kansas City court of appeals under an appointment by Governor Crittenden, special judge of the state supreme court, instructor in the Kansas City school of law for the last quarter of a century and for twelve years judge of the Independence division of the circuit court, Judge Hall holds the esteem of the bar of Jackson County and of the state at large as one of Missouri's great jurists.

Graduates of the law school remember him thankfully as their lecturer on extraordinary writs and remedies.

In the Missouri supreme court he is regarded as one of the outstanding jurists of the state, a circuit judge whose decisions have been reversed but seldom.

A Background of Law.

When Judge Hall came to Kansas City to practice in 1899 he brought with him a background of legal activity and statecraft seldom equaled in Missouri. He had been steeped in his youth in the intricacies of the law by his father, Willard P. Hall, governor of Missouri in the latter part of the Civil War, 1864 and 1865, and one of the state's greatest lawyers and statesmen, one of the authors of the present constitution, drafted by the constitutional convention of 1875. Although Judge Hall's father was a Democrat, Lincoln sought to appoint him to the federal bench, but was prevented in doing so by the bitter Republicans of that day.

As a boy in St. Joseph, Judge Hall had instilled into him a love for Missouri and a respect for her courts found rarely these days. Imagine the privilege the boy enjoyed as he sat with his father, listening to the latter's stories of his service as a private in the ranks under Doniphan. While in that campaign, Judge Hall's father wrote the civil code of New Mexico, which remains the law there today.

Names From the Past.

Judge Hall sat in that old courtroom watching his father match wits against such lawyers as Silas Woodson, later governor of Missouri; John F. Phillips; James Ellison, grandfather of the present commissioner of the Missouri supreme court; Henry M. Vories, and others.

When he moved here he already had served four years on the Kansas City court of appeals, and prior to that had been city attorney of St. Joseph and prosecuting attorney of Buchanan County.

Judge Hall believes that perhaps his most valuable experience was as "cow attorney" for the old Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad, and he still is proud of his feat in defeating his distinguished father in two major lawsuits against the railroad.

In 1876, while city attorney of St. Joseph, Judge Hall journeyed back East and there married the sweetheart of his college days, Miss Isabel Fry Alrich, at Philadelphia. When they moved to Kansas City, the Halls had two children, Preble Hall, Kansas City lawyer, and a daughter, now the wife of Dr. R. J. Curdy, 15 East Fifty-sixth street terrace. They have two grandchildren, Isabel and Helen Curdy.

The Years of Reward.

Then followed years of successful practice in Kansas City, years of friendly association with such men as Sanford B. Ladd, the late O. H. Dean, and Judge W. O. Thomas, and other leaders of the Jackson County bar. Every Sunday Judge Hall and Judge Thomas visit their old friend Judge Ladd at his home, where he now is forced to remain because of the loss of his vision. They are carried there in a motor car provided for that purpose by Judge Dean before his death.

In 1917 when Judge Kimbrough Stone was appointed to the federal bench by President Wilson, Governor Frederick D. Gardner offered the Independence division to Judge Hall, and he has been elected twice since his first term.

Judge Hall has two hobbies, fishing and baseball. Every summer finds him with friends for a few weeks in the woods along the northern lakes, and his friends say there is nothing he likes better than an afternoon watching the Blues in action. He hopes to see at least one of the games of the little world's series to be played here between the Blues and the Rochester club of the International League.

In his service on the Jackson County bench, Judge Hall has become known for the dignity of his court. The courtroom in the old courthouse at Independence savors more of the quiet decorum of the appellate courts or of the federal bodies rather than the usual rush of the Missouri circuit court.

The veteran jurist is an advocate of a reform in the state's present divorce laws. Several years ago he suggested the necessity for the establishment of a special court of domestic relations to deal with the problem. It was his decisions and comments from the bench which first directed public attention to the "jackrabbit" justice evil in Jackson County, the agitation against which finally resulted in their abolition by the legislature last winter.

STILL DEFY A GRAND JURY.

After Five Days in Jail, Gentry County Men Are Silent.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

ALBANY, MO., Sept. 25.—Five days in jail evidently has not had its effect toward refreshing the memory of three Gentry County men held for contempt of the court of Judge D. D. Reeves and the county grand jury. The three, Moses Gardner of Stanberry, Curtis Groom of near Gentry and Otis Peery of Albany, were sent to jail last week when they failed to give satisfactory answers to the grand jury, which has been investigating liquor law violations in the county.

Judge Reeves has indicated that the men will remain in confinement until they decide to talk.

Peery, however, was released today on a writ of habeas corpus issued in Trenton by Judge A. G. Knight.

WOMAN INJURED IN A CRASH.

Cars Collide and One Overturns at Admiral and Charlotte.

Mrs. Ella Holloway, 49 years old, 1603 East Ninth street, suffered an injury to her left shoulder and bruises today when a motor car in which she was riding overturned and was demolished at Admiral boulevard and Charlotte street.

Mrs. Holloway was riding in a car driven by S. A. Rogers, also of 1603 East Ninth street, when the car collided with another driven by E. W. Wilson. Mrs. Holloway was treated at the General hospital and taken home. Rogers was uninjured.

In the car with Wilson were his mother and his three small children. They were not injured.

A GREAT LEAGUE SESSION

TENTH MEETING IS MOST CONSTRUCTIVE EVER HELD.

Adjourning the Assembly, Delegates Are Pleased With the Progress—Bow to American Feelings.

(By the Associated Press.)

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—The assembly of the League of Nations today adjourned its tenth annual session. Delegates from more than fifty nations hailed the meeting as the most constructive and progressive during the ten years existence of the league.

The assembly unanimously agreed the spirit of conciliation and mutual concession which reigned during this assembly marked a long stride forward in the movement for international peace and security.

BANK THE BIG SUBJECT.

The assembly disposed of the few remaining subjects on its program by approving committee reports. The most important subject discussed was the international bank to be established in connection with the Owen D. Young reparations plan. M. Motta of Switzerland, president of the committee, explained why no action was taken on the proposal to establish close connection between the reparations bank and the league.

This scheme was withdrawn by Norway and Denmark when opposition was offered by France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and Japan, who urged this move would dangerously complicate an already complex situation.

It was intimated the United States might be discouraged from co-operating in the organization if the proposal was pressed.

The budget committee presented its report recommending a budget of $5,600,000 for 1930. This represents an increase of $510,000 over estimates by the secretary general.

DISPOSE OF CHINESE PACTS.

Next year's budget provides for an increase of $50,000 over the current year's expenditures. After the budget report the assembly heard the constitutional committee's account of how it disposed of the Chinese proposal to deal with inapplicable treaties.

The assembly has witnessed a concerted move to outlaw war and to adopt compulsory arbitration as a means of settling international disputes. In the session three great powers and eleven other states signed articles recognizing compulsory jurisdiction of the world court of justice at The Hague.

The prevailing wish for participation of the United States in the league's activities was expressed by President Guerrero when he said: "In our common conviction I find grounds for hoping that those sister nations who are as yet divided from us will come to join us."

Soft, wavy hair!

ADVERTISEMENT.

The modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant. The easiest and quickest way to give new luster and color to hair, which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place.

Here's all you do. Each time you use your brush just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliantine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight.

THE LATEST MARKET NEWS

CATTLE TRADE LESS ACTIVE.

With receipts of 57,000 cattle here in three days exceeding any previous full week this year, trade in cattle slowed up at the Kanasas City stockyards today. Excepting common grassers, which held steady, steer prices were steady to as much as 50 cents lower. Fed kinds showed the decline.

One load of highly finished yearling steers, 20 head, averaging 800 pounds, cutouts from a herd of Herefords being fed for the American Royal Livestock Show at Kansas City November 16 to 23, sold at $16.50 a hundred pounds, establishing a new top for the year for the weight and equaling the previous top for the year for any weight cattle.

This price, however, was more than $1 above the best previous sale here in recent weeks. No other cattle here today sold above $15, that price being paid on 1,154-pounders. Some yearlings sold at $14.85 and $14.95 and best heavies at $14.50. Bulk of the fed steers and yearlings ranged from $13 to $14.25. Several loads of common grass steers went to killers as low as $7.75 to $8.25.

Butcher classes, active yesterday, were especially slow today. Good fed heifers brought $12 to $13.65, while canner and cutter cows sold at $5.25 to $6.50.

Veal calves were steady to 50 cents lower, with the top unchanged at $15. Bids on weighty calves, however, were off 50 cents to $1.

Stockers and feeders found the outlet slow at weak prices. Traders reported a carry-over from previous days of 13,000 cattle and 3,000 calves.

Range of quotations for various classes of cattle is as follows:

Beef Steers—
Choice	$14.00@15.50
Good	11.75@14.25
Medium	9.00@11.75
Common	7.25@9.90

STEEL OUTPUT DECREASING.

New York, Sept. 25.—Production of steel ingots during the past week decreased more than 2 per cent from the preceding week to about 82 per cent of rated capacity, it was reported today, while during the same week last year production moved up 5 per cent to 85 per cent of rated capacity. The industry as a whole is now averaging about 82 per cent, compared with 84½ per cent last week and 86 per cent two weeks ago.

GRAIN PRICES TURN UP.

Active selling of wheat futures was again in evidence in the early dealings this morning and the market continued its downward course, sending the deferred deliveries to new low levels for the season. Continued weakness in foreign markets and the failure of North American export business to show improvement were the principal factors influencing the decline. A rally followed, largely as a result of an upturn in corn.

At the full decline prices were down about 1 to 1½ cents. The close was unchanged to ⅜ cent higher here and ½ to ¾ cent higher in Chicago.

Alexander Legge's statement at Washington yesterday afternoon that the farm relief board had taken no action toward relief plans on wheat, and at present was not certain what it would do, may have accounted for some liquidation.

Liverpool futures continued their downward course, responding to increased pressure from Argentine offerings and a slackened continental demand. Closing prices were down 1¾ to 2 cents for the day.

Buenos Aires futures were about 1½ cents lower in the early dealings.

Export business in North American wheat continued dull, following sales yesterday of about 400,000 bushels, mostly Manitobas. However, a few scattered lots of domestic hard winters were included.

Receipts of wheat at Kansas City were above expectations, 173 cars, an increase of 100 cars over a week ago and 9 cars less than a year ago. Arrivals at spring wheat markets were moderate.

Corn futures displayed independent strength, closing 1½ to 2½ cents higher for the day.

Unfavorable comment on the condition of the crop caused most of the buying.

Receipts of corn decreased moderately at most markets. Kansas City had 25 cars, St. Louis 48 cars and inspections at Chicago were 163 cars.

BREAK AND RALLY IN STOCKS.

New York, Sept. 25.—Acute weakness developed in stocks this morning, after an irregular opening, continuing the decline that got under way in the late trade yesterday. Numerous recoveries occurred in the last hour.

Unfavorable comment on the credit situation, both in New York and London, and the failure of a brokerage firm at the latter market, accounted for much of the selling.

United States Steel sold down 5¼ points, Westinghouse Electric lost 11½, American and Foreign Power 7, Air Reduction 10½, Commercial Solvents 10, Johns-Manville 13, American Telephone 3⅜, Corn Products 3⅝, International Telephone 4½, Montgomery Ward 3, Purity Baking 5½, American Water Works 5, Worthington Pump 17, Industrial Alcohol 7, Simmons 4¾, United Aircraft 4½ and Consolidated Gas 5.

Many others were down 2 to 4 points. The motors generally showed small losses.

In the rail group Atchison, New York Central, Union Pacific, Pere Marquette and Delaware & Hudson lost about 5 points each.

The oils met an improved demand, due in part to the reduction in crude production last week. Houston rose 4½ points and most of the other active issues were fractionally higher. Sinclair, however, lost a point. The group turned irregular later.

Substantial gains occurred in a few issues, including Midland Steel preferred, Columbia Gas and Electric, Columbia Carbon and Byers.

In the late trading United States Steel recovered most of its loss, and many other issues rallied 3 to 6 points. The close was fairly steady.

Call loans renewed at 8 per cent, unchanged from yesterday, and rose to 10 in the afternoon.

Transactions in the first half hour were 567,000 shares; to noon, 1,769,000; to 1:30 p. m., 3,466,000; to 2:10 p. m., 3,872,000; total, 4,957,000; bonds, $9,744,000.

The range of prices for the leading issues on the New York Stock Exchange, the closing prices today and the closing prices yesterday, as reported by the Associated Press, are as follows:

WALL STREET COMMENT.

New York, Sept. 25.—Statement of Alexander Legge, former president of International Harvester Company, that the stock of the company is selling higher than is justified, with a return of only 2 per cent on the market price, from its dividend of $2.50 a year seems to indicate that speculators and "outside" investors have more confidence than "insiders." That is true of a good many other industrial stocks, many of which are selling at prices on which the dividend yield is less than the return on Government bonds. It has became the practice of valuing stocks, not on the dividends paid or on the book value of assets, but on the total earnings, present and potential. There are few stocks that are not selling far above book value, and far above a reasonable price based on the dividends paid.

The frequently recurring report that plans are nearing consummation for paying, or funding back dividends on Missouri Pacific preferred stock, is again current. These unpaid dividends now amount to $51 a share. At the end of 1928 dividends of $1.25 regular and $1.50 accrued were paid, being the first ever declared on the preferred stock. The hope is that when the accrued preferred dividends are provided for, dividends will beinitiated on the common stock.

The movement of freight continued large in the week ending September 14, although the margin over a year ago and two years ago was somewhat smaller than recently. The total was 1,153,062 cars, an increase of 15,002 over the corresponding week a year ago and 24,419 more than two years ago. Compared with the preceding week, which was interrupted by Labor day, there was a gain of 135,990.

Simon Guggenheim, president of the American Smelting and Refining Company, said today that he expects the company will earn better than $10 a share on the common stock during the current year. This is about $2 more than the 1928 earnings on the present no par value stock, which was exchanged 3-for-1 for the old $100 par value stock. Dividends on present stock are $4 annually, yielding 3½ per cent on market value.

NEW BANK HOLDING COMPANY.

New York, Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—George Franklin Rand, head of the new 1-billion-dollar bank holding company, Midland Marine Corporation, said today that the corporation is more than an investment trust, and will be directly concerned in aiding and increasing the usefulness of its constituent banking companies. Formation of the company, which has already acquired control of several leading New York state banks outside of New York City, and which proposes to acquire more banking organizations both in New York and other states, was announced last week. Public offering of 1 million shares of stock at about $60 a share is expected to be made soon. The stock has been admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis on the securities market of the New York Produce Exchange, where it has ranged from $86 to $80 a share.

EASIER TREND IN STEEL.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25.—Railroad demand, the most favorable factor in the steel market, looms larger, but will not have an immediate effect on mill schedules, Iron Age says, in its weekly review. "Evidences of price weakness have developed as steel production has declined.

"Steel ingot production is now slightly under the 85 per cent average of twelve months ago and signs point to some further recession, in contrast to the rising trend of a year ago."

The Hay Market.

Hay prices were unchanged. Sales of alfalfa ranged from $17 to $23; prairie, $6.50 to $12.

Receipts were: Alfalfa, 25 cars; prairie, 11 cars; total, 45 cars; a week ago, 43 cars; a year ago, 48 cars.

BOARD OF TRADE STOCK SALES.

Transactions on the securities department of the Board of Trade today were 970 shares in six issues.

Atlas Acceptance Corporation A sold at 6¼, up ⅛ to a new high level, with sales of 50 shares.

The call to the BENCH . . .

Three have scored and none are out. The hero of three hundred victories fights time. He picks up dust. He tightens his cap upon his graying hair. He mops his forehead with the sleeve of his uniform, praying for the miracle that will restore the ancient cunning to his arm. Slowly, very slowly, he prepares for the pitch. Backing the signal his glance finds an uplifted finger. He drops the ball into the grass and shuffles from the field. He has pitched his last game.

Whether in the playing field, or the office, or the work-bench—the summons comes sooner or later to us all. Are you prepared for the day of this summons?

Let us tell you about our simple, common sense plan, whereby small sums, systematically invested, will be rapidly increased through the magic of compound interest against the day you choose to withdraw from active business. Under this plan we UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEE your success.

THE LATEST MARKET NEWS

IRREGULAR CURB CHANGES.

New York, Sept. 25.—(A. P.)—Price trends were irregularly downward on the curb market today. Aviation shares were again under considerable pressure. Fokker was depressed a few points and Western Air Express dropped further into new low territory for the year. Dayton Engine was again under moderate pressure, and Transcontinental Air Transport sold around its minimum 1929 price.

Glen Alden Coal, which moved up in response to expansion developments yesterday only to react and flop back for a net loss of 18 points, regained about half its loss. Hall Printing was firm.

Several leading utilities were fairly well supported. Electric Bond and Share, Electric Investors and American Superpower sagging only a point or two by early afternoon. Middle West Utilities new sold a little higher. American and Foreign Power warrants sold up several points, then reacted. United Gas Improvement slipped off several points. Tampa Electric, which is expected to be taken in by one of the larger systems, moved up moderately to a new high, and Commonwealth Utilities B was again in demand. Cities Service was also well supported, equaling its record high.

Investment trusts were generally heavy, Capital Administration and Reliance Management sagging a couple of points or more. Lehman Corporation was again under moderate pressure. Shenandoah Corporation, Goldman-Sachs Trading and Trans-America, however, held fairly steady.

Last week's favorable production figures failed to revive any bullish activity in the oils, but they displayed a firm tone, in contrast to most groups.

Mines were quiet and inclined to ease slightly.

NOTES OF THE GRAIN TRADE.

Sowing wheat in Kansas is about three-fourths completed in the west and north central portions, half done in the south central counties, and less than 10 per cent over the eastern third, said the weekly report of the weather bureau. Showers over the eastern counties were not heavy enough to soften the top soil, which is hard and dry over that section. Over the western two-thirds soil is generally considered in fair to good shape for germination, but a good rain will be required before long. Cutting corn for silage and fodder is progressing under favorable conditions. Grain sorghums showed some improvement during the week and the bulk of this crop is now safe from frost danger.

Broomhall cabled: "Conditions in India are not entirely favorable as the monsoon is weak and rainfall during past week has been light. Freight rates in Argentina are easy after being very firm last week and it is likely that clearances from the Southern hemisphere will diminish from now on. Argentine farmers are preparing the land for corn planting and they intend putting in a full acreage, due to the large amount of wheat abandoned this year. Beneficial rains have fallen in Europe."

F. T. Hopkins of Liberal, Kas., a prominent Southwestern Kansas wheat grower, is holding 75,000 bushels of wheat for higher prices, he writes the Benton Grain Company. Mr. Hopkins said the recent drying winds have severely damaged the newly planted wheat crop, and drilling has ceased.

James E. Bennett of Chicago said: "The much-touted deal in September corn of sixty days ago looks like a flop that seems to be petering out. With old corn prices giving way the probability seems to be for lower prices on the new crop as well. Theoretically, the facts and figures are bullish on corn, but between 90 cents and $1 for new crop corn early in the season, most of the bull factors seem to be in the price. It looks as though there would be opportunities to buy corn at lower levels. Wheat is due for a rally, but it is problematical whether it will get it."

The government's weekly crop bulletin said: From the Mississippi Valley eastward late corn is maturing slowly because of cool weather, but that was partly offset in the Ohio Valley by abundant sunshine. In the western portion of the belt corn is largely matured. Frosts were rather general in the northern parts of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and the northern three-fourths of Iowa and all sections to the northward. Much corn was matured in the frosted areas, but there was more or less damage to the late crop, especially in the lowlands in the Northern Ohio Valley states and Pennsylvania and northeastward. In Iowa leaves of the corn were killed, but the husks were only penetrated in local areas where the ears will be chaffy. In the northern Great Plains states there was only slight damage, as crop had mostly matured, with about 85 per cent safe as far south as Nebraska. In Missouri where much corn is not yet safe from frost, progress toward maturity was slow.

Hugh Hinsen, assistant manager of the Kansas City office of Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co., has purchased the Kansas City Board of Trade membership of C. E. Lathrop and is an applicant for membership in the exchange. The price was $11,500, including the $500 transfer fee. This is $500 less than the previous membership sale. Mr. Hinsen is in charge of the grain department of the local office of the firm. J. B. Bracken, also a representative of the same company on the Board of Trade, who has been ill for some time, is improving rapidly and expects to return to work shortly.

A New York exporter wired: "Bids are in today from Bremen, Germany, for October, November and December barley, the first in a long time. Foreign interest in wheat is still quiet."

The weekly Missouri bulletin said: "Late corn shows some improvement, but will require twenty-five to thirty days of favorable weather for safe maturity. The bulk of the crop is much behind the 10-year average in this respect. Cutting for silos and clearing ground for wheat was general. Preparation of ground for wheat seeding made fair progress. Sowing is well under way in Jackson, Buchanan and adjoining counties, and a little has been sown in Lafayette County. In most central counties the work is held back by dry soil."

E. L. Rickel of Salina, Kas.; W. H. Ferguson of Lincoln, Neb., and L. N. Perrin of Chicago were Board of Trade visitors today.

BREAK AND RALLY IN BONDS.

New York, Sept. 25.—Reaction and rally in the stock market today was exactly duplicated in the market course of the convertible utility and industrial bonds, the leaders of which swung through a wide price range.

Liberty bonds and foreign government bonds were steady at the close.

American Telephone 4¼s, which dropped off 5 points to 207½ at midday, rallied to 215 near the close for a net gain of 2½ points. International Telephone 4½s declined 6 points to 192 and rallied sharply to 199 and closed around 196 for a loss of 2 points.

Atchison convertible 4½s, at the head of the rail list, sold in good volume at 153½, down a point.

Transactions in principal bonds in thousands of dollars and the high, low and closing quotations, as reported by the Associated Press, are here shown:

Little Stories for Bedtime

Frolicking in the Dead Sea

"HOORAY!" Knarf shouted. As for Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam—the other little shadow-children with the turned-about names—they didn't know just what to say, so they didn't say anything at all.

The shadow-children, as well as the real-children—their masters and mistresses—were on a strange adventure. They were on their way to the Dead Sea. Since you know your geography, you do not have to be told that the Dead Sea is near Jerusalem. They were all riding on little donkeys.

The real-children's father, who was riding at the head of the procession, had told them all about the Dead Sea. He explained that it was called the Dead Sea because the water was so terribly salty that nothing could live in it. Moreover, the country all around it was dry and desolate, being a sort of desert composed of barren hills on which not a single thing grew, not even a blade of grass. The sea, which they had just spied lying in a deep, deep hollow hundreds of feet below where seas are usually found, looked like a large green lake. Flowing into it was a narrow stream, the banks of which were covered with tall trees. This was the River Jordan which passed by the ancient city of Jericho. The trees seemed unusually green. That was because for miles and miles everything else was a dull, dusty brown. The trees grew only because of the water which their roots sucked up from the river.

"Hooray!" shouted Knarf again. "Now we can go for a swim in the Dead Sea!" The shadow-boy had wanted very much to go for a swim in that strange sea, though he would not tell why.

Down, down the winding road they went, the donkeys trudging along slowly. They could hardly be expected to go fast because the more they descended, the hotter and stuffier it became. The air was heavy. It weighed down on both the real-children and the shadow-children like tons of soft pillows. It was as though they were going down into a deep, deep pit on a hot summer's day.

At length they came to a turn in the road and there, before them, lay the Dead Sea. It was a strange sight. Around it were bare, gray, stony cliffs. The water was greenish. Short, choppy waves rolled back and forth on the stony beach. They stopped at a little inn.

"Now, my dears," said father, "go inside and get into your bathing suits. Then we'll go for a swim."

"But we can't swim!" the real-children exclaimed.

But father didn't appear to hear them. "Get into your suits," he repeated. In a few moments they returned, ready for the swim that they couldn't take. The shadow-children wondered what was going to happen—all except the cunning Knarf, who seemed to know more than he said.

"Jump right in," said father, taking them by the arm and leading them to the edge. "It's very deep."

"Very deep!" they cried in dismay. "Why, we'll sink and drown!" Imagine their alarm to be suddenly pushed in. And then a most surprising thing happened. Instead of sinking, as they expected, they bobbed about like corks. They rested on the very top of the water, with their arms and legs sticking out in the queerest fashion you can imagine. It was as though they weighed nothing at all.

Why did they float about so? Because the water of the Dead Sea is so full of salt that it has no room for anything else, or in other words, the water was so much heavier than the children that they couldn't possibly sink into it.

What sport it was! How the real-children shouted with joy! How the shadow-children did the same thing, although no one heard them! It was the strangest experience they had ever had.

"See," shouted Knarf triumphantly, "I told you to come swimming in the Dead Sea!"

And the others couldn't help feeling that for once Master Knarf had been right.

5-Year Convertible 6% Gold Debentures

Dated June 1, 1929 Due June 1, 1934

Interest payable semi-annually June 1 and December 1 at the principal office of the Trustee in New York, without deduction for Federal Income Tax not in excess of 2%, which may be lawfully paid at the source. Coupon Debentures in interchangeable denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. Redeemable as a whole or in part at any time on 30 days' notice at 100 and accrued interest plus a premium of ½ of 1% for each full year of unexpired term. The Company agrees to reimburse Debenture holders residing in Pennsylvania, California, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Oregon, Washington, Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, District of Columbia or Virginia for certain personal property or income taxes levied by said states or district on the debentures or income derived therefrom properly paid by such holders to the extent and on the conditions set forth in the debenture agreement.

INTERSTATE TRUST COMPANY, Trustee

Conversion Privilege

These debentures are convertible at the option of the holder at any time after June 1, 1930, and up to and including the 10th day prior to maturity, or, if called for redemption, at any time up to and including the 10th day prior to the redemption date, into participating class A stock ($1.70 cumulative dividend) at the rate of 40 shares for each $1,000 debenture, subject to the pertinent provisions of the debenture agreement.

Class A Stock Provisions

The Class A Stock into which these Debentures are convertible is of no par value, and is entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of $1.70 per share per annum, in priority to any dividends on the Common Stock; in addition, it shall participate equally with the Common Stock, class for class, in any additional dividends declared in and for such calendar year after dividends are declared on the Common Stock in amount up to one-half of the aggregate amount of the Class A Stock cumulative dividends paid or set apart for such calendar year. Redeemable as a whole or in part at any time on thirty days' notice at $100 per share, plus accrued and unpaid dividends to date of redemption. The Board of Directors has announced a policy, which is subject to change, of permitting the holders of Class A Stock at their option to apply such cash dividends toward the purchase of Class A Stock at the quarterly rate of one-fortieth of a share of such stock for each share held, being at the annual rate of 10% in Class A Stock.

Mr. Robert Hall Craig, President of the Company, summarizes from his letter to the bankers as follows:

Business and Territory: Inland Utilities, Inc., organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, supplies, through its constituent companies, one or more classes of service to a population estimated to be in excess of 225,000. Water or manufactured or natural gas for domestic and industrial purposes is supplied to 15 centralized communities in Pennsylvania and 16 centralized communities in the Kanawha Valley and Coal River districts of West Virginia, together with certain rural territories surrounding the communities mentioned above. The water reservoirs have a capacity estimated to be in excess of 278,000,000 gallons; and the gas and water systems supply their respective services through more than 150 miles of 4 inch to 20 inch mains. Water is supplied to approximately 6,610 retail consumers, manufactured gas to approximately 1,230 retail consumers, and natural gas to approximately 2,520 retail consumers. Subsidiaries own 136 producing gas wells, and have 13,541 developed acres under lease in the long-lived West Virginia and Kentucky fields with an estimated reserve of 53 billion cubic feet. Various classes of service also are supplied to a number of wholesale consumers, natural gas in particular being supplied in large quantities under favorable contracts. Ice service and refrigeration service are furnished to Hagerstown, Md., Martinsburg, W. Va., and Charlottesville and Fredericksburg, Va., together with a number of surrounding communities.

WE wish to thank our many relatives, friends and neighbors for their loving kindness and sympathy shown during the illness and death of our wife and mother, and for the beautiful flowers.—F. E. Paul and Family.

I WISH to thank our many friends and neighbors for their loving kindness and sympathy shown during the death of my wife, Dorothy May Fagan, and for the beautiful flowers. Mr. A. Fagan, 1532 Bennington.

In Memoriam

IN fond remembrance of our daughter, Louise, who passed away two years ago today, September 25, 1927.

Today recalled sad memories
Of the loved one gone to rest.
Those who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

—Sadly missed by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hoffman, and sister.

IN Memory of Pady Hercules, who passed away eight years ago today.

Just the time you left me here.
The evening shadows are falling,
And you never come home.
I am lonesome, Sonny Boy,
For I am sitting here alone.

"Mother," Grace Jackson.

IN loving memory of our dear daddy, Arthur Roland Spalding, who left us two years ago today, September 25, 1927.

Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome;
In the midst of our joys we are blue;
With a smile on our face and a heartache,
Dear Roland, we still mourn for you.

—Sadly missed by wife and children, Mrs. A. R. Spalding, Donald, Evelyn and Vernon.

IN Loving Memory of our husband and father, Mr. N. C. Nielsen, who passed away 2 years ago today. Sadly missed by wife and children.

A BARGE DREAM.

We dreamed, a night or so ago,
Where now but muddy waters flow,
We saw a line of barges go
Along the old Missouri.

Though now we make long hauls the best
In mammoth vans which stand the test,
Some day our barge will lead the rest
Along the old Missouri.

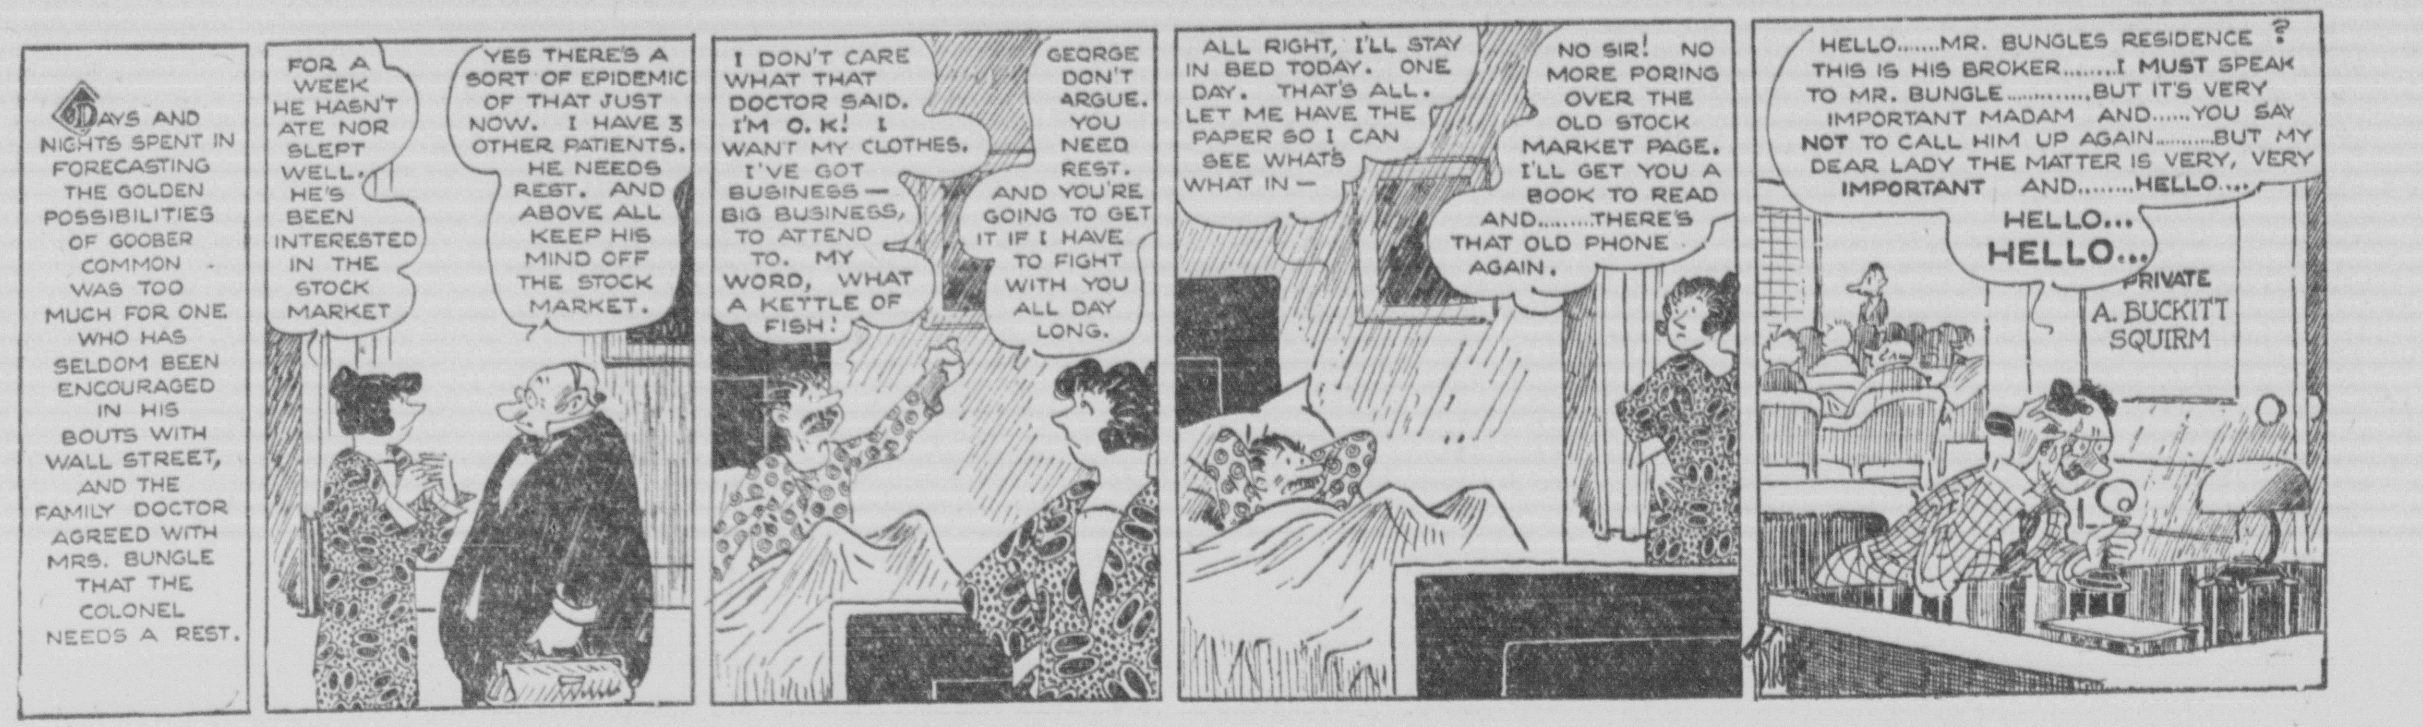
THE BUNGLE FAMILY—AT REST.

(Copyright, 1929.)



DAYS AND NIGHTS SPENT IN FORECASTING THE GOLDEN POSSIBILITIES OF GOOBER COMMON WAS TOO MUCH FOR ONE WHO HAS SELDOM BEEN ENCOURAGED IN HIS BOUTS WITH WALL STREET, AND THE FAMILY DOCTOR AGREED WITH MRS. BUNGLE THAT THE COLONEL NEEDS A REST.
FOR A WEEK HE HASN'T ATE NOR SLEPT WELL. HE'S BEEN INTERESTED IN THE STOCK MARKET
YES THERE'S A SORT OF EPIDEMIC OF THAT JUST NOW. I HAVE 3 OTHER PATIENTS. HE NEEDS REST. AND ABOVE ALL KEEP HIS MIND OFF THE STOCK MARKET.
I DON'T CARE WHAT THAT DOCTOR SAID. I'M O.K! I WANT MY CLOTHES. I'VE GOT BUSINESS—BIG BUSINESS, TO ATTEND TO. MY WORD, WHAT A KETTLE OF FISH!
GEORGE DON'T ARGUE. YOU NEED REST. AND YOU'RE GOING TO GET IT IF I HAVE TO FIGHT WITH YOU ALL DAY LONG.
ALL RIGHT, I'LL STAY IN BED TODAY. ONE DAY. THAT'S ALL. LET ME HAVE THE PAPER SO I CAN SEE WHAT'S WHAT IN—
NO SIR! NO MORE PORING OVER THE OLD STOCK MARKET PAGE. I'LL GET YOU A BOOK TO READ AND........THERE'S THAT OLD PHONE AGAIN.
HELLO......MR. BUNGLES RESIDENCE ? THIS IS HIS BROKER.......I MUST SPEAK TO MR. BUNGLE...........BUT IT'S VERY IMPORTANT MADAM AND......YOU SAY NOT TO CALL HIM UP AGAIN.........BUT MY DEAR LADY THE MATTER IS VERY, VERY IMPORTANT AND........HELLO....
HELLO... HELLO...

HALP!
NIX JOE-NIX
WELL, HE CAN'T CALL ME THAT!
GOOD GRIEF! THAT'S MY APARTMENT! WELL, I WILL PUT A STOP TO THIS—
AND I GOT A BIG NOTION TO KNOCK YOUR BLOCK OFF TOO, ROSCOE
LISTEN, PIGGY—ROSCOE'S A FRIEND OF MINE.
NIX! ROSCOE! NIX!
LET ME AT HIM! LET ME AT HIM, I SAY!
C'MON DRINK SOME COFFEE, ROSCOE YOU DON'T KNOW WHEN YOU'RE WELL OFF.
HEY! WHO WAS THAT HAMMERIN' ON TH' DOOR, BOYS?
DOWN BY THE OLD MILL STREAMMM
JUST ANOTHER ONE OF THEM BUTTINSKY NEIGHBORS OF YOURS, MOON—
BUT WE TOSSED HIM OUT ON HIS EAR.
OH!

YES. THIS IS SIMPKINS AND CO. WHO? OH, YES. WELL MR. WHIPPLE HAS GONE FOR THE DAY
OH, GOSH! ARE YOU BACK ALREADY?
SURE - IF I LEFT THIS FIRM FOR OVER A HALF HOUR IT'D GO ON THE ROCKS
NO FOOLIN' WELL, THAT DIZZY BLONDE THAT WAS IN HERE YESTERDAY JUST RANG UP FOR YOU AND I TOLD HER YOU HAD GONE FOR THE DAY
SHAKE! AT LAST YOU'RE SHOWING SIGNS OF CONSCIOUSNESS
CAN YOU BEAT THAT? I THOUGHT HE'D BE SORE AND HE'S ACTUALLY HAPPY
I'LL BE A DIRTY BROKEN WINDSHIELD

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.

Not 6,000 Joints, but 300.

Nearly a quarter of a century ago, when Henry M. Beardsley was mayor, he had a careful survey made of the places that were selling liquor with and without a license. There were 600 saloons paying the city license fee and about 2,100 joints that were operating without paying the fee. Some of these paid the government tax, but the majority did not. At that time Kansas City was about half the size of the present city. If it had the same relative number of liquor selling places that it had twenty-three years ago, it would have approximately 6,000.

The police report that five months ago they found about 1,000 places which they suspected of selling liquor. That number is now reduced to 300. Only about one-twentieth as many as were open in preprohibition days.

Anyone who supposes that 300 places sell as much liquor as 6,000 places would have sold is welcome to the opinion for his own use. But he will find it hard to get other people to believe it.

Income Taxes May Be Cut.

The news that President Hoover favors and Secretary Mellon recommends another reduction in federal income taxes is good news, but not surprising. The country is generally prosperous, with an exceedingly good outlook, and tax cuts are made not only on current conditions, but on business prospects. Also with each cut before the last the income tax revenues increased. This sort of thing cannot go on indefinitely, of course, so there was some speculation as to whether the last cut would not materially reduce the returns. Not so. The receipts for the first two and one-half months of the present fiscal year exceeded those of the same period last year by nearly 119 million dollars. The income for 1929 to September 20 showed an increase of 271 millions over the same period last year.

The explanation of this marked gain in income tax, in spite of lower rates, is given as the withdrawal of money invested in tax-exempt securities for investment in productive business. This theory was more or less flouted when it was advanced in favor of the stifling surtaxes imposed in the earlier years of the war income tax rates. But it is a sound theory.

It also is a sound theory that business is improved and the income taxes therefrom are increased when the smaller incomes are exempt from taxation, as they have been, and the great majority have more money to spend for other than bare necessities. It is on the same principle that reasonable wages are a better basis of prosperity, even for the business that pays them, than low wage scales, provided of course that good pay is general.

With another cut in income taxes, with the benefits equitably distributed, the burden of the war debt will become easier on the individual and yet the production of revenue will serve to keep on with a rapid reduction of the debt. The only advance intimation as to this distribution of the new tax cut is that it will affect still further earned incomes as distinguished from unearned incomes. This is in favor of the wage earner and those on salaries, which is along the lines of sound adjustment.

Another Check at Geneva.

The problem of restricting land armaments by international agreement seems likely to prove considerably more difficult of solution than that involving a limitation of naval establishments. The present session of the League of Nations assembly has again demonstrated that fact.

When the assembly's disarmament commission met, Viscount Cecil introduced a resolution favoring reconsideration of the decision taken by the preparatory commission to exclude trained reserves from any restrictive agreement. But Viscount Cecil has had to withdraw his resolution and the commission has adopted a vague compromise measure, the chief significance of which appears to be that nothing can be done on land armaments until the naval question is out of the way.

The league has been working, practically since its inception, to achieve a limitation of armaments in the line with the injunction laid upon it by the covenant. The result of its efforts so far have been nil. At sea the partial agreement already reached and the inclusive agreement now in sight will have been accomplished outside the framework of the league. On land France and several less important members of the league have made an effective limitation so far almost impossible through the position taken by their delegates on the preparatory commission.

Meanwhile the compromise measure just adopted at Geneva "cordially welcomes" the prospect of a naval agreement and "confidently hopes" that the preparatory commission will be able to resume its work as soon as possible. In view of the sterile record of that commission in the past, there seems to be small reason for excessive enthusiasm as to the future.

So long as France and her satellites continue to remain intransigent on such matters as trained reserves, any real limitation of land armaments is out of the question. The progress now being effected in naval matters, therefore, is rendered all the more remarkable. Even if the agreement to be reached does not provide as great a reduction as some persons had hoped, the mere establishment of a limitation will mark a tremendous advance.

The President Tries Speaking Out.

The President surprised congress by his public statement in support of the flexible tariff provision. So far it has been his practice to try to accomplish his ends by private conversations. But now he has demonstrated his willingness to resort to more public methods if he deems it necessary. The possibility of such procedure may have a wholesome effect on the processes of tariff making.

As to the specific provision for which the President appealed, it is manifestly to the national interest. Various special interests would prefer to throw every proposed adjustment into congress so as to give opportunity for trading. From the national standpoint it is much better to permit the President to make these adjustments from time to time on the recommendation of the tariff commission.

The West does not forget that the present duty on wheat was made by executive order under the flexible tariff provision. If it had been necessary to wait for congress to act there would have been long delay.

Borger, Quantico and Chicago.

After a while it may be expected the news will get around that a reputation for crime and lawlessness isn't the thing any good business town would care to go after. It is, in fact, something that ought to be disclaimed, when that can be done with any show of truth. Borger, Tex., seems to have caught the idea and is objecting to the publicity about its crime on the ground that its business is being hurt. A better plan would be to help the state authorities clean up the crime and thus establish a basis for a better kind of publicity.

That method was adopted by Quantico, Va., it will be recalled, a week or two ago. The commandant of the naval training base at Quantico, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who is known to have positive views at times, informed the authorities of the town they would have to run the bootleggers out of the place or the 2,000 marines under his command would cease visiting and spending their money there. Seeing the issue in that clear light, the authorities disposed of the bootleggers in short order. It was good business to do it.

The principle applies whether the place be large or small. Chicago can testify to that. Chicago, or certain business and civic elements of it, did not like the bad advertising it was receiving as a haven for organized criminals. It cannot be said that the gangs were driven out forthwith, but a realization basic to reform was there, none the less. Any community must be deeply concerned about its crime; that is, if it does not want to pay a high price for indifference.

The Unafraid Mr. Hoover.

The New York Herald-Tribune is authority for the information that President Hoover includes in his voluminous reading such magazines as the New Republic, the Nation and the American Mercury. For a man in high national position, trying to administer government as is, under conditions as are, to read any one of these publications would be a mark of notable courage; but to read all of them, including Mr. Mencken's hard-boiled monthly, shows a disposition to know the worst, regardless of all the wild animals in the jungles to be explored. We salute the red-blooded bravery of the President.

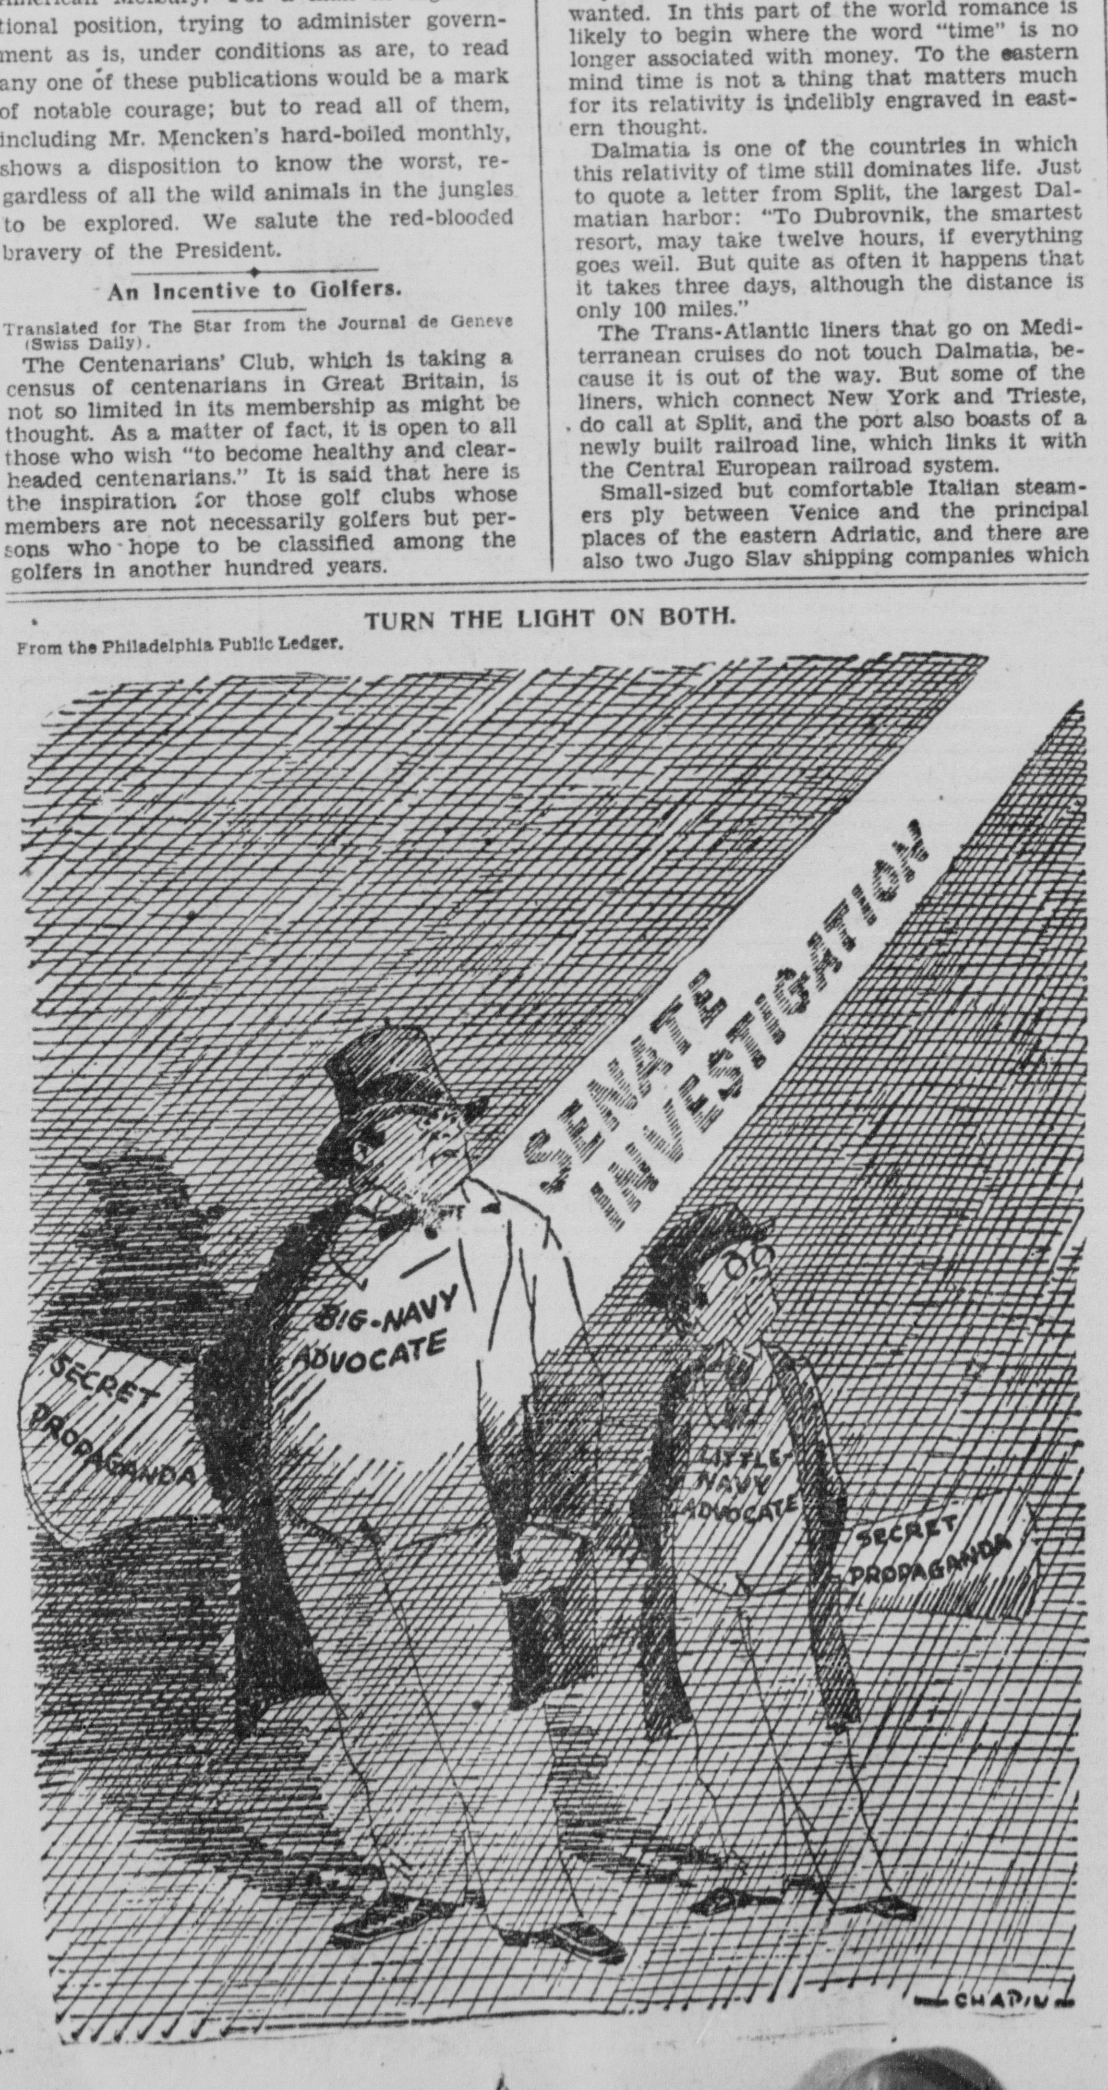
An Incentive to Golfers.

Translated for The Star from the Journal de Geneve (Swiss Daily).

The Centenarians' Club, which is taking a census of centenarians in Great Britain, is not so limited in its membership as might be thought. As a matter of fact, it is open to all those who wish "to become healthy and clear-headed centenarians." It is said that here is the inspiration for those golf clubs whose members are not necessarily golfers but persons who hope to be classified among the golfers in another hundred years.

TURN THE LIGHT ON BOTH.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.



DALMATIA, A REMOTE LAND OF ROMANCE, SELDOM SEEN BY TRAVELERS IN EUROPE

The Scenic Beauty of This Province of Jugo Slavia, Where the Orient Actually Begins, Remains Unspoiled by Tourists Who Have Overrun Other Beauty Spots—The Natives Have Simple Tastes, 20 Cents a Day Being Considered a Fair Income for a Worker.

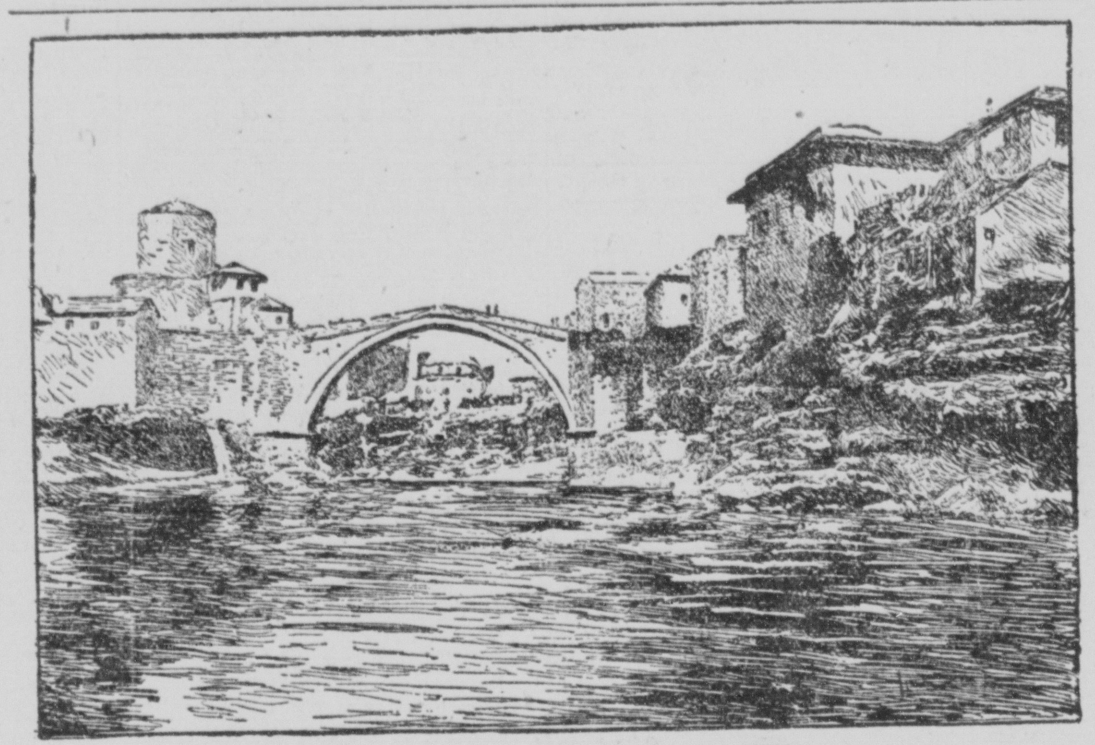
SOME say the orient begins at Vienna. The Viennese on the whole do not like this idea, for it hurts their pride over their essentially European cultural achievements. Of course there is exaggeration in the assertion, but like most exaggerations, this one contains a grain of truth.

Speaking of western and eastern culture one cannot simply draw a line and say to this line reaches the West and on the other side begins the East, says the New York Herald-Tribune. Climate plays a part in it, but it is not the decisive factor it seems to be. Religion is more important as a distinguishing mark and there are many others.

Some quite typical ones are traceable far into Central Europe, while on the other hand, typically western ideas have penetrated as far as Constantinople and Angora. Not far from Vienna are enclaves that are surprisingly oriental in their habits, and again, come regions as one expects to find them in Western Europe.

On the same geographical longitude as Vienna, only farther south, is situated the Jugo Slav province of Dalmatia, which forms the eastern littoral of the Adriatic Sea. It is the most perfect example of a borderland of the orient. But for the fact that about 1,500 years ago Emperor Theodosius included it in the eastern Roman empire, thus placing it under the influence of Byzantium, its development might have been entirely different.

It might have become what the Italian Riviera is today, more modern and progressive and a favorite place for tourists. It certainly deserves more attention than it gets, for its scenic beauty stands unrivaled, and being a borderland between two cultures with a record that extends far back into antiquity, it is full of architectural interest.



THE ANCIENT BRIDGE AT MOSTAR, DALMATIA.

CALLED LAND OF ROMANCE.

One often hears travelers from the West complain that they did not encounter on their journeys the romance they expected. None of them can have been in Dalmatia, for there they would have found all the romance they wanted. In this part of the world romance is likely to begin where the word "time" is no longer associated with money. To the eastern mind time is not a thing that matters much for its relativity is indelibly engraved in eastern thought.

Dalmatia is one of the countries in which this relativity of time still dominates life. Just to quote a letter from Split, the largest Dalmatian harbor: "To Dubrovnik, the smartest resort, may take twelve hours, if everything goes well. But quite as often it happens that one arrives there three days, although the distance is only 100 miles."

The Trans-Atlantic liners that go on Mediterranean cruises do not touch Dalmatia, because it is out of the way. But some of the liners, which connect New York and Trieste, do call at Split, and the port also boasts of a newly built railroad line, which links it with the Central European railroad system. Small-sized but comfortable Italian steamers ply between Venice and the principal places of the eastern Adriatic, and there are also two Jugo Slav shipping companies which maintain regular coastal services from Sushak. Their crack boats are not floating palaces, but they offer reasonable comfort and excellent cuisine. The same can be said of the hotels.

NO HARDSHIPS ANYWHERE.

There are no hardships to be faced anywhere, and the compensation one gets is worth renouncing a private bath for a while. Last spring Bernard Shaw came to Dalmatia and passed a vacation at Brioni. He was so pleasantly surprised that he advised his countrymen to hurry down quick, before the great tourist avalanches commence to pour in and spoil the romance.

The Dalmatian coast is rocky, rising at some points to heights of 5,000 feet, with only a few small plains interspersed between the mountain ranges, which form a solid wall between the narrow coastal strip and its hinterland, Bosnia and Herzegovina. It was these ranges which saved Dalmatia from occupation by the Turks in the times of the Venetian republic.

Once these mountains were covered with green forests, but reckless exploitation and the voracity of herds of sheep and goats have stripped them of their vegetation, transforming them into barren slopes. In dry summers winds carried away the parched soil and much of what was left was washed down into the ravines and the sea by torrential winter and spring rains.

The poor remnants of arable land bring forth scanty food for fishermen and small farmers, who have their homes on the steep declivities. One sees few cattle and almost no horses for it is difficult to grow the fodder they need. Sheep, goats and donkeys are the usual household animals, and they manage to subsist on the scanty stalks of grass that sprout between the rocks.

FARMING IS DIFFICULT.

But their hunger is never quite satisfied, and as they are let at large most of the day to find their food where they can, the farmers must pile up walls of loose stones around their little patches of fields and meadows to keep the beasts from grazing off the plants. Nets of such primitive walls over the hillsides, looking from a distance like huge honeycombs.

Where the slopes are too steep for this method of tilling terraces have been built, and one often sees women carrying soil up to the terraces in big baskets. On these terraces grow the olive tree and the sweet Dalmatian grape, which is pressed into the dark red and deep orange wines which one can buy in Dalmatia for almost nothing.

At the foot of the barren hills, along the seashore, are narrow belts of rich vegetation, showing what the country would be like if carelessness in former ages had not robbed it of its vegetation. Here the cypress and the palm tree grow beside the olive, contrasting with the deep sapphire of the sea and the pale sand color of the naked mountain slopes in the background.

Sometimes, perched on the top of a hill, is a cluster of houses around an old stronghold, hardly discernible as human habitation, for all one sees at a distance is the regularity in the piling up of stones which otherwise look like the stray heaps around. Small openings, like portholes, indicate the windows.

CASH GREAT LUXURY.

The agricultural possibilities in Dalmatia being poor and there being almost no industries, the opportunities for the people to make money are small. Twenty cents a day is a frequent income, and 40 cents for a whole family is considered fair. Cash is a much greater luxury than elsewhere.

The average standard of life is very low, but on the other hand, extreme poverty is little known, for the farmer or fisherman does not need much money. From the short woolen jackets and coarse linen shirts which men and women wear to the maize bread and goat milk which is their chief food, and to the wine, which is to be had in plenty, everything is produced at home. A diet of bread and onions, a little goat milk and olive oil and a moderate quantity of the native wine is said to be very wholesome.

The Dalmatians are quite stately, tall, slender and sinewy, and the men are excellent sailors. The women are pretty while they are young and not worn by too much toil. As is often the case in southeastern Europe, the women work harder than the men. They also have a better sense of the value of time, for one sees them go to market with a big basket full of farm products on their heads and a primitive spindle in hand, from which they spin the woolen yarn needed for stockings and home made textures, or for the embroideries for which Jugo Slavia has a widely spread reputation. The spinning is done with amazing skill while walking.

RUGGED COAST LINE.

Rugged as the Dalmatian coast is, intersected by fjords that cut deep into the country and full of ravines and clefts, it becomes still more varied by the many islands which rise between the mainland and the sea. There are hundreds of them, some very small and nothing but a naked rock emerging over the silvery surf, and others fairly large with little towns and hamlets and, of course, the inevitable monasteries and convents.

Many are the surprises which Dalmatia has in store for the traveler who visits it for the first time, but the most remarkable place is Split, the older part of which was built within the precincts of the palace of Emperor Diocletian, forming a city within a house.

Diocletian (284-305 A. D.) was himself a native of Dalmatia. He was born near the Roman city Salona, the ruins of which still stand. He built himself a huge palace on the site, which is now occupied by the city of Split, and after ruling for twenty years he abdicated and retired into it. After his death the palace, one of the finest examples of Roman architecture, became crown property. In the fifth century, Julius Napos was crowned in it king of Dalmatia.

BUILD CITY IN HOUSE.

Later, in the seventh century, when Salona was destroyed by the Avares, the inhabitants of this city first fled to the neighboring islands and later they settled within the walls of the palace and built streets and houses in its gardens and colonnades. This was the origin of the harbor Split. Even today there stand several churches and 265 houses in the interior of the palace that serve as homes for more than 3,000 persons.

In the middle ages the strong outer walls gave the settlers the protection they needed. At a comparatively recent date the city extended into the surroundings of the palace. Under the Austro-Hungarian regime Split or Spalato, as it was then called, never assumed much importance, but the Jugo Slavs have made it their chief port and during the last ten years it has more than doubled its population and grown into a town of almost 40,000 inhabitants, leaving all other Dalmatian towns far behind.

Jugo Slavia, or as it is officially named, the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes—is a comparatively little developed state, and although it disposes over considerable natural treasures, it lacks capital. But one encounters promising beginnings of an awakening here and there. One day Dalmatia will be rediscovered and will be included among the highroads of the tourist traffic.

KANSAS NOTES.

In the old days if anyone missed a stagecoach, he was content to wait two or three days for the next one, recalls the Ellsworth Messenger. Now he lets out a squawk if he misses one section of a revolving door.

PASTOR TORBERT LENDS A HAND.

It isn't often that we find a combination of a printer and a preacher, but that is what we have at the Herald office this week. Rev. W. I. Torbert, of Rush Center, pastor of the Methodist church there, consented to come over and give us a helping hand since we were especially rushed this week. Rev. Torbert has had a lot of experience in the newspaper business, having worked at the business many years. He has owned and operated several papers, but disposed of them, and now occupies his time in the ministry, but is still willing to help out the newspaper fraternity at times. —Pawnee Rock Herald.

"I don't know what it is the bootleggers do to this radiator alcohol to make it drinkable," said a Larned man with a headache to the Tiller and Toiler editor the other day, "but whatever it is, it isn't enough."

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD.

Two years ago H. R. H. of Starbeams fame made one of her usual clever remarks in class. Then she suddenly leaned forward and glaring at a young woman in the front row, snapped, "Wipe that journalistic smile off your face! If I see my name in Plain Tales once this semester I'm going to flunk you!"—University Kansan.

Really a word should be said, believes Jack Harris, of the sleek young man in perfect evening attire who remarked to the heroine of the talking movie who was seated beside him in his $10,000 automobile, "I've ran out of gas."

ANOTHER OLD GUARD SURRENDERS.

After this nothing will ever surprise us again. We are prepared for anything. Yesterday, Frazier Brown appeared on the streets with a beautiful pink handkerchief peeping shyly but gracefully from out his coat pocket. Frazier, you know, has been regarded as one of the few remaining he-men of Smith Center, wearing red flannel underwear without ever an itch. Alas for the times that were.—Smith County Pioneer.

NIGHT FOOTBALL.

Introduction of night football games at Haskell institute is an interesting development in sport. It may open opportunity to see the games to many persons who are football minded but whose business keeps them away from most of the daylight games. In an earlier and less hurried day in Lawrence it was customary to "close up the town" on the afternoons of important contests. The business streets were virtually deserted and everyone who desired to see a football game could satisfy the desire. Recently that system has been found no longer practicable. It is entirely possible that night football may discover a new public.—Lawrence Journal.

When women get to talking they say a good many odd things, observes Miss Nellie Webb in the Atchison Globe. Yesterday an Atchison woman, in a group of women, said: "The woman does not live who at one time or another has not received an offer of marriage." "I never did," said one of the women. "My land! You are married." "I know it," said the woman, "but I did my own proposing." Did you ever hear a woman confess it before? "I was always too timid to propose, and look at me; I'm an old maid," said another woman.

> Experienced bridge player wishes to meet three refined ladies to play bridge for pastime.—A want ad in the personal department of yesterday's Kansas City Star.

If that lonely K. C. woman were more observing she might get in on a bridge game without having to advertise for partners, says Mrs. J. P. Stratford in the El Dorado Times. An El Dorado woman sat in a secluded corner chair on the mezzanine floor in one of Kansas City's largest hotels last Saturday afternoon. On the same floor 100 women, more or less, were playing bridge. To the El Doradoan's surprise, one of the K. C. hostesses dashed over to her and proffered a sack. "Oh, aren't you playing—haven't you taken a chance?" she invited cordially. The El Doradoan said she was not a guest at the party and went down to the lobby, where the hum of general conversation was almost drowned by the thud of shuffled cards from above, laughter and exclamations of "This is positively the funniest hand!"

STRIKES LESS OFTEN USED.

Editorial Opinion of the Ohio State Journal.

There were 3,789 strikes in the labor field in this country during 1916, but in 1928 the number was reduced to 629. These figures were used by William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, in a recent address. He emphasized the importance of the showing because it made plain that labor and capital were working together in greater harmony now than in the years gone by. There was greater fairness shown, finer management displayed, better diplomacy employed on both sides, else the improved showing would have been impossible.

Labor contends the strike, as a weapon for use in securing improved conditions when other means fail, is defensible and should be retained. The fact that labor is using the weapon less frequently proves that its value is as an alternative, a club behind the door for emergency, rather than for continuous service. There is finer thought in industry than has been shown in the past, injustice is less frequent, conferences are more easily arranged, and adjustments that are satisfactory are within reach on nearly all occasions. Strikes are wasteful, destructive, uneconomic, and should never be given consideration until all other means have been tried and failed. It was well for the head of American labor to emphasize the importance of the marked decrease in the number of strikes in the country. The number should still be reduced.

GO-GETTERS.

A former Kansas City woman returned from the East for a short visit with friends here recently, and her arrival was duly announced in the society news. A day or two later, she received a letter from a local florist, informing her how gracious it would be on her part to "have us send your hostess a bouquet before you return home." The visitor thought it was a fine idea—and bought the bouquet from another florist.

Another Kansas City woman received a telephone call yesterday afternoon. "This is Blank's," said a sweet voice over the wire, naming a prominent merchandising concern. "I don't believe you know what wonderful things we are showing in our fall opening, and——"

"Well, never mind," replied the Kansas City woman. "You've spoiled my nap and awakened the baby, and as for the lovely things you're showing, I hope you still have 'em a year from next Christmas."

"I envy the small boy of today," writes Herb Adams. "When I was a kid my greatest ambition was to put gold leaf on the dome of the capitol building at Des Moines. But just think how that pales into insignificance in comparison to what the present day small boy can have the ambition to do. There is Dale Dryer, who casually transferred from one airplane to another, made necessary repairs, and then as casually floated back to earth by parachute. Nothing in my day could possibly compare with that, and so I find myself envying every small boy of today."

Scene: The front yard, with Grandma raking leaves. Sister is putting leaves into a basket. Grandpa comes past on his way downtown when Grandma speaks.

Grandma—Euslace, help Sister carry those leaves away.

Euslace—O heck, I never do anything but work, work, work. Why don't some of the rest of you do it?

Grandpa—(sternly) Euslace! Is that a gentlemanly way to speak to a lady? Apologize to your Grandma.

Euslace—I won't! A man can't work all the time.

Grandpa—Euslace! If you don't apologize immediately, you shall not go to the picture show next Saturday.

Euslace—Aw, that's what you always say. You said it last week, and I went. You said it the week before, and I went. You said it the week before that, and I went. You said it—

SYNOPSIS.

Benny Darrell and his wife, Flo Sloane, after many lean seasons in "three-a-day" houses, become Broadway favorites. Flo loses her head completely. She is immensely flattered by the attentions she receives from Alexander Winston, a society butterfly, and Gus LeGrand, a night club owner. She takes a country place and has it decorated by Lady Margaret Thrace, through whom she hopes to meet the right people. A call from Rita Eliot and Henry Henry, members of an ultra-fashionable set, makes her feel that her ambition is in a fair way to be realized. She begs Lady Margaret to get them to stay to dinner. The only drawback is Benny, who insists on being himself. Flo lectures him on his lack of social grace. To her horror, Lew Lewis and Peggy Page, friends of their vaudeville days, drop in. Winston lets Flo know he sympathizes with her embarrassment, and she devotes herself to him.

CHAPTER XIII—(Continued).

MESSRS. HUMMEL and LeGrand were presented to the rest of the party, and, without further ado, made themselves quite at home, both smoking large cigars.

"We come down on Gus's yacht," the little booking-agent informed everybody. "An' we was so near I says to Gus, 'Gus, while we're this near, we might as well drop in on Benny an' Flo—yo know what I mean.'"

"I been coming all summer," put in LeGrand, "but somehow I never found the time." He glanced around with an appraising eye. "Nice place you got here."

"Everything's been fine up to now," said Lew.

Hummel glanced at Lew quickly, then winked at Lady Margaret, whom he had never seen before. "Always kiddin'—ya know what I mean!"

Lady Margaret and Rita Eliot were leaning forward with the same eagerness they might have displayed in looking at two unfamiliar fish in an aquarium.

"Somebody was singing when we come in," LeGrand remarked genially. "Don't let us interrupt the festivities."

"Oh, that's all right," said Peggy Page.

"Well, well, Peggy." B. B. Hummel beamed upon her. "I ain't seen you in a long time. Must of been twelve years——"

"Be yourself!" retorted Peggy. "I wasn't outa school twelve years ago!"

"Well, time flies, time flies," assented the booking agent. "It seems that long ago that I gotcha a contract t' sing illustrated songs up at the Bronx Alhambra—at eighteen a week. Remember that—eh?"

"I never worked for that little in my life!" denied Peggy heatedly.

A lively repartee followed. Flo felt shame burning her cheeks to think that her patrician guests should be insulted by the presence of such people!

"Alec," she said, under her breath, "I've got to get out of this room or I'll faint!"

Benny had just arbitrated between Peggy and B. B. Hummel, and, peace reigning once more, Peggy began to play "Bum-Bum-Boodle-Oo."

Unobserved in the clatter of conversation, Flo and Winston slipped out of the room. In the hallway Flo drank a glass of water..

"I've never put in such a terrible evening." There were tears in her eyes. "Everything's gone wrong—and—and—if I have to go back in there, I'll go mad!"

"Poor little girl." Winston patted her shoulder reassuringly. "You ought to relax for a few minutes. Let's go into the library—we'll never be missed."

"Do you think we dare?"

"Why not, my dear? Those people are all attempting to out-talk one another, and Rita and Henry are so pop-eyed trying not to miss a word that they won't notice we've gone."

So stormily rebellious was her mood that she clung to his hand and followed him into the library. Both doors and a French window stood open. Winston made a move to close them.

"No, please—I need the air!" Flo sank down among the pillows on the broad divan, and Winston seated himself beside her.

Flo had never cared for this library. In the first place, her reading was limited to fashionable journals, and she considered libraries in general a waste of space.

The handsomely-bound books on the shelves had been selected by Lady Margaret. Flo had never felt that she belonged in this room, and tonight it seemed more alien than ever. She lay back among the pillows and closed her eyes. For the moment she was not conscious of Winston's shoulder touching hers. She was thinking only that Benny was ruining her life. Everything was a mess. . . .

From the room beyond came Peggy Page's cabaret voice, singing a love-song with a throbbing melody. Winston leaned closer to her, and raised her hand to his lips.

"I adore you," he said gently.

"Do you?" she smiled, with her eyes closed. "I'm glad."

Of a sudden Winston jerked away from her. Startled, Flo opened her eyes. In the doorway stood Benny, a queer expression on his face. Flo was aware that she was frightened—and annoyed. Winston sat rigid.

Without a word Benny walked over to the French window and closed it, and drew the curtains. Then he crossed to the door leading to the breakfast room, and closed that. Winston, his fists clenched, sat ready to spring to his feet and defend himself. Flo felt cold all over.

Then Benny paused and faced them with a strange, twisted smile.

"I didn't wantcha t' be in a draft," he said quietly—and went out, closing the hall door after him.

CHAPTER XIV.

Flo felt Winston's sigh of relief. The crisis was past—yet both were still under a nervous spell of fear.

"That was queer," Winston muttered, stirring uneasily.

Resentment was taking the place of Flo's fright. This was just another outrage in the long list of Benny's social transgressions. She would never be able to make anything of him. Never! He was what he was—he could never rise above his vaudeville past and take his place with her in the world she aspired to. The situation was intolerable. . . .

"I know how unhappy you are," she heard Winston saying. "You can't go on this way, my dear."

Flo did not reply. She lay back again among the pillows, aware of a faint headache. Alec was a dear. He understood . . .

"You're like the princess in the tower," he said; "you're a prisoner here." And then, switching from a fairy-tale legend, without the obvious mention of himself as the prince riding by to her rescue, he went on: "You ought to go abroad, travel. What a thrill you'll get, seeing Paris for the first time! I wish I could show it to you. And the Riviera—and Como. The romance of those places. We could have such a divine time together."

Flo rose with a restless gesture and took a few steps across the room. "I don't know how much longer I can stand it here," she said, as if to herself.

"There's no reason why you should." He got up and walked over to her, fumbling in his coat pocket for something. "You remember, this afternoon I bet you a bracelet that you wouldn't be with him in six months. Well, I'm so sure of losing it that I want you to take this now."

She turned, in surprise. He was holding out an exquisite diamond and sapphire bracelet that winked and glittered in a million gay pin points of light. Flo had a passion for jewelry. And this was more beautiful than any of the bracelets she wore tonight.

"Oh, but I couldn't——"

"My dear," he said suavely, "don't be ridiculous. We made a bet—and I'm losing. There's no reason why I shouldn't pay it now. Why wait? It's perfectly all right."

And as he talked, he clasped the bracelet round her wrist. The coruscating diamonds and sapphires held Flo's eyes fascinated.

"Oh, but I——"

The door opened and Benny came in. "Miss Eliot's ready to go home," he began. Winston abruptly dropped her hand. And Benny saw the bracelet. "Where'd ya get that?"

A swift, blinding rage seized Flo. "What do you mean," she cried, "coming into the room this way, without knocking!"

"Knocking?" His face went gray. "My Heavens, I'm your husband!"

Then he came toward her. "Who does that bracelet belong to?"

"You can't talk to me like that!" she flashed.

"I'm askin' ya."

"It's mine," Winston answered cooly. "We had a bet, and I——"

"Take it off 'er!"

"I told you it was a bet," Winston repeated. He was as tall as Benny and in splendid physical condition. Moreover, he had contempt for husbands in general. But there was a dangerous gleam in Benny's eyes.

"Take it off 'er——" Benny's voice grated—"or I will!"

This was so unlike the gentle Benny whom she had dominated for four years. Flo was amazed, yet her rage flamed higher.

"Are you going to make a scene? Haven't you any decency!"

"Decency?" Benny choked over the word.

"Do you want our guests to hear you?"

"What does it matter—now?" He was trembling. "Take off that bracelet."

"Very well," she replied scornfully. "If your're such a fool——" And, unclasping the bracelet, she handed it to Winston. "I apologize, Alec—for him."

"Ya don't hafta apologize for me." Benny swung round to Winston. "Now, get out."

"Look here——" Winston began insolently.

"Get out!"

"How dare you," cried Flo, "speak that way to my friends!"

Benny disregarded her. He took a step toward Winston. "You get outa here!"

And Winston, with admirable nonchalance, smiled at Flo. "There's no use having a brawl," he said. "I'll be rolling. Good night." And he walked out of the room lighting a cigarette.

Suddenly Benny's anger left him. He turned to Flo, his lips trembling. "Listen——"

But Flo, her head high, moved quickly past him and out into the hall. Winston had gone.

At the door stood Frederick, in an attitude that proclaimed the dignity of labor. (Beecham, in his cups, having retired for the night—if not for the week-end.) Rita Eliot and Henry Henry were getting their coats. If they were aware of the scene that had just taken place, their manner did not betray it.

When Benny came out they were saying good-night to Flo and Lady Margaret—quite as if nothing had happened. Back in the living-room, LeGrand and Hummel and Lew remained, and Peggy was playing the piano.

"Awfully jolly," Henry Henry said, pumping Benny's hand.

"Yeh?" Benny's smile was pathetic.

And Rita Eliot said to him, in a low voice that only he could hear: "Do come over to see me. I don't live very far—you can find me in the telephone book."

"Thanks," muttered Benny.

Then they were gone. Lady Margaret said good-night briskly and went up to bed.

Flo turned to him, her eyes cold as jewels. "This is the end," she said. "I've stood all I'm going to."

"Listen," he pleaded. "I'm sorry, I——"

"There's nothing to say." She shrugged. "It's finished. You and I are through."

"Flo——"

In the other room B. B. Hummel laughed raucously. Peggy Page was playing that crazy tune, "Bum-Bum-Boodle-Oo." Flo shuddered.

"I'm leaving—tonight," she said.

"You can't do that," he muttered brokenly.

"Can't I? You'll see."

"Listen—I'm sorry I acted like I did. I couldn't help it. It made me crazy, seein' him——"

"You behaved like a—a peasant!" She hurled the word at him spitefully. "That's all you are—that's all you'll ever be—a peasant!"

Benny stared at her increduously, with the expression of a faithful dog whose master had suddenly, for no reason at all, lashed him cruelly with a whip.

Then Gus LeGrand strolled into the hall. "Well," he called, "we was wondering what had become of you."

Benny could not answer. He wheeled abruptly, walked past LeGrand, and through to the living-room. Peggy was thumping the piano with artistic frenzy, and Hummel, his back turned, was pouring himself a drink. Benny crossed the room and went out on the terrace, breathing deeply of the chill night air.

"You look like you'd been socked for a count of fourteen!" Lew's voice behind him.

Benny could not speak for a moment.

Then: "It's all over, Lew," he muttered. "She—she's quittin' me."

"Again?" said Lew. "She oughta get a new act."

"No—it's the truth. She's leavin'—tonight." Benny slumped into a chair and dropped his head in his hands. "We had a row," he confessed bitterly. "She—she called me a peasant."

"Yea?" remarked Lew. "A peasant, eh? Well, I didn't suppose she was no king's daughter. Where'd she come from?"

"Iowa," Benny sighed. "Her father runs a little grocery store out there. That's where I first met 'er—in a town called Waterloo."

"You an' Napoleon," said Lew.

CHAPTER XV.

In the hall Gus LeGrand looked sharply at Flo. "Is something wrong?" And as she did not reply he continued: "Anything I can do? You know I'm your friend."

"Oh, I know you are." Flo gave him a troubled smile. "I don't mind telling you—something is wrong—everything. I'm going up to town tonight."

"Come with me" he suggested, "on the yacht. I mean——" he added hastily—"with Hummel an' me."

"Oh, thank you, but I couldn't. I—I'm taking our car—my car."

"Is—ah . . ." LeGrand gestured with his cigar toward the other room.

"I'm leaving him," she said breathlessly. "I can't stand it any longer!"

LeGrand's eyes lighted. "I want to talk business to you."

"No—please—I don't feel like talking business tonight. I must tell my maid to start packing."

"You'll be interested by what I got to say to you." LeGrand pushed open the library door. "Come in here."

Flo had always recognized his authority. Without a word she turned and walked into the library. LeGrand followed her and carefully closed the door behind him.

"Now, then," he began. "Sit down. I have been waiting for this moment—over a year."

She seated herself opposite him, puzzled.

"I knew all along," he said, "that you and him wouldn't stick together. And you are making the wisest move of your life, quitting him. From the start I have been interested in you—not him. Here is my proposition." He hitched his chair closer. "Six weeks from tonight I open a magnificent new club. It will be named for you—and you will be the star attraction."

Flo's eyes widened.

"Tomorrow I hire a new partner for you. I got my eye on one already—a South American, so handsome he makes this Benny look like a waiter." LeGrand gestured forcefully, with a sparkle of diamond rings. "I will stop at nothing—all the advertising—everything money can buy to make you—you alone—the biggest dancing star in America!" He paused for dramatic effect. "Well—what do you say?"

Every word he had uttered had been a caress to Flo's vanity. The picture of a magnificent new night-club, named for her, with herself as the star attraction, glowed brightly in her imagination. And now, in her angry resentment of Benny—it was a perfect moment for the big gesture. Her heart beating very fast, she smiled. "I'll do it!"

"Good." LeGrand's eyes smouldered with pleasure. He leaned across and took one of her hands in both of his.

"You will see what it means to have me for your friend."

"Thank you so much!" She arose and, crossing the room, rang the bell.

"Tomorrow, have lunch with me," LeGrand said, "and we go over all the plans. Everything shall be like you want it."

Frederick, the footman, knocked and entered.

"Tell Celeste to pack my things at once, please," Flo commanded. "And have Horton bring the car around."

"Horton's gone to bed, madam."

"Then wake him up. I'm driving to New York tonight. I'll be ready to leave in fifteen minutes."

The footman's eyebrows lifted. "Will you be back, madam, for luncheon?"

"I'm not coming back," she said.

On a quiet golden September afternoon, ten days later, Benny Darrell walked slowly up the gravel path from the kennels. Only a few weeks ago Flo had had them built, at great expense; and now they were empty. A green motor-van had just driven away—with all the Russian wolfhounds. Benny had sold them and had been forced to take a thousand dollars less than Flo had paid for them. The check was in his pocket now. That would go to Flo.

After that Saturday night when the world had collapsed about his ears he had gone up to New York and tried in vain to see her. Nobody appeared to know where she was. Gus LeGrand, he suspected, knew—but would not tell. LeGrand seemed almost hostile.

At length B. B. Hummel got into communication with Flo and telephoned to Benny that he was acting as her representative. Anything that Benny had to say to her could be said through him, etc. Hummel seemed friendly, though there was little subtletly in his method. Subtlety, however, is not a virtue common among booking-agents.

And, swallowing his pride, Benny had made, through Hummel, pathetic overtures to her. They had all been rejected. He had made a final plea, hinting at the financial ruin that stared them in the face, if the dance team were dissolved. There had been no reply to that.

Benny realized now that her flight had been no mere temperamental outburst impelled by pique. She meant what she said: she was never coming back. Dejectedly he returned to the lonely house at Easthampton.

Then had followed days of worry and depression. There were times when Benny could not make himself believe that the preceding gay summer had ever really happened. Everything about the place reminded him of Flo. He could not get her out of his thoughts.

His first act, upon learning that there was no hope of a reconciliation, had been to let the servants go—all but the cook and the gardener. He could no longer afford to retain them. Flo had taken her maid, the chauffeur, and the car to New York.

The cook was a stalwart, grim woman, whom Flo had been in the habit of addressing as "Cook," though Benny had always spoken to her respectfully as Mrs. Corey. After the departure of the other servants his respect for her increased. Mrs. Corey developed unsuspected kindliness. She not only prepared and served delicious meals for him, but she took complete charge of the great empty house and looked after him with the solicitude of an elderly aunt. She felt very sorry for Benny.

"It's always a poor lamb like him," she told Alphonse, the gardener, "that gets taken in by such trollops as her! He's grievin' his heart out. I could wring her neck!"

In the ten days that had passed there had been many callers—Flo's new-found acquaintances who had, during the summer, found them "amusing," and who had enjoyed bathing in their pool and drinking their abundant liquor. Fair-weather friends. Benny had always felt that they used this place as if it were a road-house. Now when they called he sent word by Mrs. Corey that there was no one at home.

And the fair-weather friends drove off gaily to some other hospitable house, where free drinks were to be had. His cellar, Benny had discovered, was dry: a calamity for which the thirst of Beecham, the butler, had been largely responsible. And now there were yellow maple leaves, the first fallen leaves of autumn, floating in the neglected swimming pool.

Salomy, the bull pup, was his constant companion during these unhappy days. This afternoon, after the wolfhounds had been sold and taken away, Salomy celebrated her relief from jealousy, frisking in frantic circles. She was doing her best to please her master, but something was wrong with him: he did not play as in the old days.

CHAPTER XVI.

As he rounded the house Benny heard the soft whir-r of the motor lawn-mower, and the sweet scent of new-cut grass reached him. Down by the hedge Alphonse, the Belgian gardener, was plodding along behind the lawn-mower.

Benny paused. He would have to tell Alphonse that he could no longer afford to keep him. And it would not be easy. Alphonse was old and he had a wife and four children. With winter coming on, he would have a hard time finding another job as a gardener. Benny felt sad about it, but there was no other way.

As he started across the lawn a blue roadster swung up the drive. There were two ladies in it, and the one at the wheel, in yellow sports clothes, waved to him. Rita Eliot! He knew her car. She had come over a few days ago with a friendly invitation to take him to play golf. But Benny had never learned the game, and so they had sat in the sun and talked about everything but themselves.

Benny liked her immensely. She was, he knew, a great lady, but there was nothing in her manner that suggested any superiority. Perhaps that was because she was a great lady, Benny thought.

She was gentle and sympathetic and had a fine sense of humor. She treated him as an equal, a companion; whereas so many of the "society" people this summer had acted as if he were some sort of a freak on exhibition. Rita Eliot laughed with him, not at him. He had been lonelier after she left that day.

This afternoon Lady Margaret Thrace was with her. They drew up with gay greetings and alighted.

"Don't be alarmed," Rita Eliot told him, "we haven't descended on you for dinner."

"Gee," he said, "I'm sure gladda see ya!"

And they knew that he meant it. Loneliness had left its mark on him, and there were shadows under his eyes. Rita Eliot thought they were fine eyes. She was more interested in him, perhaps, than she cared to have him know.

"Matter of fact," began Lady Margaret briskly, "I've come on business. You told me the other day you wanted to sell this place. I've been looking for a client—and I believe I have one."

"Yeh?" said Benny. "That's mighty nice of ya."

And as they walked across the garden they discussed real-estate values. Lady Margaret surmised, without having been told, that the place was still heavily mortgaged. Moreover, as autumn was the worst possible season for disposing of a country house, it would have to be sold at a loss. She was very business-like about it.

They sat in the shade of a great orange parasol in the garden, and Mrs. Corey brought them tea and cakes. Benny still looked upon tea with suspicion and contended himself with smoking innumerable cigarettes. Flo's name was not mentioned.

When they were leaving Rita Eliot said: "I want you to come for dinner on Thursday." And at his look of embarrassment, she added: "Oh, nothing formal—just you and Maggie and my father and I."

"Do come, my dear," urged Lady Margaret.

"Thanks," he said, "that's awful kind of ya, but——"

"I'll send a car for you," Rita told him. She knew that he no longer had a car.

"Oh, I could get over on the train."

"Trains," said Lady Margaret, "are poisonous. I never travel except by motor or airplane."

"Oh, I ain't proud." Benny smiled. "Seems like half my life's been spent ridin' the rattlers—trains, elevateds, street-cars. Why, once I lived in Brooklyn, an' I was workin' in New York, an' every night for two years I had to gopher home."

"Gopher?" repeated Lady Margaret, puzzled.

"Yeh—in the subway."

"Gopher—the subway!" Lady Margaret laughed. "Oh, I say, how divine!"

And as they drove away Rita Eliot said: "That's one of the sweetest men I've ever known."

"How right you are," assented Lady Margaret. "They'd adore him in England—he's so completely himself."

"He has charm," Rita mused. "I don't mean that blah quality that people so often mistake for charm. It's curious—breeding ought to give us unfailing instincts, but it doesn't. He came from nowhere, yet he has an innate sense of the decent thing. Have you noticed how he refuses to discuss his trouble? That's rather nice, you know."

"Benny's a complete darling," declared Lady Margaret. "I swear, if I weren't an old woman I believe I'd marry him myself!" She chuckled. "What a sensation that would cause. 'Duke's Daughter Marries Dancer'!"

And Rita Eliot, with her blue eyes on the road ahead, answered: "Stranger things have happened."

A few days later the place was sold. And, though Benny was reluctant to part from Mrs. Corey, he felt a vast relief in getting away. Memories of Flo haunted the house until he could endure it no longer.

The place, to be sure, had been sold at a considerable loss. After all the debts were paid, there remained but a few hundred dollars.

And during the height of their fame they had earned more than a hundred and sixty thousand! Where had it all disappeared? Benny asked himself, bewildered. Yet it was the old story.

Of the few hundred dollars he sent most of it to Flo, by way of Hummel. She would need it. Then with Salomy he journeyed up to New York and took an inside single room in the theatrical hotel where he and Flo had stayed at the time of their first Broadway failure—and which they had quitted immediately upon their first success.

The same clerk was behind the desk, and the same red-haired telephone-operator, and Leo, the intimate bell-boy. They were all very glad to see him.

It was, in a way, like coming home; but, when he ascended to the small single room, despite Salomy's companionship, the old loneliness engulfed him once more.

CHAPTER XVII.

Standing in front of the cheval glass, Flo put on the close-fitting little black hat which her maid handed her. For a moment she stood admiring her reflection, turning her head this way and that, as if seeking the perfect profile for her new photographs.

She was wearing a trim black suit. Flo always liked herself in black—and besides, she had a romantic idea that it fitted her mood this afternoon. In the past few days she had been thinking rather too much about Benny.

The reception room of her suite at the Hotel Versailles was "done" in apple-green and orchid tones, with furniture that Benny used to call Looie Quince. It was an expensive suite. Flo was just the least bit worried, too, about money matters. But she was on her way now to see LeGrand. He would fix everything.

"Celeste," she said, "if Mr. Winston calls, tell him he can get me at LeGrand's office."

"Yes, ma'am." The maid no longer dared reply "Oui madame," for fear Flo would attempt to say something in the French language. Flo's struggles with the French language were somewhat trying.

She was feeling vaguely sad this afternoon as she went down to her car. Yet she enjoyed the homage of the hotel servants. Well, it was something to be Fleurette Sloane. Wherever she went she beheld pictures of herself and announcements of the opening of her new Club Fleurette. (Her new club!) LeGrand had kept his promise. He was spending a fortune in advertising.

The new partner he had found for her, one Ramon Cuervo, a Mexican youth who insisted on being Argentine, was handsome in a dark, flashy way—and a graceful dancer. He was outrageously vain, however, and not particularly bright. There were moments when Flo, rehearsing with him, missed Benny's invention and guidance.

But there was no use thinking about Benny. And, to be truthful, she had been too busy to think much about him. Like most ladies of the theater, she was more interested in herself than in anyone else. They had been separated for more than a month now, and in less than two weeks the new Club Fleurette would open in a burst of splendor and publicity.

After that, her name would never again be linked with Benny's. She would be a star in her own right. Yet that was not all that she wanted. A hundred times a day she found herself imagining how pleasant life as Mrs. Alexander Winston would be . . .

The magenta limousine was waiting in front of the hotel. She had never quite got over the little thrill of seeing her own chauffeur touch his cap to her as he held open the door of her own car. On the way down to LeGrand's office she thought a great deal about Winston.

Since her quarrel with Benny at Easthampton she had been seeing Winston daily in town—going about with him to luncheon, dinner and the theater. She now wore his diamond-and-sapphire bracelet without fear of criticism. After all, what harm was there in that? It pleased her to think that she had "managed" him so adroitly—keeping him always at a certain distance.

Yes, she had managed this dangerous bachelor skilfully . . .

LeGrand was awaiting her in his elaborate Broadway office. He rose as she was ushered in, and came forward, taking her hand warmly in both of his.

"You are looking more wonderful than I ever seen you!"

"Oh, you always say such nice things." Flo enjoyed flattery, no matter how obvious it might be.

REMOVE FILM..that's where decay and pyorrhea start

FILM must be removed

Employ the scientific method dentists urge

WHAT causes decay? Germs. Germs, with tartar, are held to be a chief cause of pyorrhea—and of virtually every common tooth and gum disorder known.

Germs on the teeth—and there are millions—are difficult to reach. A dingy, glue-like film envelops them and holds them in contact with the tooth's enamel.

This film coat gets into crevices and stays. It clings so stubbornly that only a special film-destroying tooth paste can remove it satisfactorily. That tooth paste is the scientific formula called Pepsodent. Utterly different from every other you have ever known, as you will notice instantly when it touches your teeth.

First Pepsodent curdles film, then removes it with complete safety to the enamel. No pumice, no harmful grit. No crude abrasive, but a creamy paste so gentle that it is recommended for children's teeth and for tender gums.

Safeguard your teeth by this scientific tooth paste. Give them the dazzling whiteness Pepsodent alone can bring. Do not delay. Write for free 10-day tube to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

Victor-Radio

Asks No Compromise . . . . . with REALITY!

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

THE instant, coast-to-coast triumph of Victor-Radio is without precedent. This instrument marks a new era in entertainment. It asks no compromise with reality. It asks not that you be indulgent, but that you be critical!

For Victor-Radio literally duplicates voice or instrument in all its individuality and color. Every subtle variation of tone is there, from top to bottom of the audible scale—in the same proportion in which it is produced at the microphone. Only Victor, with its 33 years of unparalleled experience in sound reproduction, could create such an instrument.

Victor-Radio is the only micro-synchronous receiver—an exclusive Victor development. Every element is always in micro-exact—through the entire broadcasting range . . . No other radio has Victor super-automatic precision tuning.

The exclusive Victor Harmonic Modulator enables you to adjust the bass to suit the special acoustical qualities of any room.

The compact new Victor cabinets set radio a new standard of dignity, taste and craftsmanship. Throughout, Victor instruments are built by Victor—there is no stronger guarantee of quality.

Victor-Radio is available separately—or with the amazing new companion Electrola! This complete modern instrument will bring you the joy of all the music of the world . . . music from the air that no longer compromises with fidelity . . . and recorded music of brilliance and power that you never believed possible . . . that transports the entire musical personality into the room beside you!
